History 3620 Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender History in the United States, 1940-2003

This course offers an overview of LGBT culture and history in the United States from 1940 to 2003. We will use a variety of historical and literary sources, including films and sound clips, to examine changes in lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered lives and experiences during the last half of the twentieth century. The course will encourage students to think about intersections of race, sexuality, and class, and how these categories have affected sexual minority communities. The course will also explore the impact that sexual minority communities have had on the law and culture in the United States since World War II.

Student Responsibilities:

Attendance and Preparation

Attendance is a critical requirement. Students who cannot avoid missing a class must notify me ahead of time and provide a 1-2 page write-up of the readings for that day as a make-up assignment. The write-up will be due two weeks from the original absence. Missing more than three classes will affect the participation section of the final course grade. Students will also be responsible for reading the assigned texts and bringing digital or printed versions of assigned materials to each week's class.

Discussion Questions/Comments

All students must sign up for three class meetings during the semester where they will be responsible for posting a discussion question on the readings by noon the day before class. All students will be responsible for reading their peers' questions before class.

Assignments

Students will be required to write two five-page analytical papers that will be due on Oct 1 and Nov. 19. The papers should engage several (at least three) of the course readings in their analysis. The papers must be detailed and use a standard footnote documentation style. All papers are due at the beginning of class and will be penalized a half letter grade for each class meeting they are late. There will also be an in-class midterm exam on Oct 22 and a final exam during finals week.

Course Objectives/Learning Outcomes

History courses develop students' knowledge of how past events influence today's society and help them understand how humans view themselves.

1. Students acquire a perspective on history and an understanding of the factors that shape human activity.

2. Students display knowledge about the origins and nature of contemporary issues and develop a foundation for future comparative understanding.

3. Students think, speak, and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

This course fulfills the following GE requirements: Historical Study. It does count toward the history major.

Historical Study

Goals: Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- 1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
- 2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
- 3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Rationale for fulfilling the GE Learning Outcomes for Historical Study:

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes in Historical Study: History courses develop students' knowledge of how past events influence today's society and help them understand how humans view themselves through the following ways:

- Critically examine theories of history, and historical methodologies
 In this course students will watch and discuss films in conjunction with reading primary and secondary sources that provide historical and critical contexts for understanding films as historical sources.
- 2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on specific regions, time periods and themes of the human past.

Students will critically assess the extent to which popular understanding of medicine, health, and healing as portrayed in film corresponds to actual practices of medicine and medical research at the times the films were made.

3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine social, political, economic, military, gender, religious, ecological, and ethnic/racial/national movements in a wider socio- cultural context.

The course will explore how, in addition to the deliberate choices of plot-lines, locations and character development, films reveal a great deal about what was taken for granted at the time of each film's production: gender and race relations, physicians' paternalism and patients' autonomy, medical technology and expectations for care and cure; ethical and professional norms for medical research and decision making in patient care

4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper comparing distinct historical moments, social movements and their effects

The assigned papers direct students to assessing how films express both cultural ideals and cultural anxieties about medicine within the constraints of "literary" genres: drama, horror, comedy, romance, tragedy and thriller. The final paper involves comparison across time and genre.

This course fulfills the following GE requirements: Diversity / Social.

Goals:

Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Social Diversity in the United States - Expected Learning Outcomes:

- 1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
- 2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

Rationale for fulfilling the GE Learning Outcomes for Social Diversity in the United States:

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by:

1. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and inclass assignments that will help students understand how the categories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation have shaped peoples' identities and the distribution of power and resources in the U.S. and elsewhere. The course will require students to ask how intersecting categories, including race, class, gender, citizenship, and religious identity have affected LGBT experiences and politics in the period from 1940 to 2003. They will be asked to compare African American and Caucasian butch-femme lesbian communities in the 1950s, and to analyze the ways that racial segregation affected pre-1970s lesbian spaces; to read primary documents from lesbian feminists and gay liberationists of color, who developed an intersectional politics in reaction to racism in white dominated liberation movements; to ask how class affected the ability of LGBT individuals living underground lives in the 1950s and 1960s to remain undiscovered; and to study primary documents from various LGBT religious movements, from 1964 to 1980.

3. Describe theories of racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious formation on exams and written assignments.

Students will be asked throughout the class to think of the formation of sexual, racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious identity as a shifting and historically specific process. For example, we will look at the rearticulations of Judaism by Jewish lesbian feminists in the 1970s.

4. Critically examine theories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation

The course will require the students to think critically about different ways of perceiving race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation, and their impact on how we read LGBT history. Many of the readings, while historical in nature, ask the students to engage with alternative theoretical perspectives. For example, influenced by the work of Michel Foucault, Allan Berube's classic work on lesbians and gay men in World War Two argues that changes in institutional concepts of sexual identity had complex and unintended effects on the transformation of underground lesbian and gay communities and individual sexual identity formation in wartime culture in the United States.

5. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation.

Students in the course will compare contemporary LGBT political movements with historical ones, looking specifically at discussions within these movements of race, gender, class, religion, and nation. Examples include: discussions of transgender experiences and rights in gay and lesbian political movements of the 1950s, 1970s, and the present; the various influences of feminist thought and critical race theory on lesbian politics; and differences between radical gay liberationist politics of the early 1970s and contemporary mainstream LGBT rights movements, in terms of their respective notions of sexual citizenship.

5. Access and critically examine movements framed by race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and/or nation in a wider socio-cultural context.

Throughout the course, students will learn about and critically evaluate LGBT social and political movements in terms of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation and situate them in the larger historical context of postwar U.S. history. For example, historical materials on the lives of African American gay men in the 1950s will enable the students to ask how segregation affected gay men of color in the postwar era.

5. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper comparing distinct moments of ethnic, racial, nationalist, gender, class, and/or religious mobilization or social movements and their effects.

The students will be asked to write two 5-7 page papers in which they will be asked to use a combination of primary and secondary sources to analyze the ways that categories of race, gender, class, sexuality, ethnicity, religion, and nation have intersectionally operated to impact LGBT lives in the period from 1940 to 2003.

Tuesday 11/19:

SECOND PAPER DUE

This class will cover the scientific history of AIDS, including the first outbreaks of the new disease, the initial attitude of the scientific community in the U.S. toward the virus, the breakthroughs in the United States and France that led to the isolation and identification of the HIV virus, and the response, and lack of response, to the epidemic on the part of the United States government.

Assigned readings:

- Randy Shilts, And The Band Played On: Politics, People, and the Aids Epidemic, pgs. 11-33, 80-92, 234-241, 263-277, 450-456, 486-503

- Allan Berube, "The History of Gay Bathhouses," in Policing Public Sex

Thursday 11/21:

This class will cover the impact of the HIV virus on gay and lesbian communities. Topics will include: discrimination and social condemnation faced by AIDS patients; controversies in gay and lesbian communities over HIV and AIDS; legal problems faced by persons with AIDS; early activism demanding a larger government response to the virus and the subsequent founding of ACT UP in New York City; changes in social attitudes towards AIDS as it became seen as a disease that affected children; the experiences of gay fathers and their children dealing with the fear of AIDS; and the development of cooperation between lesbian and gay male communities in the struggle against HIV/AIDS.

Assigned readings:

- Brett C. Stockdill, Activism Against AIDS: At the Intersections of Sexuality, Race, Gender, and Class, pgs. 57-81

- Mary Louise Adams, "All That Rubber, All That Talk: Lesbians and Safer Sex," and Deborah Stone," A Selfish Kind of Giving," from Aids: The Women

- Richard Goldstein, "The Implicated and the Immune: Responses to AIDS in the Arts and Popular Culture"

Tuesday 11/26:

This class will look at gay and lesbian legal activism from 1960 to 2003. Students will be introduced to the movement to overturn sodomy laws in the United States and will examine landmark cases in this legal battle, including Bowers v Hardwick and Lawrence v Texas. Also included will be the legal struggles against employment and housing discrimination, the fight to legalize same-sex marriage, and the battle to end the ban on lesbians and gay men in the military.

Assigned readings:

- Joyce Murdoch and Deb Price, Courting Justice: Gay Men and Lesbians v. The Supreme Court, pgs., 27-51, 163-187, 213-236, 311-354

Thursday 11/28 - Thanksgiving

Tuesday 12/3: Class Wrap-up

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://sja.osu.edu/page.asp?id=1).

All students must be officially enrolled in the course by the end of the second full week of the quarter. No requests to add the course will be approved by the Chair after that time. Enrolling officially and on time is solely the responsibility of the student.

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu

MEMORANDUM

TO: Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee (ASCC) FROM: Paula Baker, Chair, Undergraduate Teaching Committee, Department of History RE: Assessment Plan for proposed GE courses: Historical Study Category, Social Diversity in the U.S., and Diversity: Global Studies

Assessment Goals and Objectives

1. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for all History courses might be summarized as follows:

Historical Study GE Requirements: Goals:

Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- 1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
- 2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
- 3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Goals of the courses that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes:

History courses develop students' recognition of how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition through the following ways:

- 1. Critically examine theories of history, and historical methodologies
- 2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on specific regions, time periods and themes of the human past.
- 3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine social, political, economic, military, gender, religious, ecological, and ethnic/racial/national movements in a wider socio- cultural context.
- 4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct historical moments, social movements and their effects

2. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Social Diversity in the U.S. might be summarized as follows:

Social Diversity GE Requirements: Goals:

Courses in social diversity will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

- 1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
- 2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

- 1. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand how the categories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation have shaped peoples' identities and the distribution of power and resources in the U.S. and elsewhere
- 2. Describe theories of racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious formation on exams and written assignments.
- 3. Critically examine theories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation
- 4. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation.
- 5. Access and critically examine movements framed by race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and/or nation in a wider socio-cultural context.
- 6. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments of ethnic, racial, nationalist, gender, class, and/or religious mobilization or social movements and their effects.

3. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Diversity: Global Studies might be summarized as follows:

Global Studies GE Requirements: Goals:

Courses in Diversity – Global Studies will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.

2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

- 1. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students critically examine the political, economic, social, cultural and philosophical development in the World.
- 2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on the differences and similarities between cultures and peoples.
- 3. Access and critically examine ethnically, nationally or religiously framed movements in a wider socio-cultural and global context.
- 4. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments in human history and how they shaped the world in the past and today.
- 5. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand the complexity of debates over international issues. They will describe theories of international issues on exams and written assignments.
- 6. Students will understand the roots and structures of today's globalized world.

II. Methods

An assessment of whether these objectives are met is effectively carried out by an examination of the work students are actually required to do for the course. Contributions in class discussions will be considered, but weighted more lightly, given the tendency for more confident students to contribute more to such discussions. Paper and exams will provide an understanding of students' abilities to think historically and to engage in analysis. This can be gauged by their responses to specific exam questions—asking students to provide a perspective on history and relate that perspective to an understanding of the factors that shape human activity. Thus, exams for Historical Study courses will have at least one question that requires students to provide a perspective on the factors that shaped an event or theory. Similarly, for courses that include Diversity in the U.S. GE requirements, we will have at least one question that requires students to provide a description of the roles of categories such as race, gender, class, ethnicity and religion and how those roles have helped shape either their perspective or the country's perspective on diversity. For courses that include Diversity: Global Studies, we will ask one question that requires students to provide an understanding of some combination of political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical differences in or among the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S. In this way, we hope to measure the courses (and the students') progress toward the multiple objectives of the GE. In this way we should be able to ascertain whether they are acquiring the desired skills and not simply learning (and regurgitating) specific information.

Summary of Data:

A committee, appointed by the UTC Chair, will be asked to evaluate a sample of questions and papers, and to gauge how well the goals of the course seem reflected in them. Assessment of Historical Study, Social Diversity, and Diversity: Global Issues from the GE goals will be carried out primarily through the evaluation of formal graded assignments and ungraded in-class assignments. The committee will rank the assignments across a four-category scale that captures students' mastery of the GE goals. Students will complete an informal feedback survey halfway through the semester to assess their own performance, the pace of the class, and the instructor's effectiveness. A brief summary report will be written by the UTC Chair, and that, as well as the sampled questions themselves, will be made available to the instructor and to the Chair of the department. We intend to insure that the proposed courses adequately articulate these goals, teach toward them, test for them, and help students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

Curricular Map that shows how, and at what level, the program's courses facilitate students' attainment of History learning goals.
