A General Elective

State the need and purpose of the course. Indicate how the course relates to the primary goals of the academic unit/school/college/university.

Given the duties of citizenship and the large role of the law in everyday life, there is need for a course that equips students to apply the basic tools of critical thinking to the assessment of legal reasoning in particular. Through examination of various courtroom scenarios and actual court cases, students will be taught to reason carefully about what laws are involved and how those laws apply.

Indicate the nature of the program adjustments, new funding, and/or withdrawals that make possible the implementation of this new course. Evidence must be given of whether the budget support will come from reallocation of existing resources or from new program funds.

Given that the proposed course can be taught by any of those who currently teach Philosophy 150, we do not anticipate the need for any program adjustments or new funding. Since many of the students who would be attracted to Philosophy 151 would otherwise have taken Philosophy 150 anyway, offering one new section of the former will most likely result in our offering one less section of the latter.

Is approval of this request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular requests? Yes No
