RE: Semester Conversion Package for School of Educational Policy and Leadership

I am pleased to present the complete package of semester conversion materials for the School of Educational Policy & Leadership. In what follows, I will outline unique college and school contexts that have shaped this package. I will include tables summarizing constituent programs/courses and describe any other pertinent considerations. Finally, you will find Dean's level approval.

College Contexts

The College of Education and Human Ecology was formed in 2006 by merging two colleges (Human Ecology and Education). Curriculum across the new college, however, has remained relatively unchanged. Given this situation, we view the semester conversion process as a fresh opportunity to deepen the merger by building curricular collaborations among our units. We also wish to rethink our pre-existing programs and find ways to make them stronger, more coherent, and streamlined.

To these ends, we have asked faculty in our units to purge their curricula of little-used or less-than-relevant courses. We have challenged faculty to reach across unit lines to forge curricular collaborations by creating new degrees, interdisciplinary specializations, or co-taught courses. We are re-instituting a number of undergraduate teacher preparation programs (B.S.Ed.), each of which draws from courses in units around our college as well as across the university. We have encouraged five of our six units to address findings of the 2008 OSU Doctoral Program Assessment and Plan by strengthening their Ph.D. programs and making them more coherent. They have responded by: 1) defining their Ph.D. programs in alignment with their units -- rather than with their pre-merger college (i.e., Ph.D. in Consumer Science rather than Ph.D. in Human Ecology); and 2) creating true cores for their Ph.D. programs if they did not previously exist. Additionally, an Ed.D. degree in Educational Leadership is being proposed to address the need of school administrators to pursue advanced degrees geared for practitioners. With approval of the Ed.D. and also with recent B.O.R. approval of our other practitioner-oriented programs, an Ed.S. (Education Specialist) program in School Psychology and another in Teaching and Learning, fewer graduate students in the college will pursue Ph.D.s by default than in the past.

We believe that, taken together, these changes will greatly strengthen our programs and clarify our new college identity.

School Notes

Educational Policy & Leadership (EPL) is one of five units in the college to change its Ph.D. program to align with school boundaries rather than those of its previous college. EPL faculty have proposed that the degree name change from “Ph.D. in Education” to “Ph.D. in Educational Policy & Leadership.” The “Education” designation no longer makes sense because the college of that name does not exist. Also, Ph.D. degrees from other units with the “Education” designation have very little in common with each other as there is no common core. However, with the proposed Ph.D. in Educational Policy & Leadership, a 6-credit hour common core will provide greatly enhanced cohesion to the degree program that will span five separate specializations.

The proposed Ed.D. in Educational Leadership degree would allow advanced educational practitioners to pursue a doctoral degree needed for career advancement, a degree imbued with grounded, practice-oriented research. They would no longer need to choose to pursue a Ph.D. degree by default, a degree intended primarily to prepare individuals for research-oriented careers.

Unique Considerations

Faculty in EPL currently contribute to the university's Graduate Interdisciplinary Specialization in College and University Teaching. Additionally, EPL faculty are proposing to contribute to or lead two additional collaborative programs: 1) a Graduate Interdisciplinary Specialization in Quantitative Methods, and 2) a graduate Minor in Teaching in Virtual Environments. These two proposals grew out of a college-wide initiative to encourage cross-unit curricular collaborations. The future academic home for these programs may be the Graduate School.

The Minor in Education proposal represents a straight conversion of an existing program. However, until now, this minor has not had an academic home. After discussions around the college, EPL agreed to become the academic home for this program.

College Approval

I have carefully reviewed all semester conversion materials for the School of Educational Policy & Leadership, having done so conjointly with the EHE Curriculum Committee. I also have discussed these materials with Dean Achterberg. This memo signifies Dean's level approval of the entire semester conversion package for the School of Educational Policy & Leadership.

Program Rationale:

The education minor is designed to provide foundational knowledge about education within the larger social context and to offer a cross-disciplinary examination of the intersections of education, culture, and society. Students choosing to minor in education may wish to explore education as a possible career choice or they may be interested in studying current issues in the field as well as learning more about schools and schooling in today's society.

The minor has been converted directly, decreasing the credit hours to the 3/2 ratio and maintaining category and number of courses required.

Education Minor (EDUC-MN)

College of Education & Human Ecology, 227 Arps Hall, 1945
North High Street, Columbus, 614-292-2332

The education minor is designed to provide foundational knowledge about education within the larger social context and to offer a cross-disciplinary examination of the intersections of education, culture, and society. Students choosing to minor in education may wish to explore education as a possible career choice or they may be interested in studying current issues in the field as well as learning more about schools and schooling in today's society.

Students intending to pursue the Master of Education (M.Ed.) teacher preparation program may use courses in the minor to fulfill prerequisites for the M.ED. The career exploration courses in the minor provide valuable field experience designed to help exploring students decide if they want to teach and, if so, at what level—early childhood, middle childhood, high school, or in interventionist specialist programs involving children with disabilities. The educational technology, adult education, business and workforce development courses in the minor provide opportunities for students to apply technology in formal and informal learning environments, and to explore education and training practices in business and industry.

The education minor requires 23-25 credit hours. All students completing the minor must take one course from at least five of the seven categories listed. Courses in the minor represent conceptual areas or themes that are important aspects of the educational process: critical issues in education, career exploration in educational settings, educational technology, education and society, teaching and learning, human development in educational settings, and literacy curriculum. Courses in the minor are offered by each of the three schools in the College of Education: Educational Policy and Leadership (Edu P&L); Education: Physical Activity and Educational Services (Edu PAES); and Education: Teaching and Learning (Edu T&L).

Students who plan to complete the minor should meet with an academic advisor in the College of Education to fill out the Minor Program Form, then submit the approved form to their college of record. Any variation in the minor requires written approval from the coordinating advisor in the College of Education. For further information about the minor program, contact the College of Education.

Transition Plan:

Students will work closely with advisors to determine which requirements have yet to be met. The same number of courses and category distribution will be required, so the requirements should be able to be met with little alteration to the students' programs.
