Dear Deborah,

That is correct. This is a concurrence to offer Pol. Sci. 3780 as a regular non-GE course.

Dear Professor Craigmile,

In your exchanges with Bear Braumoeller regarding his proposed visualization course, Political Science 3780, you had said:

A GE in data analysis has to have significant components in Statistics and Probability. We believe that this is not the case here — the majority of the course is in visualization, with small components on statistics and probability. As such we do not think the course should be approved as a GE course. Indeed, we would suggest that the course adds a GE in Data Analysis as a prerequisite.

To reiterate, we certainly have no problem with this being a new course in visualization, just not a GE in Data Analysis.

May I consider this to be a concurrence with Political Science's proposal to offer #3780 as a regular non-GE course?
