Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

Program Learning Goals •

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? No

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Pre-Major

Does this Program have a Pre-Major? No

Re: American Indian Studies Minor

Dear Professor Krissek:

The CCI's Arts and Humanities 2 subcommittee met on April 27, 2011, and reviewed the semester conversion plans for the minor in American Indian Studies, an interdisciplinary program that now resides in the Diversity and Identity Studies Collective at OSU (DISCO). The conversion follows the current minor closely with no substantive change. Our committee reviewed this program at our meeting on May 18 and voted unanimously to approve it, but to ask for a few revisions before sending it on to the full CCI. I have looked over the revised submission and noted the following minor problems that can be addressed if the program is sent back for revision:

- The semester advising sheet refers to the GEC rather than GE and to 100-level rather than 1000-level courses.
- The asterisk on the note at the bottom of the left column of the advising sheet should be removed, because it makes the note appear to be a footnote, which it is not.
- The subcommittee recommended that a statement be included on the semester advising sheet explaining that elective in Global Indigenous and Comparative Ethnic Studies are not listed and must be chosen in consultation with the coordinating advisor. (A statement like this appears in the body of the proposal, but not on the advising sheet.)

Sincerely,

Dear Larry,

The Faculty Steering Committee has completed and submitted its proposal for a semester version of its interdisciplinary minor: Minor in American Indian Studies. The program was reviewed and unanimously approved by the Arts and Humanities Disciplinary Advisory Panel for Curriculum within the College of Arts and Sciences on May 11, 2011. Previously this minor was housed in ASC Interdisciplinary Programs Office, and with the re-structuring in Arts and Sciences has moved to be administratively housed in the Diversity and Identity Studies Collective (DISCO) within Arts and Humanities in the College of Arts and Sciences. Please note that since this program crosses multiple units, the first line only on the PACER chart has been completed.

Most specifically, I have highlighted the changes for the program below:

Minor in American Indian Studies: The Minor in American Indian Studies was last revised and approved by CAA on January 14, 2009. The minor is changing with minimal conversion. The program converted from 20 quarter credit hours and four courses, to 12 semester credit hours and four courses. They have included two new courses to their small list of coursework: History 2071 and History 3070H. As under quarters, students take the list of 3 required courses that are listed as "American Indian Studies Courses," and students may choose to take the fourth course in an affiliated field, with the approval of the coordinating advisor in DISCO, or take another course from the "American Indian Studies Courses" list.

We are sending this undergraduate minor forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at the Arts and Sciences Committee on Curriculum and Instruction. The courses that are specific to all of the programs are listed under multiple Book 3 Listings. If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call or email me at 292-5727 or williams.1415@osu.edu.

Thank you for your consideration of these proposals,

Professor Mitch Masters
Chair, Arts and Humanities 2 Subcommittee of CCI

Dear Professor Masters,

I am writing in support of the semester conversion plan for the interdisciplinary minor in American Indian Studies as submitted by Chad Allen, Coordinator of the American Indian Studies Program. American Indian Studies is making a few small changes to the minor. First, they are adding two courses on American Indian history that have recently been introduced by the History Department. Second, for their Global Indigenous and Comparative Ethnic Studies requirement, they have decided not to try to list in advance all possible courses that might fit that category. Instead, they will allow the Coordinating adviser of the program to determine this elective in consultation with each student. I fully support both of these changes as the first will provide more opportunities for students and the second will allow more flexibility for both students and the program.

American Indian Studies is part of the Diversity and Identity Studies Collective at OSU (DISCO), which is supported by the College of Arts and Sciences and reports to Arts and Humanities Divisional Dean, Mark Shanda. I am the Director of DISCO, which is why I am writing this letter of support. Please let me know if you need additional information.

Sincerely,

Debra A. Modellmog

American Indian Studies Minor
Semester conversion

Rationale

The Minor in American Indian Studies will undergo a direct conversion, with the addition of two courses to our list of American Indian Studies courses:

History 2071: American Indian History of the US Midwest (3), and

History 3070H: Native American History from European Contact to Removal, 1560-1820 Honors (3).

These courses have been introduced recently by the department of History to flesh out their offerings in Native American history and they meet the criteria for inclusion as central courses for the American Indian Studies Minor.

Elective approved by coordinating adviser

There are innumerable courses across the university curriculum in Global Indigenous and Comparative Ethnic Studies. Rather than attempt to list them all, the elective will be determined at the discretion of the American Indian Studies coordinating adviser in consultation with the student on a case-by-case basis. This will both streamline the advising process and maximize the flexibility of this requirement.

List of Approved Semester Courses

Anthropology 3350: Prehistoric Indians of the Ohio Valley (3)

Anthropology 3420: Regional Survey Course in Cultural Anthropology: Indians of North America (3)

Anthropology 3554: New World Prehistory: Prehistoric Indians of Eastern North America (3)

Art Education 3367: American Indian Cultural Arts Explorations (3)

Comparative Studies 3672: Native American Religions (3)

Comparative Studies 4822: Native American Identity (3)

English 4586: Studies in American Indian Literature and Culture (3)

History 2070: Introduction to Native American History (3)

History 2071: American Indian History of the US Midwest (3)

History 3070: Native American History from European Contact to Removal, 1560-1820 (3)

History 3070H: Native American History from European Contact to Removal, 1560-1820 Honors (3)

History 3071: Native American History from Removal to the Present (3)

Linguistics 2501: Introduction to American Indigenous Languages (3)

American Indian Studies is an interdisciplinary field of study that focuses on the histories, experiences, languages, arts, and cultures of peoples indigenous to the lands that now comprise the United States of America. It seeks to broaden students' understandings of the diversity and complexity of American Indian identities, communities, and nations; to make connections between Native peoples and cultures in the U.S. and Indigenous peoples and cultures across the Americas and around the globe; to provide comparative and intersectional approaches to issues of race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, class, and citizenship; and to encourage linking educational and research initiatives to community and political concerns.

The minor in American Indian Studies requires 12 credit hours of coursework. Students must choose a minimum of four courses, from at least two different academic units.

Three courses (9 credit hours) must be taken in American Indian Studies. The remaining elective course (3 credit hours) should be taken in either global Indigenous studies or comparative U.S. race/ethnicity studies.

The elective course in global Indigenous or comparative U.S. race/ethnicity studies will be approved by the coordinating adviser in consultation with the student on a case-by-case basis.

Students may include up to three credit hours of variable credit courses in independent research/fieldwork or internship experience in either AIS or global Indigenous or comparative US race/ethnicity with the approval of the AIS coordinating adviser.

American Indian Studies courses

Ohio today has an extremely diverse and dynamic American Indian population. The 2000 federal census counted 76,075 Ohioans who identified as American Indian. Ohio was where Indian Studies began as international and intertribal alliances were forged to hold back Euro-Americans, quite successfully for half a century.

The American Indian Studies (AIS) interdisciplinary minor (<http://americanindianstudies.osu.edu>) upholds traditional Native regard for a philosophy of balance, harmony, value, and respect by expanding its offerings outward from a focus on Native Ohio and the Ohio River as the heartland of the Great Lakes at the center of the continent. Matching this sweep of space is that of time. We embrace knowledge gained from diverse fields such as geology, archaeology, history, political science, folklore, law, geography, anthropology, and more. We value Native oral traditions, artifacts, and mementos as well as documents from European empires.

Students are required to take 20 hours of coursework to complete this minor. Students must choose a minimum of four courses, from at least two different academic units. Three courses must come from the "American Indian Studies" list below and one course from the "Global Indigenous and Comparative Ethnic Studies" list. Students can undertake a variety of experiential and scholarly projects within AIS ranging from community action with local Native groups to archival work in local and regional repositories.

Students may include up to five credit hours of variable credit courses such as ASC 699 Undergraduate Research and/or ASC 489 Internship Experience, with the approval of the AIS Minor Faculty Advisory Committee. Such coursework will be developed with a faculty member representing either AIS or Global Indigenous and Comparative Ethnic Studies.
