Program Learning Goals

Note: these are required for all undergraduate degree programs and majors now, and will be required for all graduate and professional degree programs in 2012. Nonetheless, all programs are encouraged to complete these now.

Program Learning Goals

- Students develop an understanding of the ways in which ideas about sexuality are normalized within specific discourses and institutions, which consequently produce non-normative sexual "others" who bear the burden of stigma and marginalization.
- Students develop extensive appreciation of and sensitivity to some of the most vexing and difficult issues of our contemporary global world related to the subject of sexuality.
- Students develop realistic ideas about how to implement their sexuality studies knowledge, skills, and values in occupational or educational pursuits and a variety of settings.
- Students recognize analytical frameworks that two or more disciplines bring to the study of sexuality and articulate the relationships between those frameworks.
- Students analyze critically in discussion and in writing some of the numerous issues that cohere around the study of sexuality.
- Students use methodological and analytic tools related to the study of sexuality in academic and/or workplace settings.

Assessment

Assessment plan includes student learning goals, how those goals are evaluated, and how the information collected is used to improve student learning. An assessment plan is required for undergraduate majors and degrees. Graduate and professional degree programs are encouraged to complete this now, but will not be required to do so until 2012.

Is this a degree program (undergraduate, graduate, or professional) or major proposal? Yes

Does the degree program or major have an assessment plan on file with the university Office of Academic Affairs? Yes

Summarize how the program's current quarter-based assessment practices will be modified, if necessary, to fit the semester calendar.

The same assessment practices will work well in the semester system.

Program Specializations/Sub-Plans

If you do not specify a program specialization/sub-plan it will be assumed you are submitting this program for all program specializations/sub-plans.

Pre-Major

Does this Program have a Pre-Major? No

Lawrence Krissek, Professor of Earth Sciences
Faculty Chair, Committee on Curriculum and Instruc
College of Arts and Sciences

Dear Larry,

The Faculty Steering Committee has completed and submitted its proposal for a semester version of its interdisciplinary programs: GIS in Sexuality Studies, Major in Sexuality Studies, and Minor in Sexuality Studies. The programs were reviewed and approved by the Arts and Humanities Disciplinary Advisory Panel for Curriculum within the College of Arts and Sciences on June 1, 2011. Please note that since these programs cross multiple units, only the first line on the PACER chart has been completed, and we have included a Book 3 Listing request for Sexuality Studies with the semester conversion proposal. The programs which were previously housed in the Office of Interdisciplinary Studies in ASC under quarters, will now be administratively housed in the Office of Diversity and Identity Studies Collective, "DISCO," and heavily contributed to by Women's Studies, Comparative Studies, Sociology, Social Work, and Art Education. The Director of DISCO, Debra Modellmog, and the Co-Director of Sexuality Studies, Professor Mollie Blackburn serve as the Co-Directors for the Sexuality Studies program and share academic advising with a full time GA and part-time staff member. Please note that the Sexuality Studies BA filed an Assessment Plan at the February 2011 CAA meeting with its full proposal.

Most specifically, I have highlighted the small changes for the programs below:

BA in Sexuality Studies: The BA in Sexuality Studies was established and approved by CAA on February 23, 2011. There were no revisions to the program, and in fact, when the major was submitted in February, the semester version was also sent forward. The proposal here is the semester version from February. The program converted from 50 quarter credit hours to 30 semester credit hours and maintained the requirement of two Core Cluster Courses: Comparative Studies/EDU PAES 2214 (214) and a choice of one required GLBT-focused course from the same list under semesters as under quarters, with one additional choice of Social Work 5501. The Focus Area Category requirement of three courses under quarters remains the same under semesters with the inclusion of a course from Art Education in the GLBT category. The Sexuality Studies Electives Category remains the same with 25 quarter credit hours translating to 15, and the requirement of 200-level course work translating to 3000-level coursework. The major, implemented for this upcoming Fall 2011 will have students who transition to semesters, and the transition plan will count any quarter course on the semester version of the proposal.

Minor in Sexuality Studies: The Minor in Sexuality Studies was established and approved by CAA on April 22, 2009. There were no major revisions to the program. The program converted from 20 quarter credit hours to 12 semester credit hours and maintained the requirement of two Central Courses. The selection lists of the Central Courses and the Elective Courses have been modified as some courses have "gone away" in semesters and some courses have remained.

The minor required four courses on the quarter system, and will translate to four courses on the semester system. Quarter courses will be applied toward the minor in semesters.

Graduate Interdisciplinary Specialization in Sexuality Studies: The GIS in Sexuality Studies was established and approved by CAA previous to 2006 as there are no records in ASC that indicate approval afterwards. There were no major revisions to the program. The program converted from 20 quarter credit hours to 12 semester credit hours and maintained the requirement that three-quarters (three of the four classes) must be taken outside the student's home unit. The selection list of courses has been modified with the inclusion of five new semester courses. Quarter courses will be applied toward the minor in semesters.

We are sending these undergraduate programs forward for review and approval in the next stage of curricular review at the Arts and Sciences Committee on Curriculum and Instruction. The courses that are specific to all of the programs are listed under multiple Book 3 Listings. If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to call or email me at 292-5727 or williams.1415@osu.edu.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Valarie Williams, M.F.A., Ph.D.

Current Program Name: Interdisciplinary Major in Sexuality Studies

Program Learning Goals:

The general goal of the major is to enable students to perceive and examine critically the ways that sexuality, as a key concept and lived experience, shapes the understanding and constitution of individuals and societies.

Students will emerge from the major with:

- An understanding of the ways in which ideas about sexuality are normalized within specific discourses and institutions, which consequently produce non-normative sexual “others” who bear the burden of stigma and marginalization. (This is goal 1 on the curriculum map.)
- Extensive appreciation of and sensitivity to some of the most vexing and difficult issues of our contemporary global world related to the subject of sexuality. (This is goal 2 on the curriculum map.)
- Realistic ideas about how to implement their sexuality studies knowledge, skills, and values in occupational or educational pursuits and a variety of settings. (This is goal 3 on the curriculum map.)

Students who major in Sexuality Studies will be able to:

- Recognize analytical frameworks that two or more disciplines bring to the study of sexuality and articulate the relationships between those frameworks. (This is goal 4 on the curriculum map.)
- Analyze critically in discussion and in writing some of the numerous issues that cohere around the study of sexuality. (This is goal 5 on the curriculum map.)
- Use methodological and analytic tools related to the study of sexuality in academic and/or workplace settings. (This is goal 6 on the curriculum map.)

Assessment Plan:

The program is structured so as to engage students in a range of interdisciplinary approaches to the study of human sexuality as well as in the study of social differences framed in terms of sexual and gender orientation. Thus, students’ performance in their course work will be the first means used to assess whether they are getting a sense of the interdisciplinary nature of the study of sexuality and the diversity of lived sexual experience. This course work must include CS/PAES 214, which covers the interdisciplinary range of Sexuality Studies; and 5 hours of GLBT focus. Successful students must earn a 2.0 or better in the 50 hours of the program and a minimum of a C- for any individual course contributing to the major. Moreover, a minimum grade of a C in CS/PAES 214 (prerequisite) is also required.

Further evidence that students can recognize and distinguish various frameworks for understanding human sexuality will be found by annually evaluating a sampling of papers written by majors in upper-level Sexuality Studies elective courses (see list of elective courses in VI below). These papers will also be used as a source for assessing student ability to analyze critically some of the important issues that cohere around the study of sexuality. Sample papers will be evaluated using a rubric that will distinguish minimal aspirational criteria and ideal criteria. The Sexuality Studies Oversight Committee will both create and employ the rubric to determine how well students have acquired a grasp of the different analytic frameworks, perspectives, and issues of the field.

To assess students on their ability to use methodological and analytic tools related to the study of sexuality in academic and/or workplace settings, majors will be highly encouraged either to do an internship or write a thesis. Majors intending to enter the workforce in the field of sexuality studies will be advised to work as an intern at an appropriate business, organization, or school. Those intending to pursue a graduate degree in the field of sexuality studies will be advised to write a thesis. Successful students must perform satisfactorily (as indicated by an S in an independent study with a faculty member in the field and, if relevant, a report from the director of the internship) in these educational experiences.

Program Rationale:

Sexuality Studies is an interdisciplinary field devoted to the analysis of human sexuality. Because the study of sexuality is integral to the study of the human sciences, a wide array of critical lenses have been developed across disciplines and even outside the university for investigating sexual practices, behaviors, expressions, identities, and representations. Building on the academic and extra-academic knowledge that has evolved over many years, Sexuality Studies explores the historical, political, biological, cultural, sociological, educational, legal, health, aesthetic, and psychological contexts of human sexuality. It pays particular attention to processes and practices of normalization in different cultures and times through which certain sexual behaviors, expressions, or identities are esteemed and others devalued. It also investigates the ways in which sexuality is shaped by other social differences such as race, gender, class, dis/ability, religion, nationality, and ethnicity.

Sexuality Studies programs, which consolidate this interdisciplinary activity in the form of unified academic majors and minors, have existed at universities across the United States and internationally for over 40 years (one of the first such programs was the highly respected Department of Sexuality Studies at San Francisco State, which was started in the 1970s). The Sexuality Studies program at Ohio State was launched in 2002, when the interdisciplinary minor first became available to students. In only seven years, the minor has been selected by over 200 students, and has grown from seven departments offering 12 courses to more than 10 departments offering 17 “core” courses and a number of electives. In addition, a Graduate Interdisciplinary Specialization in Sexuality Studies was introduced in 2006, with over 20 students signing up for this option in three years. Sexuality Studies has been a hit at Ohio State in part because of the range of academic approaches it accommodates but also because of the variety of career opportunities available to those who pursue it, for example, in education, counseling, health services, social work, political activism, legal services, criminology, and business. In addition, the Sexuality Studies minor prepares students for graduate study in the area or in cognate areas such as psychology, women’s studies, or family counseling. The major has been undergoing review and has been approved at all levels besides the Board of Regents. Their review will be this summer and the final implementation of the major, we expect, will begin this autumn. The purpose of the major is to provide a structured, coherent, interdisciplinary program for the study of sexuality by using and further encouraging the strengths of current resources and departments at Ohio State.

Credit Hour Requirements:

Current Minimum: 50 hours

Proposed Minimum: 30 hours

Rationale: The major in Sexuality Studies will undergo a direct conversion, with the change of one rule and the addition of three courses to our list of electives.

Under the quarter system, we had a rule that stated, “No more than ten credit hours of course work at the 300-level or below may count toward the focus area, and no more than five credit hours of electives can be taken at the 200 level.” Although this would neatly translate to “No more than six credit hours of course work at the 3000-level or below may count toward the focus area, and no more than three credit hours of electives can be taken at the 2000 level,” such a neat translation is impossible to implement since some of the courses that were at the 500 level on the quarter system have been changed by their departments to 3000 and 2000 levels on the semester system. Such a translation would result in our losing at least two of our nine focus areas. Alternatively, we propose that in the semester system the rule be: “No more than 3 hours at the 2000-level can count toward the focus area, and at least 9 of the 15 hours of electives must be at the 3000-level or above.”

The additional courses are:

1. Education: Physical Activity and Educational Services 5270: Love, Sex, and Relationships (3)
2. Social Work 5501: Clinical Social Work Practice with GLBTQ Individuals, Couples, and Families (3)
3. Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies 4405: Race and Sexuality (3)

Sexuality Studies 5620 has recently been approved by the relevant curricular committees, and will be submitted for semester conversion once we have a Book 3 listing for Sexuality

Studies. Social Work 5501 was changed during the semester conversion from a graduate course to a U/G course, so it can now apply toward our Major. WGSS 4405 was added by the department during their semester conversion, and its focus makes it appropriate for the Sexuality Studies Major.

Sexuality Studies is an interdisciplinary field devoted to the analysis of human sexuality. It also investigates the ways in which sexuality is shaped by other social differences such as race, gender, class, dis/ability, religion, nationality, and ethnicity.

This major requires at least 30 credit hours, six hours of which must be a core cluster consisting of Comparative Studies/PAES 214: Introduction to Sexuality Studies and a course with a GLBTQ focus. Of the remaining 24 hours of course work, nine will constitute a focus area selected from one of nine tracks (see below) or from a topic approved by one of the Directors. The remaining 15 hours will be Sexuality Studies electives. A thesis or academic internship is highly recommended; thus, three hours of 6783H, 5693, or 4189 can count toward the electives or toward the focus area.

No more than 3 hours at the 2000 level can count toward the focus area, and at least 9 of the 15 hours of electives must be at the 3000-level or above. Students and faculty may petition the Directors to count courses other than those listed here to fulfill the requirements of the major. To be approved, at least 50% of the course content must address human sexuality. After one of the Directors for the Sexuality Studies Major has approved the student's Major Program Form, the student must file the form with the Arts and Sciences Advising Office. For further information, contact one of the Directors listed above.

Core Cluster (6 hours)

Comparative Studies/EDU PAES 2214: Introduction to Sexuality Studies (3 hr.); and

One GLBT-focused course chosen from the following list or an approved GLBT elective:

- Art Education 4835: Visual Representations of LGBT Subjects (3 hr.)
- English/Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies 2282: Introduction to Queer Studies (3 hr.)
- English 4580: Special Topics in GLBT Literatures and Cultures (3 hr.)

Focus Area (9 hr.; no more than 3 hr. at 2000 level)

Students choose one of nine tracks (see below) that align the Major with their academic and career interests. If none of the nine suits a student's needs, then he/she may construct an alternative track in consultation with the approval of one of the Directors. Many of the Focus Areas include more than 9 hours to show the range of courses from which a student might choose. In addition, other approved courses can be added by the Directors on a case-by-case basis. If a student is doing a thesis or internship in the focus area, then three hours of 6783H, 5693, or 4189 can count toward it.

The remaining 25 hours will be Sexuality Studies electives. A thesis or academic internship is highly recommended; thus, five hours of 783, 693, or 489 can count toward the electives or toward the focus area.

No more than 10 credit hours of course work at the 300 level or below may count toward the focus area, and no more than five credit hours of electives can be taken at the 200 level. Students and faculty may petition the Directors to count courses other than those listed here to fulfill the requirements of the major. To be approved, at least 50% of the course content must address human sexuality. After one of the Directors for the Sexuality Studies Major has approved the student's Major Program Form, the student must file the form with the Arts and Sciences Advising Office. For further information, contact one of the Directors listed above.

If a student is doing a thesis or internship in the focus area, then five hours of 783, 693, or 489 can count toward it.

Dear Randy:

I am writing to request a new Book 3 listing for Sexuality Studies. Sexuality Studies Book 3 offerings will be part of the newly approved interdisciplinary major and established Minor and GIS in "Sexuality Studies." The new major is administratively housed in the office of Diversity and Identity Studies Collective, "DISCO," and heavily contributed to by Women's Studies, Comparative Studies, Sociology, Social Work, and selected Book 3 listings from the College of Education and Human Ecology.

The Director of DISCO, Debra Modellmog, and the Co-Director of Sexuality Studies, Professor Mollie Blackburn, have both identified several courses that need to be moved from an ASC listing to a new Book 3 Listing in Sexuality Studies. Therefore, DISCO, who serves as the administrative home for the BA in Sexuality Studies, is requesting a Book 3 listing so that we may move the core courses to a new Book 3 Listing.

Summer 2012 will be the first offering of the BA in Sexuality Studies under semesters, and we would like to ask that the Book 3 Listing be in place at this time. We will plan to move the courses this fall once semester conversion is completed. By creating a separate Book 3 listing and making these courses permanent offerings we can increase awareness of these courses and institutionalize the Sexuality Studies program to ensure future success.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,
