Comments

- Program rationale is contained within Chair's letter.

Department feels redundancy in Semester advising sheet is important for students understanding and comprehending the material in the document in the event that the student does not read the introductory materials.

Professor Larry Krissek
Chair, Arts and Sciences CCI
Re: French BA and French Minor

Dear Professor Krissek:

The CCI's Arts and Humanities 2 subcommittee met on April 13, 2011, and reviewed the semester conversion plans for the BA and minor in French submitted by the Department of French and Italian. The committee found some points that should be addressed (see below) but did not feel these were serious enough to prevent review at the CCI level and accordingly voted unanimously to forward these programs to the full committee.

BA program in French:

- Chair's letter:
 - The letter should explain that, although the Francophone Studies specialization is new, this is not considered a substantial change to the major.
 - On page 2 near the end of the paragraph that begins with, "We now have two instead of three intermediate-level literature courses . . ." there is a reference to "FR 3201 and FR 3201." Presumably the second course should be FR 3202.
- The quarter program is not explained. The information about the quarter program found at <http://frit.osu.edu/students/undergraduatestudies/French/default> should be included.
- All the advising sheets, except for the Francophone Studies specialization, state that "at least 12 of the 30 hours must be taken at OSU." According to CCI rules, one half of all credit needs to be earned at Ohio State (i.e., 15 hours).
- The semester advising sheet for the minor should be removed.
- Curriculum map:
 - The fact that the curriculum map shows all courses taught in French should be specified in the title.
 - "GEC" should be replaced by "GE."
 - Courses 4797, 4998/H, and 4999/H should be added.

Minor in French

- Chair's letter:
 - On pg. 1, the specialization referred to as “language and literature” should be “language/linguistics.”
 - On page 2 near the end of the paragraph that begins with, “We now have two instead of three intermediate-level literature courses . . .” there is a reference to “FR 3201 and FR 3201.” Presumably the second course should be FR 3202.
- Remove all track changes on both advising sheets.
- Semester advising sheet:
 - In the 3rd paragraph, “The minor consists of 12-18 credit hours,” should be “The minor consists of 12 credit hours.”
 - The required prerequisite courses are the same for all options. They are given once before the description of options, but then are repeated for each option. This redundancy should be removed.
 - All references to “GEC” should be replaced by “GE.”
 - Under the general minor program guidelines, overlap with the GE is permitted, but the restriction, “unless specifically disallowed by an individual minor program,” should be added.
- On the quarter advising sheet, the reference in the title to “semester courses” should be changed to “quarter courses.”
- The curriculum map should be removed.

Sincerely,

Lawrence Krissek, Professor of Earth Sciences
Faculty Chair, Committee on Curriculum and Instruction
College of Arts and Sciences

Dear Larry,

The Department of French and Italian has completed its proposal for semester versions of its French undergraduate programs:

BA in French
Minor in French

The Arts and Humanities Disciplinary Advisory Panel for Curriculum within the College of Arts and Sciences reviewed and unanimously approved the undergraduate programs from French and Italian during its February 4, 2011 meeting. The BA in French has an assessment plan on file with OAA, verified October 15, 2010.

Most specifically, I have highlighted the important changes for each program below:

Bachelor of Arts in French: The BA in French was last revised and approved by CAA previous to 2006. The undergraduate BA is converting with minimal changes. The quarter-based degree is a minimum of 50 credit hours with 25 credit hours in pre-requisites, and its semester-based version is 30 credit hours with 15 credit hours of pre-requisites. The department has made several small changes outlined in the Chair's letter, among them is the addition of a fifth transcriptable subplan, Francophone Studies. The department has provided a detailed transition plan, including the book chapters that 1101-1103 and the bridge course 1102.34 will address, for students beginning the pre-requisite course-work in French at the 1101/101-stage, and continuing their studies into the major course-work.

Minor in French: The Minor in French was last updated and approved by CAA on March 3, 2010. The quarter-based degree is a minimum of 20 credit hours with 25 credit hours in pre-requisites. The semester-based program is 12 credit hours beyond 1103, with 15 credit hours of pre-requisites (1101-1103 and 2101.01 or 2101.51). The minor is a course-to-course translation: 4 courses required in the minor course work in quarters, and still 4 courses required in the minor on semesters. The department included a sixth transcriptable subplan, Francophone Studies. The required coursework for the minor program beyond the pre-requisites is at the 3000-level and above, therefore the minor fulfills the ASC rule of 6 credit hours at the 3000-level or above or courses at the 2000-level taught in the language. Please note there is a small typo in the Chair letter for the listing of the six subplans, "French Language and Literature" should read "French Language and Linguistics." We did not see the need to send it back for this small change.

We are sending these undergraduate programs forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at the Arts and Sciences Committee on Curriculum and Instruction.

The courses that are specific to all of the programs are listed under the Book 3 Listing of French. The courses have been advanced in PACER. All programs from French and Italian have the approval of Arts and Humanities. If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call or email me at 292-5727 or williams.1415@osu.edu.

Re: Chair's letter for semester conversion for French

Current French programs

The Department will offer the following graduate and undergraduate programs in French under the semester system. Details and discussions of these programs will follow in the background section. All of our courses (with the exception of individual studies and group studies) have been converted from five-hour to three-hour courses

Undergraduate:

We currently have four tracks in the French major and have added a fifth as part of the semester conversion process. The new Francophone Studies Major track is not a substantial change to the major but rather an enhancement of the options open to students.

French language and literature

French language and culture

French for the Professions

French Studies

Francophone Studies (new)

We currently have five minor tracks (subplans) and have added a sixth as part of the semester conversion process. As is the case with the major, the Francophone Studies minor track enhances the options available to the student but does not substantially change the minor.

French culture and film

French literature

French for the Professions

French Studies

French language and literature

Francophone Studies (new)

Detailed information about the current major and minor undergraduate programs can be found at <http://frit.osu.edu/students/undergraduatestudies/French/default>.

Graduate

At present, we have an M.A. and a Ph.D. in French. The Department will be going to a direct-admit PhD degree when we move to semesters. The M.A. will be available to students who decide not to continue their doctoral studies or to students who are not permitted to continue in the program.

Background

Over the past several years, the French section has engaged in many discussions about our graduate and undergraduate programs first as part of the OSU Review of Doctoral Programs and subsequently as part of the External Review of the Department last year. These discussions prepared us well for converting our undergraduate and graduate programs to the semester system. I appointed separate committees to work on the graduate program and the undergraduate program. The committees presented the results of their deliberations at a series of faculty meetings during the spring and summer of 2010. During these meetings the faculty came to a consensus about the revisions and modifications of these two programs, and all faculty members had a full voice in determining the changes to be made for semester conversion.

Undergraduate Level

I will address each below beginning with the undergraduate program. The main goals of the revision of the UG curriculum were to maintain the diversity of courses that we currently offer to students insofar as possible and to maintain the different tracks offered to undergraduate majors and minors. In addition we wanted to offer several open-topics courses that allow faculty to vary content according to their interests and research projects; we also wanted to maintain the interdisciplinary nature of our courses where literature, culture, and media were integrated into course offerings; we also wanted to offer courses that treat the cultures of the Francophone world as well as metropolitan France; and finally we wanted to modify the curriculum so that it is more content-based where possible.

Specifically, we made the following changes, which both streamline and energize our undergraduate curriculum.

French 201 and French 206 will be integrated into one course, which will be based on a wide variety of media and text types and will cover texts from Metropolitan France and the French-speaking world (FR 2101 Introduction to French and Francophone Studies).

Rather than offer a separate composition course, the Department will offer writing across the curriculum and will set up a composition component for courses beginning with the 2000-level bridge course through our 4000- and 5000-level culture and literature courses.

French 506, a business course in English, was eliminated since it has not been offered for several years and enrollment was not that robust when it was offered.

In order to expand our offerings in the Francophone area and to enhance culture offerings in general, we added an introduction to Francophone cultures (FR 3402) along with our current Introduction to Contemporary France course (FR 3401).

We now have two instead of three intermediate-level literature courses (French Literary and Visual Texts and Literary and Visual Texts of the Francophone World, FR 3201 and FR 3201 respectively).

We reorganized our advanced literature courses and gave them a new subtitle (Texts and Contexts), which calls attention to the strong cultural component they already contain.

We kept our cinema courses as they are in order to maintain our strength in that area.

We added three new advanced-language courses to the curriculum (to be offered in our individualized instruction program). These courses (FR 4501.51, 4502.51 and 4503.51) are designed to develop the professional language and culture skills of students who are majoring in French and in another discipline (e.g., Molecular Genetics and French, International Studies/Security Track).

We added two study abroad courses (FR 3697 and FR 4697) so that we could more easily transfer study abroad credit where courses do not have an equivalent in our program.

We revamped our GEC courses in English and now plan to offer the following: French 1801, Masterpieces of the French-Speaking World; French 1802, Cultures of the French-Speaking World; French 1803, Paris; French 2801, Classics of French and Francophone Cinema; and French 3801, French-American Culture Wars (which will be part of the new WWII Cluster Program in History in SP 2013 and '14)

Graduate level

The most significant changes that will be made to the graduate programs in French and Italian under the semester system, changes which were prompted in part by discussions during and after the External Review of the department in 2009, are 1) we will no longer offer a terminal Masters program in either section and will only confer the M.A. when Direct-admit PhD students do not or are not able to continue their doctoral studies in either section, and 2) we will add a new Ph.D. program in Italian. Both graduate programs will therefore be direct-admit to the Ph.D. and will generally require three rather than four years of coursework so that students may advance to intensive research earlier and earn the degree more rapidly. With the addition of four required and one optional joint French-Italian graduate courses, there will be much more scholarly interaction between students and faculty in the two sections, as well as more opportunities for students to engage in interdisciplinary work within and outside of the department. We anticipate that these new, more innovative and expeditious programs will attract a high-quality pool of graduate candidates of the caliber of the best of our current students.

Transition: GEC French Bridge Courses

In the quarter system, four quarters were required to satisfy the language requirement: FR 101.01, 102.01, 103.01, 104.01 (French also has 102.66 [101 and 102 combined] and 103.66 [102 and 103 combined]). In the semester system, three semester courses satisfy the same requirement: FR1101, 1102, 1103. Therefore, during SU 12 and the first two semesters after conversion (AU 12, SP 13), we will offer an adjusted FR 1102 (1102.34) that will satisfy the needs of students who have started the language sequence in the quarter system. Our regular semester series of courses will begin in AU 2013.

Proposed plan to accommodate transition students using new book Liaisons. Numbers are chapter numbers from the book.

SU 12, AU 12, WI 13, SP 13:

1101 (P, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6)

1102 (7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12 F)

1102.34 (5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, F) (bridge course)

1155 (P, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, F)

1103 (different book)

Student placement

101.01 students go to 1102.34 (bridge course)

102.01/102.66 students go to 1102 OR do chapters 10, 11, 12, F in I.I. and go directly to 1103.

103.01/103.66 students go to 1103.

Regular course sequence: AU 2013:

The regular course sequence will start in AU 2013. Any students needing adjusted courses will take the appropriate modules in our individualized instruction sequence.

Transition for majors and minors

Students under the current quarter system need 50 hours for the major and 20 hours for the minor, all beyond the required 200-level course. Under the semester system, students will be required to take 30 hours for the major and 12 hours for the minor, all beyond the required 2000-level bridge course.

Fortunately, we do not have any sequential courses at the major and minor levels and will thus not need to provide bridge or transitional courses. We are assuming that the Registrar's Office will provide a semester-hour version of the students' transcripts, thus making it easy for us to determine where the student is in terms of his or her progress toward completing the major or minor. All courses that the student has taken for the quarter-hour major or minor will be converted and will count toward the semester-hour major or minor.

Over the 2011-2012 academic year, faculty members will meet with their advisees to assess where each student is in his or her progress toward completing the major and minor. Faculty members will help students determine the courses they will need to take in the semester system to complete the major or minor. We will exercise flexibility in those courses that count toward the major, making exceptions where needed and waiving requirements if necessary, though this is not anticipated.

Transition plan for Ph.D. students in French

Graduate students in French currently need 45 quarter hours for an M.A. and an additional 75 for a Ph.D. for a total of 120 hours. Under the semester system, we will no longer have a terminal M.A., and all graduate students will need 80 semester hours to earn the Ph.D.

Students who will have completed one year of the current M.A. program by spring 2012 will have earned at least 20 semester hours (30 quarter hours) toward the 80 required for the Ph.D. They will not take French 7301 or 7601 because they will have already taken the equivalents currently in place (French 801 and 883). They will take at least one 8601 and 8602 by spring 2013. Contingent upon their progress each year, these students will receive 5 additional years of funding to earn the Ph.D.

Students who will have earned an M.A. with us by spring 2012 and who are admitted into our Ph.D. program for autumn 2012 will have earned at least 40 semester hours (60 quarter hours) toward the 80 required for the Ph.D. They will not take French 7301, 7601, or 8602 because they will have already taken the equivalents currently in place (French 801 and 883 and M.A. examinations). Contingent upon their progress each year, these students will receive 4 additional years of funding to earn the Ph.D.

Students who will have completed their 1st or 2nd year of the current Ph.D. program by spring 2012 but not their candidacy examinations will have in semester hours two-thirds the number of quarter hours they will have already earned toward the current M.A. and Ph.D. (this will generally be between 60 and 80 semester hours). They will not take 7301, 7601, or 8602, because they will have already taken the current equivalents (French 801, 883, and the M.A. examinations), but they will be required to take at least one 8601. Students who will have successfully completed 1 year of the current Ph.D. program by spring 2012 will be guaranteed 3 additional years of funding to earn their degree. Student who will have successfully completed 2 years of the current Ph.D. program by spring 2012 will be guaranteed 2 additional years of funding to earn their degree.

Students who will have passed their qualifying examinations by spring 2012 will have in semester hours two-thirds the number of quarter hours they will have already earned toward the current M.A. and Ph.D.

Under semesters they will take whatever the number of reading hours, teaching apprenticeship hours, and seminar hours (taken S/U) they will need to reach the 80 required for the Ph.D. or, if they have already reached 80, to maintain continuous enrollment until the dissertation defense. These students will be guaranteed 2 additional years of funding to earn their degree.

French Minor (French and Italian)

Department of French and Italian, 248 Cunz Hall, 1841 Millikin Road, Columbus, OH 43210-1229; 614-292-4938; <http://frit.ohio-state.edu/>

The department offers several options in the French minor, which are designed to allow students to choose courses that correspond more closely to their career or personal goals.

For example, the culture/film option might be of particular interest to international studies majors, whereas the literature or French studies minor is appealing to students with strong interests in literature as well as those who might be planning to specialize in literary studies in graduate school. The French for professions option allows students with an interest in business to develop a background in French society and business practices. Future teachers will find the culture/film or language/linguistics option particularly useful to their career goals. The Francophone minor allows students to focus on the cultures and literatures of French-speaking countries outside of France.

The minor consists of 12-18 credit hours and five possible tracks. No more than 6 hours of credit by examination (EM) and/or transfer credit can be applied to the minor.

Students interested in a minor in French are asked to contact the Department's minor adviser (Diane W. Birckbichler-- Birckbichler.1@osu.edu) to discuss their career or personal goals and the minor option that best suits these goals. Students should then file the Minor form with a college/school adviser. Any variation from the programs requires the approval of a faculty adviser in the Department of French and Italian.

The Ohio State University College of Arts and Sciences

French Minor (French and Italian)

Department of French and Italian, 200 Hagerty Hall, 1775 College Road, Columbus, OH 43210-1340; 614-292-4938; <http://frit.ohio-state.edu/>

The department offers several options in the French minor, which are designed to allow students to choose courses that correspond more closely to their career or personal goals. For example, the culture/film option might be of particular interest to international studies majors, whereas the literature or French studies minor is appealing to students with strong interests in literature as well as those who might be planning to specialize in literary studies in graduate school. The French for professions option allows students with an interest in business to develop a background in French society and business practices. Future teachers will find the culture/film or language/linguistics option particularly useful to their career goals. The Francophone minor allows students to focus on the cultures and literatures of French-speaking countries outside of France.

The minor consists of 12 credit hours and five possible tracks. No more than 6 hours of credit by examination (EM) and/or transfer credit can be applied to the minor.

Students interested in a minor in French are asked to contact the Department's minor adviser (Diane W. Birckbichler-- Birckbichler.1@osu.edu) to discuss their career or personal goals and the minor option that best suits these goals. Students should then file the Minor form with a college/school adviser. Any variation from the programs requires the approval of a faculty adviser in the Department of French and Italian.
