HIST 3214: WOMEN, GENDER, AND SEXUALITY IN THE HISTORY OF CHRISTIANITY

Instructor: David Brakke, Professor of History
Dulles Hall 230 brakke.2@osu.edu
Office hours: XXX

Course Description

What roles did women play in the Christian churches of the first five hundred years? How did early Christians understand the significance of gender, especially femininity, in their thought and practice? This course will explore these questions by studying the evidence for women's participation in ancient Christian groups, the ways in which women were portrayed in early Christian literature, and the functions of gender (femininity and, to a lesser extent, masculinity) in Christian discourse. We will include some consideration of women and gender in ancient Judaism, "paganism," and ancient society in general. Approximately the first half of the semester will be devoted to writings in the New Testament, but then we will turn to the early church, including Gnosticism, accounts of female martyrs and holy women, and patristic writings on Eve, women, and gender roles.

Course Goal and Learning Outcomes

This course fulfills the Historical Study and Diversity: Global Studies requirements in General Education

Historical Study

Goals: Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Rationale for fulfilling the GE Learning Outcomes for Historical Study:

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes in Historical Study: This course will develop students' knowledge of how past events influence today's society and help them understand how humans view themselves through the following ways:

1. Critically examine theories of history and historical methodologies: in this case, the differences among "women's studies," "gender studies," and "sexuality studies."
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on a specific region, time period and theme of the human past: the ancient Mediterranean, late antiquity, and women and gender. They will assess how scholars have understood the changing roles of women and understandings of women in the Greco-Roman world from the first century B.C.E. through the fifth century C.E.
3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine gender and religious movements in a wider socio- cultural context. They will set Christian ideas about women and gender within the larger context of the Greco-Roman world.
4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in two papers and two exams, comparing distinct social movements and their effects. For example, one paper will examine differing views about femininity and the divine among Jewish, Christian, and "pagan" authors.

Diversity / Global Studies

Goals: Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

Rationale for fulfilling the GE Learning Outcomes for Global Studies:

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes in Global Studies: This course help students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizen:

1. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students critically examine the religious and cultural development in the World. Readings will trace the development of Christian ideas about gender over a period of four centuries.
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on the differences and similarities between cultures and peoples. Readings will include debates over stability and change in concepts like masculinity and femininity across times and cultures.
3. Access and critically examine religiously framed movements in a wider socio-cultural and global context.
4. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand the complexity of debates over cross-cultural understandings of gender. They will describe theories of cross-cultural issues on exams and written assignments: for example, is gender a matter of biology, of culture, or both?
5. Students will understand the roots and structures of today's globalized world and its diverse religious movements.

III. Women, Gender, and Authority in the Churches before Constantine

How did women exercise authority in Christian churches in the first three centuries? We will consider the evidence for women holding church offices and functioning as prophets. We will find that in a persecuted church women could gain special authority as confessors or martyrs, but accounts of women martyrs are strongly affected by gendered imagery.

RE: Assessment Plan for proposed GE courses: Historical Study Category, Social Diversity in the U.S., and Diversity: Global Studies

Assessment Goals and Objectives

1. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for all History courses might be summarized as follows:

Historical Study GE Requirements:

Goals:

Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Goals of the courses that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes:

History courses develop students' recognition of how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition through the following ways:

1. Critically examine theories of history, and historical methodologies
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on specific regions, time periods and themes of the human past.
3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine social, political, economic, military, gender, religious, ecological, and ethnic/racial/national movements in a wider socio- cultural context.
4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct historical moments, social movements and their effects

2. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Social Diversity in the U.S. might be summarized as follows:

Social Diversity GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in social diversity will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand how the categories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation have shaped peoples' identities and the distribution of power and resources in the U.S. and elsewhere
 2. Describe theories of racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious formation on exams and written assignments.
 3. Critically examine theories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation
 4. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation.
 5. Access and critically examine movements framed by race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and/or nation in a wider socio-cultural context.
 6. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments of ethnic, racial, nationalist, gender, class, and/or religious mobilization or social movements and their effects.
3. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Diversity: Global Studies might be summarized as follows:

Global Studies GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in Diversity – Global Studies will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students critically examine the political, economic, social, cultural and philosophical development in the World.
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on the differences and similarities between cultures and peoples.
3. Access and critically examine ethnically, nationally or religiously framed movements in a wider socio-cultural and global context.
4. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments in human history and how they shaped the world in the past and today.
5. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand the complexity of debates over international issues. They will describe theories of international issues on exams and written assignments.
6. Students will understand the roots and structures of today's globalized world.

II. Methods

An assessment of whether these objectives are met is effectively carried out by an examination of the work students are actually required to do for the course. Contributions in class discussions will be considered, but weighted more lightly, given the tendency for more confident students to contribute more to such discussions. Paper and exams will provide an understanding of students' abilities to think historically and to engage in analysis. This can be gauged by their responses to specific exam questions—asking students to provide a perspective on history and relate that perspective to an understanding of the factors that shape human activity. Thus, exams for Historical Study courses will have at least one question that requires students to provide a perspective on the factors that shaped an event or theory. Similarly, for courses that include Diversity in the U.S. GE requirements, we will have at least one question that requires students to provide a description of the roles of categories such as race, gender, class, ethnicity and religion and how those roles have helped shape either their perspective or the country's perspective on diversity. For courses that include Diversity: Global Studies, we will ask one question that requires students to provide an understanding of some combination of political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical differences in or among the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S. In this way, we hope to measure the courses (and the students') progress toward the multiple objectives of the GE. In this way we should be able to ascertain whether they are acquiring the desired skills and not simply learning (and regurgitating) specific information.

Summary of Data:

A committee, appointed by the UTC Chair, will be asked to evaluate a sample of questions and papers, and to gauge how well the goals of the course seem reflected in them. Assessment of Historical Study, Social Diversity, and Diversity: Global Issues from the GE goals will be carried out primarily through the evaluation of formal graded assignments and ungraded in-class assignments. The committee will rank the assignments across a four-category scale that captures students' mastery of the GE goals. Students will complete an informal feedback survey halfway through the semester to assess their own performance, the pace of the class, and the instructor's effectiveness. A brief summary report will be written by the UTC Chair, and that, as well as the sampled questions themselves, will be made available to the instructor and to the Chair of the department. We intend to insure that the proposed courses adequately articulate these goals, teach toward them, test for them, and help students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

Dear Professor Baker,

On behalf of Sexuality Studies, I do not see any conflict at all with this course. The course does not deal with sexuality or sexuality studies, except in so far as such discussions might arise from the examinations of women and gender. The course is focused primarily on gender and women. I am, therefore, happy to grant concurrence on behalf of Sexuality Studies, but assume the course is also being vetted by the Department of Women's, Gender & Sexuality Studies.
