Program Learning Goals

- The student engages in work in string performance that results in contributions to the body of knowledge and practice in music.
- The student engages in concentrated, advanced post-baccalaureate study in the performance practice and literature of one of the instruments of the string family: violin, viola, cello, or string bass.
- The student engages in studies beyond the major that support the major directly and develops a breadth of competence in music history, theory, and in humanistic studies related to music.
