Intended Audience Honors English Majors

General Course Information Statement The English faculty has approved a title change to the honors version of English 398 to "Honors Writing for English Majors," corresponding to a recently approved change of title for the non-honors version of the same course. English faculty wish for English majors to understand the importance of taking this course early in their tenure and have found that students put off taking the course because its current title ("Critical Writing") does not convey its centrality to learning the critical writing and reading practices necessary to success in the honors major in a timely manner. The course goals remain the same.
