Explores the complex nature of identity in modern society by investigating the perennial issue of ethnic tension in the Balkans from various perspectives (linguistic, religious, historical, political, social psychological). Aligns undergraduate curriculum with DSEELL faculty expertise in linguistics and cultural studies. Supports major and minor programs. Expands department's GEC offerings.

Indicate the nature of the program adjustments, new funding, and/or withdrawals that make possible the implementation of this new course. Evidence must be given of whether the budget support will come from reallocation of existing resources or from new program funds.

No budget adjustments will be required for this course. Multiple current faculty members in the Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures are qualified to teach it. Other undergraduate and graduate courses will be offered slightly less frequently in order to accommodate this new course in the department's regular course offerings.

Is approval of this request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular requests?
