1. Provide the rationale for proposing this course:

An area of history that transcends geographic areas and chronological periods is the history of sexuality. Each year more students identify this as a topic of interest, both inside and outside the History department. Professor Donna Guy has already developed an undergraduate world history course (H523) that explores the history of sexuality and its relationship to dominant themes in world history such as religion, trade, imperialism, colonialism, sexual science, and nationalism. Currently courses on the history of sexuality at the graduate level are taught under the women's history colloquium, 781. Nevertheless, topics of masculinity and male sexuality need to be included in these courses, and there is now an interdisciplinary graduate minor in sexuality studies. I was asked to create a history course for this minor and introduce it with a separate number so that students outside history could easily recognize which course is part of the minor.

2. List Major/Minor affected by the creation of this new course. Attach revisions of all affected programs. This course is (check one) Required  Elective  Other (Explain) :

Minor in Sexuality Studies

3. Indicate the nature of the program adjustments, new funding, and/or withdrawals that make possible the implementation of this new course.

4. Is the approval of this request contingent upon the approval of other course requests or curricular requests?

Yes  No  List:

5. If this course is part of a sequence, list the number of the other course(s) in the sequence: N/A

6. Expected section size: 12 Proposed number of sections per year: 1-2

7. Do you want prerequisites enforced electronically (see OAA manual for what can be enforced)? Yes

8. This course has been discussed with and has the concurrence of the following academic units needing this course or with academic units having directly related interests (List units and attach letters and/or forms):

Not Applicable

Women's Studies  Comparative Studies

9. Attach a course syllabus that includes a topical outline of the course, student learning outcomes and/or course objectives, off-campus field experience, methods of evaluation, and other items as stated in the OAA curriculum manual.
