Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

- Program Learning Goals
- Students acquire fundamental knowledge of the fashion and retail industries
 - Students solve problems creatively in consumer and industry related settings
 - Students develop communication skills in individual and group settings

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? No

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Pre-Major

Does this Program have a Pre-Major? No

Comments

- Current Program/Plan Name: The name of this program for quarters is Textiles and Clothing, but the online PACER curriculum system only gives the option of selecting Fashion and Retail Studies Minor. The unit does not plan to have the name of the minor changed to Fashion and Retail Studies for quarters, but that should be the name of the semester version of the minor. (by Zircher, Andrew Paul on 03/07/2011 11:47 AM)

RE: Semester Conversion Package for Department of Consumer Sciences

I am pleased to present the complete package of semester conversion materials for the Department of Consumer Sciences. In what follows, I will outline unique college and department contexts that have shaped this package. I will include tables summarizing constituent programs/courses and describe any other pertinent considerations. Finally, you will find Dean's level approval.

College Contexts

The College of Education and Human Ecology was formed in 2006 by merging two colleges (Human Ecology and Education). Curriculum across the new college, however, has remained relatively unchanged. Given this situation, we view the semester conversion process as a fresh opportunity to deepen the merger by building curricular collaborations among our units. We also wish to rethink our pre-existing programs and find ways to make them stronger, more coherent, and streamlined.

To these ends, we have asked faculty in our units to purge their curricula of little-used or less-than-relevant courses. We have challenged faculty to reach across unit lines to forge curricular collaborations by creating new degrees, interdisciplinary specializations, or co-taught courses. We are re-instituting a number of undergraduate teacher preparation programs (B.S.Ed.), each of which draws from courses in units around our college as well as across the university. We have encouraged five of our six units to address findings of the 2008 OSU Doctoral Program Assessment and Plan by strengthening their Ph.D. programs and making them more coherent. They have responded by: 1) defining their Ph.D. programs in alignment with their units -- rather than with their pre-merger college (i.e., Ph.D. in Consumer Science rather than Ph.D. in Human Ecology); and 2) creating true cores for their Ph.D. programs if they did not previously exist. Additionally, an Ed.D. degree in Educational Leadership is being proposed to address the need of school administrators to pursue advanced degrees geared for practitioners. With approval of the Ed.D. and also with recent B.O.R. approval of our other practitioner-oriented programs, an Ed.S. (Education Specialist) program in School Psychology and another in Teaching and Learning, fewer graduate students in the college will pursue Ph.D.s by default than in the past.

We believe that, taken together, these changes will greatly strengthen our programs and clarify our new college identity.

Departmental Notes

Consumer Sciences (CS) is one of five units in the college to change its Ph.D. program to align with departmental boundaries rather than those of its previous college. CS faculty have proposed that the degree name change from “Ph.D. in Human Ecology” to “Ph.D. in Consumer Sciences.” The “Human Ecology” designation no longer makes sense because the college of that name does not exist. Also, Ph.D. degrees from other units with the “Human Ecology” designation have very little in common with each other as there is no common core. However, with the proposed Ph.D. in Consumer Science, a 12-credit hour common core will provide greatly enhanced cohesion to the degree program that will span three separate specializations. For similar reasons, CS faculty also are proposing that the name of their master’s degree change from “M.S. in Human Ecology” to “M.S. in Consumer Sciences.”

Finally, CS faculty likewise have chosen to improve the coherence of their B.S. degrees. Previously, the three main programs in the department each offered essentially independent majors. Now, though, the B.S. degrees have a true common core of courses shared by three majors. Not only will this improve quality and coherence for students, but it also will increase efficiencies in the department.

College Approval

I have carefully reviewed all semester conversion materials for the Department of Consumer Sciences, having done so conjointly with the EHE Curriculum Committee. I also have discussed these materials with Dean Achterberg. This memo signifies Dean's level approval of the entire semester conversion package for the Department of Consumer Sciences.

November 12, 2010

Dear Curriculum Review Committee,

The Department of Consumer Sciences in the College of Education and Human Ecology is presenting a total of five degree programs and two minors for semester conversion in Summer of 2012. Of the five degree programs, three are undergraduate programs including: Hospitality Management, Fashion and Retail Studies, and Consumer and Family Financial Services and two are graduate programs in Consumer Sciences (MS and Ph.D.). Two minors will be converted taking new names: Consumer Sciences and Fashion and Retail Studies. The current programs in the department and college are:

- a. Undergraduate majors: BS in Hospitality Management, BS in Human Ecology with majors in Fashion and Retail Studies, and Consumer and Family Financial Services
- b. Undergraduate minors: Consumer Services and Textiles & Clothing
- c. Graduate programs: MS and Ph.D. in Human Ecology with specializations in Hospitality Management, Fashion and Retail Studies, and Family Resource Management

The faculty in the Department of Consumer Sciences have participated in a year long review of curriculum, commencing with research on programs at benchmark institutions and a review of survey information from program alumni. Much of the work on our undergraduate programs was done within program groups representing the interests of the three areas of study in Consumer Sciences: Hospitality Management, Fashion and Retail Studies, and Consumer and Family Financial Services. The graduate faculty worked as a committee of the whole. At the start of Autumn 2009 each program faculty committee redefined program learning goals and linked these goals to a formal assessment plan. With this background, a curricular map of existing programs was drafted to identify any holes in coverage and redundancies. These maps served as the basis for program modifications.

For the undergraduate programs, common changes were the addition of new courses to cover gaps in the curriculum as seen through examination of the curricular maps, elimination of courses considered redundant, merging of existing courses facilitated by the extra time in semesters, and/or identification of courses from other units that complement learning goals in each program. Each of the three undergraduate programs and two minors is presented as a conversion to semesters with minimal changes to program goals and curricular requirements.

For the graduate programs, the department's situation is somewhat unique. Our proposal is for two new graduate programs (MS and Ph.D.) in Consumer Sciences. Previously our graduate degree programs were in Human Ecology, encompassing students working in Human Nutrition, Human Development and Family Science, and Consumer Sciences. Faculty from all three units agreed that one single degree is not adequately representative of these three areas of study as there is no common core of study amongst the programs. To be more representative of the core area of study, each of the three units that previously contributed to graduate degrees in Human Ecology is proposing a new graduate program. In Consumer Sciences the proposed graduate program parallels our undergraduate program with a set of core requirements in consumer sciences followed by courses derived from 3 areas of study: Hospitality Management, Fashion and Retail Studies, and Family/Consumer Economics. These are not tracks and represent only an advanced treatment of consumer sciences within a specific market setting.

Faculty approval for the five degree programs and new (or significantly modified) courses was recorded through a formal vote on each program and course at one of two day-long retreats held in early June and mid-September 2010. At these meetings the undergraduate proposals drafted by program area groups were presented, discussed and put forward for full faculty vote. The Fashion and Retail Studies and Consumer and Family Financial Services programs were approved unanimously in these retreats. The Hospitality Management proposal required more significant revision as a result of faculty discussion and the subsequent vote was conducted online with all Consumer Sciences faculty voting and approving the final proposal. The MS and Ph.D. programs in Consumer Sciences were also reviewed and voted upon in the September retreat and the approval was unanimous through a formal and recorded vote. The two minor conversions were voted upon electronically by faculty in early November.

The faculty in Consumer Sciences submitted a strong rationale for programmatic changes, appropriate transition plans, and a plan to meet the resource requirements that come with these five degree and two minor proposals. I recommend approval of the BS degrees in Hospitality Management, Fashion and Retail Studies, and Consumer and Family Financial Services; minors in Consumer Sciences and Fashion and Retail Studies; and the two graduate degrees (MS and Ph.D.) in Consumer Sciences.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Fox, Ph.D.

Program Rationale Statement

The existing undergraduate Fashion and Retail Studies/Textiles and Clothing minor (quarter system) will be converted with minimal changes to an undergraduate Fashion and Retail Studies minor (semester system). The minor is designed to enhance understanding of merchandising of fashion products to meet the needs of consumers and retail industries. There are three learning goals for the minor: (1) Students acquire fundamental knowledge of the fashion and retail industries, (2) Students solve problems creatively in consumer and industry related settings, AND (3) Students develop communication skills in individual and group settings.

Slight changes have been made in the Fashion and Retail Studies/Textiles and Clothing minor.

1. The quarter course format of four required courses plus “select two” is being replaced with a semester format of three required courses plus “select two.” This change reflects a change in the credit hours of 2 of the required courses FRS 270 and 275. Each was 3 credit hours in the quarter system and is 3 credit hours in the semester system. Changes in levels of courses also were addressed. Under the semester program students will select at least 2 courses, giving them the needed opportunity to earn the required 6 credits at the 3000 level or above.
2. The content represented in the semester minor is slightly altered from the content in the current quarter minor. The Appearance, Dress and Cultural Diversity course content is now not required. This course can be taken as an additional “choose from” or as a GEC.

The academic program coordinator in the College of Education and Human Ecology must approve the Minor Program Form. The student must file the approved form with a college or school counselor. For further information about the minor program, contact the college.

Consumer Sciences minor program guidelines

The following guidelines govern this minor.

Required for graduation No

Credit hours required 15

Transfer credits allowed 6

Overlap with GEC Permitted, unless specifically disallowed by an individual minor program

Overlap with major

- The minor must be in a different subject than the major
- Courses specified on the major that are also a part of an established minor can be counted toward both the major and the minor when there are a minimum of 33 credit hours of courses toward the major that are not part of the minor

Overlap between minors Each minor completed must contain 12 unique hours

Graded required

- Minimum C- for a course to be listed on the minor
- Minimum 2.00 cumulative point-hour ratio required for the minor
- Course work graded Pass/Non-Pass cannot count toward the minor

Approval required The academic program coordinator in the College of Education and Human Ecology must approve the minor

Filing the minor program form The minor program form must be filed at least by the time the graduation application is submitted to a college or school counselor

Changing the minor Once the minor program is filed in the college office, any changes must be approved by the academic program coordinator in the College of Education and Human Ecology.

The minor in textiles and clothing offered by the Department of Consumer Sciences is designed to provide students with an understanding of the acquisition and use of clothing and household textiles in relation to the physical, aesthetic, social, and psychological needs of the individual. The minor consists of a minimum of 22 credit hours of course work in the department, including a 16 hour core. Selection of textiles and clothing courses may be related to fashion and interiors merchandising, or product development and evaluation. All course prerequisites must be met. After the academic program coordinator in the College of Education and Human Ecology has approved your Minor Program Form, you should file the form with your college or school counselor. For further information about the minor program, contact the college.

Fashion and retail Studies Minor Transition Statement

Students in the Fashion and Retail Studies minor (Textiles and Clothing minor under the quarter system) who began their degree under the quarter system and must transition to the semester system before graduation will not be delayed nor disrupted toward progress toward their degree. The following policies may be used by FRS advisors when working with students to assure their progress toward degree:

- a. Allow students to move from their original quarter advising sheet to the new semester advising sheet.
- b. The 2011-2012 Fashion and Retail Studies minor advising sheet will not be changed to offer some consistency for at least 2 years of students.
- c. Wave pre-requisites for newly formed semester courses when necessary
- d.. Advisors will have a “suggested list” of appropriate substitution courses for those students who have taken parts of courses that have been combined for the semester conversion. Advising for these will need to be on an individual basis since students’ programs are so varied.
- e. For special circumstances, in advanced courses, Individual Studies or Group Studies options may be used to allow students to take ½ of courses where 2 courses have been combined.
- f. For courses that have minimal changes and have gone from 5 quarter hours to 3 semester hours an automatic transfer of credits may be used.

An example of how a student might transition from a minor started in the quarter system to completing a minor in the semester system:

Year/Qtr/Sem	Courses	Required or “choose ”	Qtr Crdts	Sem Crdts
Year 1 Quarter System	No courses in minor		0	0
Year 2 Quarter System	FSNRTS 270 Aesthetics of Fashion and Retail FSNRTS 275 Business of Fashion and Retail	R R	3 3	2 2
Year 3 Semester System	FSNRTS 2371 Textiles (3) FSNRTS 2372 Appear. Dress & Cultural Diversity	R C		3 3
Year 4 Semester System	FSNRTS 3471 Textile Product Quality FSNRTS 3474 Fashion Forecasting	C C		3 3

Note: This example would require students to take 3 courses (instead of the minimum of 2) in the “choose from” category in order to meet the required 15 credit hours.
