Hi Maggie,

I checked with Clare Simmons, our Director of Undergraduate Studies, and Jared Gardner, convener of our Popular Culture area, and they agree that we can give concurrence on this course.

Thanks for checking with us. And good luck with the course!

My best,

Debra

Subject: Concurrence

Dear Ryan and Debra,

I recently proposed the attached course as a 1 credit Freshman seminar to be offered next year in the Arts & Sciences Freshman Seminar rubric. The committee asked for a few tweaks (which I already made on the attached version of the syllabus), and also that I formally include concurrence from both of your units (English b/c of the Popular Culture minor--incidentally, I already shared a draft of the syllabus with Jared while I was making it, b/c it comes closest in content to courses he teaches and he has been nudging me to create a complete bande dessinée course instead of teaching comics within other French studies rubrics, but that's another issue--all just to say that he's aware of this proposed Freshman seminar!). I'm supposed to resubmit "by mid-May", so if you are able to send concurrence quickly that would be helpful. I have never proposed a new course at OSU--they tell me that I'm supposed to tell you that if I don't hear from you within 2 weeks "concurrence will be assumed" or, preferably that you could send a letter that I can include when I resubmit.

Thanks so much for your help,

Maggie
