Anthropology 640.05

This course has long been needed here at Ohio State. Currently there is no biology of aging course on campus; this has been a real deficit for the gerontology programs at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. We are planning to incorporate this class into the Health Sciences Gerontology track and also to offer it to graduate students in the Graduate Specialization in Aging. The College of Arts and Sciences is also working on developing a minor in aging and this course will be a core course in that program. We are pleased to support this proposal.

Margaret H. Teaford, Ph.D.
Chair, Graduate Specialization in Aging Committee
