Purpose: History 3670 is one of three Spring prerequisite courses to the World War II Study Program’s May term in Europe. Only students accepted into the program during the October registration period may enroll. The purpose of this class is to deepen the contextual knowledge of students about the different national histories and the specific sites they will encounter in May. The course is organized according to the trip itinerary and will include content on contemporary national cultures and issues of noteworthy importance, so that students will be prepared to see national differences at work. Course content will be geared directly to both the expected general education outcomes of the program and the specific aims of program content. The two persistent themes here—the American “good war” myth versus Anglo-French interactions with Americans; and collaboration and resistance among European peoples—are designed to deepen student thinking about their own national mythologies when they come into confrontation with other perspectives and wrestle with the most serious issues of human rights. They are drawn to align with the College of Arts & Sciences mandates for study-abroad.

General Education Expectations

This course fulfills the following GE requirements: Historical Study. It does count toward the history major.

General Education Historical Studies Goals:

Learning goals: History courses develop students’ knowledge of how past events influence today’s society and help them understand how humans view themselves.

Expected Learning Outcomes

1. Students acquire a perspective on history and an understanding of the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students display knowledge about the origins and nature of contemporary issues and develop a foundation for future comparative understanding.
3. Students think, speak, and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Rationale for fulfilling the GE Learning Outcomes for Historical Study

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes in Historical Study: This course will develop students' knowledge of how past events influence today's society and help them understand how humans view themselves through the following ways:

1. Students will be prepared to understand and be sensitive to the similarities, differences, and interconnections between host countries and the United States.
2. Students will develop an ability to function effectively within their host countries.
3. Students will acquire a deep appreciation for the national histories, broadly understood, of each of their host countries.
4. Students will develop their ability to speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Course Program Expectations

1. Students will gain broad contextual knowledge of the WWII experiences of Europeans and Americans.
2. Each student will develop specialized knowledge of one part of the war experience, which they will then translate through course assignments.
3. Students will scrutinize their own national mythology about WWII in light of the different European perspectives on the American role.

Required General Readings

Istvan Deak, Europe on Trial: The Story of Collaboration, Resistance, and Retribution in WWII
Charles Glass, The Deserters: A Hidden History of WWII

Books will be available at SBX.

Student Obligations

Attendance and Participation (20%). Attendance is simply mandatory. We are building group solidarity this term, and there is no tolerance for casual attendance. You will be expected to have read the common readings and be prepared to discuss them at each class meeting.

Building Your Personal Expertise (40%). In this project you will build a personal expertise associated with one particular issue related to a particular historic site that we visit in Europe. See below.

Following the Issues (40%). In a 7-10 page concluding essay, you will consider one of our two main themes: a) the American “good war” myth and European interactions with Americans; or b) collaboration and resistance among European peoples. The essays will be drawn on our common readings and class discussion. See below.

Course Schedule

Building Your Expertise

At our first group meeting, each student will choose (or be assigned) a specific subject associated with a specific site to which we will travel in May. From the list below, choose the book associated with that subject. You will be responsible for a three-part assignment.

1. Book Review (20% of item grade): Write a 500-750 word review of the book you've chosen to be due on the day you give your oral report.

2. Oral Report (20% of item grade): Working from your book report, you will explain to your colleagues the history associated with the subject of the day.

3. Expertise Report (60% of item grade): In consultation with Professor Steigerwald, you will add two additional sources to your expertise subject and amplify your original book review to gain wider and deeper knowledge of the subject matter. The final version should run roughly six pages, or 1250-1500 words. This assignment will be due on the last day of class.

Review Selections and Report Schedule

London

Week One: The Blitz and the Battle of Britain

Review Selections: Tom Harrisson, Living Through the Blitz; Richard Holmes, Churchill's Bunker; Richard Overy, The Battle of Britain

Final Essay: Following the Issues

Choose one of the two themes of the course: The “good war” and European interaction with Americans; or Resistance and Collaboration. Using all relevant sources, compose an interpretive and analytical essay running from 7-10 pages (or roughly 2500 words). Due in the Carmen Drop Box, Monday May 2nd, 12:00 pm.

Grading scale

A: 93 and above	A-: 90-92
B+: 87-89	B: 83-86	B-: 80-82
C+: 77-79	C: 73-76	C-: 70-72
D: 62-69	E: 62 and below

Grade descriptions:

- E: Poor work that meets few or none of the assignment specifications.
- D: Poor work that meets the minimum assignment specifications.
- C: Generally acceptable work that meets most of the assignment specifications.
- B: Solid work that meets all of the assignment specifications, demonstrates strength in all appropriate skills, and shows mastery of the material.
- A: Excellent work on every level, which shows not only mastery of material and skills but originality and critical analysis.

Academic Honesty

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (<http://sja.osu.edu/page.asp?id=1>).

New Course Request

History 3670, “Trans-National History of WWII in Europe.”

I. Rationale: The original design of the Department of History’s WWII Study Program demanded a curriculum of four prerequisite courses, which included a 4000-level writing seminar. From the first we assumed that we would have to adjust the design of the program as experienced dictated and we learned how to suit the particularities of Ohio State students.

By the end of last year, we decided that the writing seminar requirement needed to be altered. For two reasons, many of the program students struggled mightily with the seminar’s large writing requirement. First, the non-majors* in the program simply had no experience in putting together such large projects as the seminar necessarily requires. Second, many of the students have been sophomores who found themselves unprepared for courses designed for upper-level majors to finish out their studies.

Curricular concerns also led us to reconsider the seminar. In their evaluations, students noted that while they learned a lot about their chose subject in the seminar, the class seemed disconnected from the May travel component. The last two years, our colleague Alice Conklin has made terrific efforts to link the seminar readings to the travel, including, most notably, reading and guest speakers focused on Normandy. Moreover, she incorporated a book review related to a specific historical site that we visit in the seminar workload. But the individual research consumed so much of the seminar work that students seem to have lost the connection to the travel component.

The proposed course addresses this discrepancy. As you will see, each week is tied directly to a particular historical site, and the readings are designed to inform students not only about that site but about the surrounding local, regional, and national wartime experiences.

While I believe that as it is now constructed, the course nicely joins the Spring curriculum with the May travel, there is another curricular advantage to this distinct program course. It will allow us to introduce into the program some very unique projects. We know that twelve Ohio State student/alumni are interred at the American-Normandy Cemetery at Coleville sur Mer. Over the years we have learned bits and pieces about their lives and have tracked down family with, at best, mixed success. We envision incorporating a research element into this new course that would direct the students toward learning as much as possible about our “Buckeye Twelve.” It would be an on-going, cumulative project that could run until we have exhausted available sources.

In addition, just this week the Department of Defense-POW/MIA Accounting Agency approached us about the possibility of creating student research opportunities that would have students contribute research to locate and identify remains of those who are still listed as MIA in Normandy. It seems that the DoD has more information than researchers to digest it and is looking for enthusiastic (yet well supervised) young historians to help them tackle the backlog. As of now, this is nothing more than a wish-dream. But with a course dedicated to the WWII program, we would have the latitude to develop student projects in this effort.

Finally, let me address the question of faculty coverage. As a practical matter, only faculty members familiar with the May travel itinerary can teach it. As of now, only Profs. Steigerwald and Mansoor fit that; sooner or later, we will have to induce other faculty members to join in.

II. Chronological Category: post-1750

III. Geographic Category: Global/Transregional/Transnational/Comparative

IV. Thematic Category: 1) Human Conflict, Peace, and Diplomacy; 2) Power, Culture, and Society

* Because it confers a History Minor, the program seeks to draw in non-majors—and by design. In this it has been successful: roughly half of the students who have taken the program have been non-majors. This year's group, for instance, includes majors from finance, pre-med, pre-law, political science, English, international business, security studies, and social work.

 Sophomores made up only about 20 percent of the 2013-14 cohorts. Last year and this, however, they have comprised half of the group. No doubt the availability of funds from the STEP program is the reason behind this increase. As long as STEP money continues to flow, I expect this proportion to hold.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee (ASCC)

FROM: Paula Baker, Chair, Undergraduate Teaching Committee, Department of History

RE: Assessment Plan for proposed GE courses: Historical Study Category, Social Diversity in the U.S., and Diversity: Global Studies

Assessment Goals and Objectives

1. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for all History courses might be summarized as follows:

Historical Study GE Requirements:

Goals:

Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Goals of the courses that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes:

History courses develop students' recognition of how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition through the following ways:

1. Critically examine theories of history, and historical methodologies
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on specific regions, time periods and themes of the human past.
3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine social, political, economic, military, gender, religious, ecological, and ethnic/racial/national movements in a wider socio- cultural context.
4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct historical moments, social movements and their effects

2. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Social Diversity in the U.S. might be summarized as follows:

Social Diversity GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in social diversity will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand how the categories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation have shaped peoples' identities and the distribution of power and resources in the U.S. and elsewhere
 2. Describe theories of racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious formation on exams and written assignments.
 3. Critically examine theories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation
 4. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation.
 5. Access and critically examine movements framed by race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and/or nation in a wider socio-cultural context.
 6. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments of ethnic, racial, nationalist, gender, class, and/or religious mobilization or social movements and their effects.
3. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Diversity: Global Studies might be summarized as follows:

Global Studies GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in Diversity – Global Studies will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students critically examine the political, economic, social, cultural and philosophical development in the World.
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on the differences and similarities between cultures and peoples.
3. Access and critically examine ethnically, nationally or religiously framed movements in a wider socio-cultural and global context.
4. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments in human history and how they shaped the world in the past and today.
5. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand the complexity of debates over international issues. They will describe theories of international issues on exams and written assignments.
6. Students will understand the roots and structures of today's globalized world.

II. Methods

An assessment of whether these objectives are met is effectively carried out by an examination of the work students are actually required to do for the course. Contributions in class discussions will be considered, but weighted more lightly, given the tendency for more confident students to contribute more to such discussions. Paper and exams will provide an understanding of students' abilities to think historically and to engage in analysis. This can be gauged by their responses to specific exam questions—asking students to provide a perspective on history and relate that perspective to an understanding of the factors that shape human activity. Thus, exams for Historical Study courses will have at least one question that requires students to provide a perspective on the factors that shaped an event or theory. Similarly, for courses that include Diversity in the U.S. GE requirements, we will have at least one question that requires students to provide a description of the roles of categories such as race, gender, class, ethnicity and religion and how those roles have helped shape either their perspective or the country's perspective on diversity. For courses that include Diversity: Global Studies, we will ask one question that requires students to provide an understanding of some combination of political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical differences in or among the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S. In this way, we hope to measure the courses (and the students') progress toward the multiple objectives of the GE. In this way we should be able to ascertain whether they are acquiring the desired skills and not simply learning (and regurgitating) specific information.

Summary of Data:

A committee, appointed by the UTC Chair, will be asked to evaluate a sample of questions and papers, and to gauge how well the goals of the course seem reflected in them. Assessment of Historical Study, Social Diversity, and Diversity: Global Issues from the GE goals will be carried out primarily through the evaluation of formal graded assignments and ungraded in-class assignments. The committee will rank the assignments across a four-category scale that captures students' mastery of the GE goals. Students will complete an informal feedback survey halfway through the semester to assess their own performance, the pace of the class, and the instructor's effectiveness. A brief summary report will be written by the UTC Chair, and that, as well as the sampled questions themselves, will be made available to the instructor and to the Chair of the department. We intend to insure that the proposed courses adequately articulate these goals, teach toward them, test for them, and help students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

Curricular Map that shows how, and at what level, the program's courses facilitate students' attainment of History learning goals.
