Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

- Program Learning Goals
- Students gain intermediate language proficiency (reading, speaking, writing)
 - Students attain analytical skills (understanding of grammatical structures)
 - Students gain appreciation, of how language is used in a variety of cultural contexts both performative and quotidian-folk, popular, institutional.
 - Students acquire beginning literary theory (appreciation of linguistic subtleties and aesthetic possibilities in various genres of literature past and present, religious and secular, spoken or read).

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? No

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Pre-Major

Does this Program have a Pre-Major? No

Sabra Webber, Associate Professor, NELC Conversion

DATE: May 23, 2011

Near Eastern Languages and Cultures faculty is recommending for approval its plan for conversion to semesters from quarters. The programs in the unit are our three undergraduate majors: Islamic Studies, Arabic and Hebrew; five undergraduate minors: Arabic, Hebrew, Turkish, Persian and South Asian Studies; an MA in NELC and a PhD in NELC. There are no undergraduate tracks. These are the same programs that we offered under the quarter system with minor adjustments made as we took advantage of the conversion to review all courses and programs together in order to think again about an overall vision for NELC. In the process, the changes we ultimately agreed to are minimal, but significant as we identified and remediated course lacunae, improved language progression for undergraduates, and identified new core courses for our MA and PhD students.

The Department has the following majors and minors (numbers represent Spring, 2011)

ARABIC:	MAJ: 84	MIN: 43	PERSIAN:	MIN: 12
HEBREW:	MAJ: 11	MIN: 16	SO ASIA STUDIES:	MIN: 8
ISLAMIC STUDIES:	MAJ: 11	N/A	TURKISH:	MIN: 4

Our PhD graduate program in NELC is relatively new, but we have 12 active MA students and 14 active PhD students. We expect more than half of these graduate students, mostly MA students, to finish by or before summer of 2012. Entering MA and PhD students (6) will be individually counseled from the beginning to ensure a smooth transition to semesters.

The following are issues we addressed in general for our undergraduate and graduate programs as we prepared our transition documents:

For the undergraduate programs, we:

1. Made the major programs more comparable in terms of expectations and did the same for the minor programs
2. Kept in mind that our mission includes not only language and literature, but also culture and made adjustments to be sure students could focus on the cultural dimensions of the languages they study

3. Tried to balance courses to give students the opportunity to focus on either ancient/medieval or modern periods (for example by adding a new course on contemporary Israeli and Palestinian literature) for both Hebrew and Arabic
4. Addressed the lack of interaction among the various languages by offering culture courses that bring together speakers of diverse languages
5. Made the Islamic Studies major program more broadly Islamic, thus including the large number of Muslims that live outside of the Middle East as conventionally defined
6. Assured that minor programs in Arabic, Hebrew, Persian and Turkish all require $\frac{3}{4}$ of their courses to be in the chosen language
7. For the first time, have advising sheets for all major and minor programs
8. Have appended a sample four year program to our Arabic and Hebrew major advising sheets
9. For the language courses that are part of intermediate sequences, we have continued with the 4 credit hour semesters, due to the challenges for English speakers of learning Middle Eastern languages, and in order to ensure that our students finish in four years and are competitive with students at other universities, whether in job searches or graduate education
10. Will offer Arabic 1103 intensively in the May Session as an experiment to allow some students to finish their entire GE language requirement in one academic year.

Changes specific to individual programs are addressed in the materials provided under #12 in each programs "rationale for proposed program changes" for individual program proposals both major and minor.

For the graduate programs, we:

1. Remediated our lack of core courses and at the same time remediated our lack of focus at the graduate level on academic concentrations other than language. Consequently, we addressed our students' perceived weakness in foundational theory by ensuring that students take one core course that addresses general theories of orality and literacy, and at least one course that is foundational to their theoretical specialization (literature, culture, religion).

Thus:

All graduate students are required to take NELC 5568: Studies in Orality and Literacy (cross listed with CS: 5668)

Graduate Students focusing on religious study also take CS 7370: Theorizing Religion

Graduate Students focusing on literature also take CS/NELC 7301: Theorizing Literature

Graduate Students focusing on culture also take CS 7360: Theorizing Culture

2. Adjusted the credit requirements of our graduate programs to accord with the credit hours suggested by the Graduate School.

Our MA will require 30 credit hours in courses at the 5000 level and above (typically 9 credit hours at the 5000 level, 6 at the 6000 level and 5 at the 7000 level and above taken over two years. The final semester should be left free for the writing of the MA thesis or preparation for MA examinations.

Since the MA now requires 55 credit hours, the newly implemented benchmark of 30 in semester credit hours reduces the MA by almost seven graduate credit hours, or more than two courses. Because of the higher competency among entering graduate students, we have been able to reduce required language courses at the 5000 level by half. And, core theory courses have been reduced from three to two.

The PhD will require 80 credit hours or 50 following the MA. This requires a reduction of a further 3- 9 converted semester credit hours, or one- three more courses for a reduction of 9-15 semester credit hours in total for the MA/PhD, depending on the number of credit hours MA students are allowed to carry over, from what we previously have required. We have further remedied this at the PhD level by streamlining requirements for the second Near Eastern language for students who need only reading for research. With this system, the secondary language could require as few as four courses or 12 credit hours--a product of our ability during this conversion process to clarify and better define the level of competency graduate students will need to acquire in their languages as well as in related theory and culture courses.

Transition Plan:

Many of our plans for transition are language specific and are reviewed in the program document for each major, minor or graduate program. Most advising will be conducted on an individual basis by our five language instructors for Arabic, Hebrew, Persian, Turkish and Hindi, along with our staff advisor, Stafford Noble, and the faculty semester conversion contact, Sabra Webber. We have also requested one time funding of two quarters (winter and spring 2012) and two semesters (fall and spring 2012-2013) for two graduate student advisors, principally for Arabic majors and minors. Individual meetings will be schedule for all approximately 200 majors and minors and in-class meetings will be held for all students taking their GEC/GE in a NELC language.

Individual graduate faculty will work closely with their advisees as the semester program unfurls.

- Arabic 3301: Contemporary Folklore in the Arab World (3)

12. Rationale for proposed program changes:

Under the quarter system, the Arabic minor requires 20 credits, with prerequisites of Arabic 101-104. Students then are required to take two Arabic grammar courses and either classical/medieval OR Arabic literature in translation (371 or 372).

We have maintained this structure for the most part under semesters, but have:

1. Made the numbering of the courses more consistent and indicative of a progression,
2. Made the numbers more reflective of the degrees of difficulty of courses,
3. Made the numbers more reflective of the topics of the courses,
4. Have made the semester hours required flexible (13-15 credits) depending on the choices of students to continue on with Modern Standard Arabic after 2104 or move to colloquial Arabic, which may be more useful for students, for example, getting their International Studies required language minor in Arabic.
5. Have required of pre-majors either Arabic Literature in translation (2371 or 2372) or Arabic 2241, Culture of the Contemporary Arab World in addition to Arabic 1101-1103.

In the quarter version of the Arabic minor students take four courses following 101-104. In the semester version four courses are also required, with the added stipulation that $\frac{3}{4}$ of those courses must be taught in Arabic.

13. Current (quarters-based) advising sheet: Uploaded to PACER

14. Proposed (semesters-based) advising sheet: Uploaded to PACER

15. Curriculum Map: Uploaded in PACER

16. Pre-major, Area of Interest: N/A

17. Table of Credit-Hour Equivalent: (See PACER)

18. Rationale for change in credit hours (also submitted separately):

Only the free elective credit hours have changed appreciably as we transition from quarters to semesters. The Arabic Minor requirements are now more structured to move students more efficiently through language and culture acquisition. Instead of the electives, small, specific, clusters of courses are provided in each category for the students to choose among. This formalization will ensure better achievement of learning goals as well as make course planning easier for both students and the department. Although all of our minors now will be required to take $\frac{3}{4}$ of their courses in the minor language, we allow students to finish the minor with two courses in colloquial rather than modern standard Arabic or one course in Arabic media and one in colloquial Arabic if these options will better suit their career plans or their interests. In addition, in the prerequisite, students choose to take either modern or medieval/classical Arabic literature or a course in the contemporary culture of the Arab world, according to their interests, in order to get an introduction to language in cultural context before they commit to three more Arabic language courses for the minor.

We require three 4 credit hour courses in the Arabic minor in order to ensure students can finish in four years while still getting the Arabic they need to be competitive with other U.S. universities. In moving from quarters to semesters we had to conflate four Arabic quarter courses, into three semester courses, as we conflated four quarter courses into three semester courses for all of the GE language courses. Thus, each of the first three courses of the minor are, like the three language prerequisites, 4 credit hour courses because they cover material that was previously offered in four courses (See chart below.) This way Arabic minors can finish their language sequence as early as spring of their junior year (or early if they study summers abroad).

Note: More important, this arrangement allows majors to follow their required progression of courses and finish by fall of their senior year.

TRANSITION POLICY

19. Policy statement from the chair of the department

In the quarter version of the Arabic minor students take four courses. In the semester version four are also required. The transition will require no additional coursework for any students, regardless of their statuses at the time of transition. Because a language minor depends on a progression of language courses in a particular order, we will first establish that all of those courses taught in Arabic (three Arabic prerequisites and three Arabic minor requirements) will be completed by students, optimally by the end of their junior year. The two culture courses (one a prerequisite) can be taken during the freshman and sophomore years. This policy is similar to the Arabic major policy as the most complex dimension of the language transition in each case involves the necessity to take the first six (in the major, seven) language courses in order. For the minor, no more than 15 credit hours will be required during the transition.

We will allow students to register each quarter of 2011-12 for Arabic 101 as usual. These students will then progress through the language sequence as indicated by the “Transition Plans for Foreign Language Courses” below.

SAMPLE SCENARIOS:

Students who finish 103 in the spring of 2012 will move to Arabic 1103 in fall of 2012. This course will give them a review, about 2/3 of what they studied in 103 (or three weeks at the beginning of the semester), which tends to occur anyway after a summer off. (1101 = 101+1/3 of 102 and 1102 = 2/3 of 102 and 2/3 of 103.)

Students who finish 102 in spring of 2012 will move to 1102.03 or 1102 in fall 2012. (This is the same course, but is a variable bridge course depending on whether a student needs three or four credit hours that semester.) The student again will again be doing some reviewing as part of the old 102 is in 1102. (1102 = 2/3 of 102 and 2/3 of 103).

Students who finish 101 in the spring of 2012 will take 1102.05, which is 5 credit hours, as an intensive bridge course to get them ready for Arabic 1103 in the spring of 2013. This bridge is necessary because, see above, they will lack more than three weeks of Arabic 1102 since 1101 includes 1/3 of the old Arabic 102. (1101 = 101 + 13 of 102)

Students who conclude Arabic 104 in spring 2012, the culmination of the quarters' GEC language requirement, would be able to transition smoothly into 2104 in fall, 2012, their second year of language, as quarter 104 is completed in semester 1103. (1103 = 1/3 103 + 104)

If Students have taken through Arabic 205, they may go into 3105 (literary Arabic reading I) with some, slight, catching up to do, and if they have taken 401, again they may take 3105, but with some review. Instructors for spring, 2012, Arabic 205 and 401 will be assessing their students who are minoring in Arabic and plan to carry on with modern standard Arabic rather than switching to colloquial* to proactively advise these students and cover any problems that might potentially arise.

The Arabic minor students from 3105 would then all segue into 4106 (literary Arabic reading II) in the spring of 2013, most likely spring of their junior year. At that point they will have completed their language requirements for the Arabic minor.

*In the case of the Arabic minor, students could also segue from 2104 or 205 or 401 into 4111, colloquial Arabic, or 4120, media Arabic instead of into 3105.
