African American and African Studies: African American Art 376

Rationale/Assessment Plan

The Department of African American and African Studies currently offers African American Art 376, but requests to make the course available to a broader GEC audience. The course will be taught in a 35-student lecture format with one professor.

African American Art 376 is ideally suited for inclusion in the General Education Curriculum (Section 5 Arts and Humanities; Section B Analysis of texts and Works of Art; 2 VPA) which has the following Goals/Rationale and Learning Objectives:

GEC Goals/Rationale:

Students evaluate significant writing and works of art. Such studies develop capacities for aesthetic and historical response and judgment; interpretation and evaluation; critical listening, reading, seeing, thinking, and writing; and experiencing the arts and reflecting on that experience.

GEC Learning Objectives:

1. Students develop abilities to be enlightened observers or active participants in the visual arts.
2. Students describe and interpret achievement in the arts and literature.
3. Students explain how works of art and related literature express social and cultural issues.

Specific Course Learning Objectives of African American Art 376:

- To provide students with a historical and thematic exploration of art from a demographic whose work is scantily studied within the traditional academic art framework.
- To provide students with the intellectual, psychological, political and cultural perspectives that construct African American artistic expression in order for students to sufficiently understand the social effects a white dominated American society and identify ways in which Black artists construct identity based on said perspectives.
- To familiarize students with terminology relevant to art and the political and social conditions of Black people historically.
- To provide students with the knowledge that will allow them to become familiar with African American artists' experiences and their visual work.
- To advance students' research and documentation skills through written assignments.
- To build upon students' ability to critically discuss and write about art and culture.

Assessment Plan

An examination of the work students were required to complete for the course will serve as the assessment of whether the course objectives have been effectively executed.

Students' development as enlightened readers and viewers of African American artists and their artwork, students' ability to describe and interpret the relationship between Black artistic and cultural expression in the visual arts, and their ability to explain the social and political role of visual art and culture in the Black experience will be assessed through a combination of critical and analytical essays, biographical sketches, definitions, attendance at African American art exhibits, and in-class exercises such as visual recognition of artwork.

This course will be assessed by the Director of Undergraduate Studies and the Undergraduate Studies Committee, who will consult with the instructor of the course annually for input on how the course is performing and meeting expected goals.

We believe that sampling should provide us with an adequate assessment of whether or not this course is in fact living up to its goals. We will randomly sample (and duplicate) specific assignments and projects from a portion of the class. The AAAS Undergraduate committee, or one of its representatives, in conjunction with the course instructor will evaluate sample assignments and projects to gauge how well the goals of the course seem to be reflected and communicate the findings to the department chair and the undergraduate committee, and the department student coordinator. The AAAS Undergraduate committee, or one of its representatives, in conjunction with the course instructor will also assess the improvement over time, comparing selected students' performance on assignments early in the term to their performance on the final project to see if improvement has in fact occurred, and communicating the findings to appropriate departmental personnel and committees.

We are also interested in getting the students' self-assessment of the course and of their performance in it. To that end, instructors of 376 will ask students to complete discursive evaluations that invite comment on both the course instruction and on their performance in relation to the learning objectives of the course.

Note on the assessment criteria for sampled exams and papers

The criteria that we will be using in the assessment will be similar to those the instructor will have used in grading assignments in the first place. We will, however, pay somewhat less attention to the factual specifics of the students' work than to what it reveals about whether they understood the nature of the assignment task and the learning objectives it entails. As far as possible, the Undergraduate Committee will try to determine whether shortcomings in this area are correlated to the individual student's poor attendance in class, or whether they result from miscommunication on the part of the instructor. Although we are most concerned with the latter case, we will also work on various strategies for increasing attendance if that seems to be a particular problem. When necessary, the Undergraduate Committee will work with individual instructors to improve communication of the course expectations and content.

Timeline for assessment

Each quarter, every time the course is taught, we will follow the same schedule:

Weeks 1-3	Sampling of early assignments
Weeks 9-10	Sampling of final projects
	Student assessment of course and their performance in it
Week 11	Samples read and evaluated by Course Director

The Undergraduate Committee will be responsible for making sure that instructors and students' overall evaluations of the course have at least remained steady or, better, improved; if that proves not to be the case, we will attempt to use the information we have collected to make what seem the appropriate adjustments to the course content and structure.

Course Description:

GEC Arts and humanities: Analysis of text and works of art.

This course provides an historical survey, as well as, a thematic exploration of African American art from the late eighteenth century through the Harlem Renaissance to the nineteen sixties. Contemporary artists, whose careers spanned across various periods (Renaissance, Civil Rights, post-Civil Rights), are examined. The course emphasizes the intellectual, psychological, political and cultural responses of Black people to the social domination of the White world through artistic expression. The class also emphasizes the connections and differences between African American and African arts. It also examines the relationships between European American and African American arts, while evaluating the contributions of African American artists to American visual culture and international artistic consciousness. This course will explore the questions of identity and representation. Lectures and readings focus on historical, political, and religious elements of African American artistic and cultural production, as well as contemporary perspectives on African American art and culture. Students are required to attend lectures and art exhibits, participate in class discussions as well as complete all examinations and paper assignments.

Course Objectives:

1. To provide students with a historical and thematic exploration of art from a demographic whose work is scantily studied within the traditional academic art framework.
2. To provide students with the intellectual, psychological, political and cultural perspectives that construct African American artistic expression in order for students to sufficiently understand the social effects a white dominated American society and identify ways in which Black artists construct identity based on said perspectives.
3. To familiar students with terminology relevant to art and to the political and social conditions of Black artists and Black people historically.
4. To familiar students with African American artists; that is, their life experiences and their visual work.
5. To advance students' research and documentation skills through written assignments.
6. To build upon students' ability to discuss and write about art and culture critically.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES:

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 33356-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Disability Services

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office of Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; <http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu/>.
