Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

- Program Learning Goals
- Students develop the capacity to understand, compare and critically analyze religious phenomena and their role in history, culture & politics from a variety of theoretical perspectives.
 - Students develop an understanding of religion and how to study it comparatively and critically.

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? No

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Pre-Major

Does this Program have a Pre-Major? No

Lawrence Krissek, Professor of Earth Sciences
Faculty Chair, Committee on Curriculum and Instruction
College of Arts and Sciences

Dear Larry,

The Department of Comparative Studies has completed and submitted their proposals for semester versions of three interdisciplinary minors which they oversee: Minor in Folklore, Minor in Religious Studies, Minor in American Studies. The Arts and Humanities Disciplinary Advisory Panel for Curriculum within the College of Arts and Sciences reviewed and unanimously approved the three undergraduate minors during its March 11, 2011 meeting. Please note that since these are programs that cross multiple units, the first line only on the PACER chart has been completed.

Most specifically, I have highlighted the important changes for each program below:

Minor in Folklore: The Minor in Folklore was last revised and approved by CAA in October 2010. There were no major revisions to the program. The program converted from 24 quarter credit hours to 15 semester credit hours and maintained the one required course cross-listed in Comparative Studies and English. The minor still requires the additional core course in either English or Comparative Studies. The unit also refined the minor and recommends one additional course in either Arabic, Comparative Studies, or English in order to provide a more rounded folklore approach. The list of additional electives is still long and encompasses many units across the university. The minor required five courses on the quarter system, and will translate to five courses on the semester system.

Minor in American Studies: The Minor in American Studies was last revised and approved by CAA on November 18, 2009 according to ASC records. The minor is changing with minimal conversion. There were five courses required on the quarter version for a total of 25 credit hours, and there are five courses required on the semester version for a total of 15 credit hours. The core course and two categories will remain the same on the semester-system minor.

Minor in Religious Studies: The Minor in Religious Studies was last revised and approved by CAA on October 10, 2008 according to ASC records. The minor is changing with minimal conversion. There were five courses required on the quarter version for a total of 25 credit hours, and there are five courses required on the semester version for a total of 15 credit hours. The same required course selections and core course and additional course categories will remain the same on the semester-system minor.

We are sending these undergraduate minor programs forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at the Arts and Sciences Committee on Curriculum and Instruction.

The courses that are specific to all of the programs are listed under multiple Book 3 Listings. All If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call or email me at 292-5727 or williams.1415@osu.edu.

Thank you for your consideration of these proposals,

DATE: 6 April 2011

The Department of Comparative Studies currently offers the following undergraduate and graduate programs:

1. Bachelor of Arts in Comparative Studies with six areas of concentration or subplans, each of which is a Transcriptable Specialization. All students in the major must choose one of the following specializations:

- Comparative Cultural Studies
- Comparative Ethnic and American Studies
- Comparative Literature
- Folklore
- Religious Studies
- Science and Technology Studies

2. Bachelor of Arts in World Literatures

3. Three undergraduate minors:

- American Studies
- Folklore
- Religious Studies

4. Master of Arts in Comparative Studies

5. Doctor of Philosophy in Comparative Studies

6. Graduate Minor in Comparative Cultural Studies

The academic focus of Comparative Studies is the study of culture and cultural differences; within that broad agenda, undergraduate students choose a particular "area of concentration" (subplan or "transcriptable specialization"). The six areas of concentration for Comparative Studies majors are Comparative Cultural Studies, Comparative Ethnic and American Studies, Comparative Literature, Folklore, Religious Studies, and Science Studies. Unlike many Arts and Sciences majors, the Comparative Studies major is interdisciplinary and interdepartmental, and students take approved elective courses in other departments to satisfy requirements; this will remain the case after semester conversion. Once an area of concentration is chosen, students, along with their advisers, put together the set of courses that best reflects each student's particular interests and also satisfies the requirements of that area. Comparative Studies maintains lists of courses in other departments that count for major credit in each area and provides majors with an interdepartmental course schedule each quarter. Students who are Comparative Studies majors take an active role in planning the program that best accommodates their academic goals.

The Department of Comparative Studies approached semester conversion by first of all establishing an ad hoc Committee on Semester Conversion. Its chair and the Department chair both attended the quarter-long semester conversion Curriculum Institute offered by UCAT in autumn of 2009. Subsequently, the Graduate Studies Committee, the Undergraduate Studies Committee, and the Department faculty as a whole engaged in a thorough-going examination of our degree programs and curriculum in light of semester conversion. The changes we ultimately agreed to, in a series of meetings in the Winter and Spring quarters of 2010, are minimal regarding both specific courses and whole programs. But we did use the occasion to update our graduate course listings, combining several courses as single repeatable seminars, modifying several others, and adding a small number of new courses. For example, we redesigned the 700-level "Race and Citizenship" as a repeatable 8000-level seminar, and we eliminated the 800-level "Religion and Politics" and "Religion and Sexuality" and replaced them with the 8000-level "Seminar in Religion," which will also be repeatable. And we have added new introductory courses in Trauma Studies and in Comparative Ethnic and American Studies. These updates have not changed the structure or content of the MA or PhD programs or the Graduate Minor.

Undergraduate program changes are also minimal. But the review process greatly enhanced our ability to identify solutions to problems that have arisen within the major. In particular, we have added the requirement that students must take both Comparative Studies 3990 (successor to CS 398), Approaches to Comparative Studies, and at least one Comparative Studies course at the 4000 or 5000 level before enrolling in Comparative Studies 4990 (successor to CS 598), Senior Seminar. We believe this will minimize the number of students who take 4990 before acquiring sufficient writing and analytical skills to excel in the seminar environment. The major will continue to require 12 courses (36 semester hours). We have also added several undergraduate major courses to the curriculum: several courses in religious studies (e.g., a second course on myth and ritual, a course on sacred architecture, another on religions and politics); several for comparative studies students in all areas (e.g., a course on social movements and another on community partnerships); and several new courses for science studies students (e.g., a revision of the introductory course to focus on technology and an additional introductory course in science studies and an honors version of the newly re-titled Cultures of Medicine). Each of these courses would have been proposed regardless of the conversion to semesters.

We have also added one course to the requirements for the World Literatures major, Comparative Studies 3990 (successor to CS 398), Approaches to Comparative Studies. We are convinced that this course will add an important dimension of social and cultural theory to the literary and translation theory required of students majoring in World Literatures. This will add one course to the number (currently 11) of courses required for the World Literatures major (for a new total of 12 courses, 36 semester hours).

Requirements for two of the three undergraduate minors administered by Comparative Studies are unchanged: with conversion, the American Studies and Religious Studies minors will each require 15 semester hours, or five three-credit courses (each currently requires 25 credits), and the distribution of required and elective courses will remain the same for both. The Folklore minor, which currently requires 24 credits (but in practice, five courses, and virtually always 25 credits), will be revised to require 15 credits, or five 3-credit courses, under the semester system. This minor currently requires a minimum of two courses that are specifically focused on folklore, but students are routinely advised to choose folklore-focused courses as electives (rather than, for example, more general courses on Latino history or Persian culture). The minor will continue to be fully interdisciplinary, drawing courses from eight departments in Arts and Humanities and the Social and Behavioral Sciences, but by requiring five folklore-focused courses (exceptions may still be approved by the adviser) students will be able to concentrate more fully on folklore studies.

The only other change we have made in our curriculum is to re-number our courses. Like those in many departments, our quarter course numbers accreted piecemeal over the years, and had become rather illogical. We have completely revamped our course numbering to take advantage of the four digits in the new semester numbering system, so that the first (thousands) digit refers to course level, the second refers to the position of the course within our curriculum (e.g., required, introductory, advanced, capstone), while the third digit refers to content area (religious studies, comparative literature, American studies, and so on), and the last distinguishes among courses that are at the same level, in the same position, and on the same subject matter.

So even though the resulting changes to courses and programs are minimal, the Department was able to use the semester conversion process to re-examine its curriculum, regularize its course-numbering system, and increase the rigor and coherence of its degree programs.

Rationale Statement for Religious Studies Minor

The Religious Studies minor employs an academic approach to religion, stressing its role as an important dimension of human experience in different cultural contexts. Under the quarter system the minor required 25 credit hours (five courses) selected from several departments to introduce students to various world religious traditions, to different approaches to the study of religion, and to the relationships between religion and other social and cultural domains. Under the semester system, the minor will require 15 credits (five three-credit courses) following the same structure required under the quarter system. Comparative Studies 2370, Introduction to Comparative Religion, and Comparative Studies 4972, Theory and Method in the Study of Religion, will continue to be required; two courses to be chosen from a list of several electives (e.g., “Anthropology of Religion” or “Gender, Sexuality, and Religion”); and one course focused on a specific tradition. Up to six credits will be allowed to overlap with GEC requirements.

The religious studies minor employs an academic approach to religion, stressing its role as an important dimension of human experience in different cultural contexts. A minor in religious studies consists of a minimum of 25 credit hours. All students must take Comparative Studies 270 and either 520 or 620. Two core courses must be chosen from those listed below. One additional course must be chosen from the list of courses in specific traditions ("additional courses"). Traditions from which students may choose are Abrahamic (Judaism, Christianity, Islam); Indo-Sinitic (Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism); and Indigenous/Folk/Archaic (Native American, Shinto, African). Up to 10 credit hours of overlap with the GEC is permitted.

After the coordinating advisor in the Department of Comparative Studies has approved the Minor Program Form, you should file the form with your college or school counselor. For further information about the minor program, contact the department.

Transition Policy for the Religious Studies Minor

Under the quarter system, the Religious Studies Minor requires 25 credits; under the semester system it will require 15 credits, five courses in either case. Two courses are required, Comparative Studies 2370, Introduction to Comparative Religion (the equivalent of Comp Studies 270) and Comparative Studies 4972, Theory and Method in the Study of Religion (the equivalent of Comp Studies 520). Two elective courses are chosen from a list of several comparative and interdisciplinary courses in religious studies, to include at least one in Comparative Studies, and one course is chosen from a list of elective courses focused on specific traditions. No changes have been made in the structure of the minor.

We have devised the following table to show students how the change to semesters will affect their completion of the minor:

Semester Conversion Table for Religious Studies Minor
Quarter Courses Completed*	Quarter Credit Hours Completed*	Semester Courses Needed*	Additional Semester Credit Hours Needed
0	0	5	15
1	5	4	12
2	10	3	9
3	15	2	6
4	20	1	3
5	25	0	0

* if the number of quarter hours falls between these numbers (1-4, 6-9, 11-14, etc.) each credit will be counted as 2/3 of a semester credit. So, for example, if a student has completed 3 courses totaling 13 quarter hours, the student will be considered to have completed 9 semester hours toward the minor and will need 6 additional credits (two courses). Such differences are not likely to require additional coursework.

For undergraduate minors, conversion information will be posted on the website and students will be invited to contact the department advisor for further information.

Curriculum Map for Religious Studies Minor
