Re: Globalization Restructuring Proposal
Date: 17 January, 2017

Please find attached the re-submission of my September 2016 request that the Globalization Studies major and minor in International Studies be restructured so that its curriculum is the same as the other IS majors and it can be treated as simply another major and minor in the IS stable.

Let me detail how we have responded to the committee's request for specific revisions of the original proposal:

- 1) Updated advising sheets for both the BA and BS versions of major are attached;
- 2) The addition of a BS option is made clear in the first full paragraph on page 2;
- 3) The ASC minor advising sheet has been updated. In light of the extensive changes to the original, I have attached three versions of this advising sheet, the original version, a finished version of the updated sheet and a third, less easily readable version in which the changes to the original are tracked;
- 4) The minor is not being reduced from 15 to 12 hours, but will remain at 15 hours. The apparent reduction was an oversight in the original proposal;
- 5) Again an oversight, the minor is being restructured, not eliminated. The proposal has been changed to eliminate this inconsistency;
- 6) Page 5 of the proposal has been edited to conform to University rules concerning the permitted credit hours overlap with GE requirements and the passing grade requirements for all courses in the minor;
- 7) The reference on page 6 to "Peace Studies" has been removed.

We have endeavored to respond to all the committee's requested changes but can provide further information or revision if required. Thanks.

Proposal to Restructure the Major and Minor Degree Programs in Globalization Studies

To: The Council on Academic Affairs

From: Anthony Mughan, Director, International Studies

Background

In 2011, the Undergraduate International Studies Program (UISP) sponsored a new major, Globalization Studies, to introduce students to the phenomenon of the growing cultural, economic, political and social interdependence of peoples and states - a trend with profound implications for both the international order and the internal structure of states. The new major was designed to complement, rather than compete with, the ten majors that UISP already offered. At the same time, however, it differed from these existing majors in two important respects. First, the latter were overwhelmingly social science-based, whereas the Globalization major was designed to introduce students to the cultural and humanistic as well as the economic, social and political dimensions of globalization. Thus, students were “forced” to take 50 per cent of their major courses in arts/humanities departments and 50 per cent in social science departments. At the same time, a largely social science-based Globalization minor that was already in existence at the time the major was proposed was revised to follow this same “50-50” curricular pattern.

The second distinctive feature of the original Globalization major was its different curricular structure from the other ten majors in UISP. The ten majors all follow the same curricular template. In each of them, all majors are required to take four “foundations” courses that provide a shared body of knowledge on which subsequent course choices can be based. There is then a highly selective number of “critical perspectives” courses that allow students to pursue particular interests they might have within their overall specialization of choice; students select four “critical perspectives” courses. That leaves two courses to satisfy the 30-hour major requirement, and these are selected from a wide-ranging list of electives that can come from either the list provided on the curriculum sheet or from courses that students identify for themselves and petition to have included in their major. There might, for example, be a visitor to campus who offers a one-time a course that is relevant to the student’s particular interests.

The structure of the Globalization curriculum, on the other hand, was more complex. While it too contained a required foundation of four courses (two from arts/humanities and two from the social sciences), it parted ways after this point. The remaining six courses in the major were chosen from three thematic groupings: “Economy, Environment and Health,” “Violence, Conflict and Reconciliation,” and “Global Cultures, Networks and Institutions.” Students choose two courses from each grouping, with the proviso that, overall, three of the six courses must come from the Arts/Humanities and three from the social sciences.

A by-product of the Globalization Studies major’s unique curricular structure was that it was not counted as a straightforward addition to UISP’s stable of majors. Instead, it was constituted as a stand-alone major for which UISP bore administrative responsibility. This meant, for example, that it required its own assessment report even though it is assessed in the same way as the other majors for which UISP is responsible.

The final distinctive feature of the current Globalization major is that, unlike the other majors in the UISP stable, it does not have a BS option. This proposal would create such an option and it would be configured in exactly the same way as the BS options of the other UISP majors.

In sum, this proposal envisages restructuring the Globalization Studies specialization so that it conforms to the same curricular template as the other majors in UISP, but without sacrificing its dual arts/humanities and social science character. At the same time, it is proposed that the restructured Globalization Studies major and minor will become simply a major and minor “like the others” in the UISP stable. In other words, it will have a number of pre-major requirements and all students, whether they be BA or BS majors, will complete the curriculum requirements set out in this proposal. BA majors will also have to complete a minor in a foreign language and BS majors a minor chosen from an approved list.

Rationale

The reason for this proposed change is simple, actual enrollment in the Globalization Studies specialization has fallen far short of expectations. The hope of the committee that wrote the proposal setting it up was that, like a number of similar UISP specializations including Development Studies and World Economy & Business, it would attract somewhere in the region of 100 majors given the large academic literature on globalization and its “real world” impact in domains of human activity like culture, economics, politics and society. In practice, however, enrollment has fallen well short of this projected number. In the six years between Spring 2011 and Spring 2016, for example, the number of majors averages out at about 21, with a low of 16 in Spring 2011 and high of 26 in Spring 2014. Nor does there seem to be much chance that these numbers will get better. At the time of writing (early January 2017), 17 students have applied to the Globalization Studies major for the 2017-2018 academic year, and two of them have been admitted. This compares with 356 applications and 124 admittances for the other ten majors in UISP combined.

After perusing the current major very carefully in light of low enrollment numbers and talking to a small number of students, I have come to the view that enrollments would grow if the major’s curricular structure were simplified. In particular, there seem to be two special problems with it now. One, with six courses having to be chosen from three thematic groupings and the Arts/Humanities-social science balance having to be achieved in the aggregate, student choice is complex and limited at the same time. It is complex because the long list of courses from which choices have to be made and balanced are currently divided into two types (arts/humanities vs. social sciences) and three thematic groupings (“Economy, Environment and Health,” “Violence, Conflict and Reconciliation,” and “Global Cultures, Networks and Institutions”). It is limited because the balance requirement can lead to students taking courses that might be no better than their second or third choice. This proposal overcomes these weaknesses of the major through simplification of choice; it eliminates the three thematic categories that currently exists and gathers the centrally relevant courses in a single “Critical Perspectives” category, and students have to choose any four of them. In other words, depending on their own interests, they can if they wish choose two arts/humanities and two social science courses or they can choose four that fall into either one of these categories. That leaves two courses still to be chosen and they will come from a wide-ranging “Electives” category. The idea here is that students can choose courses in an area of special interest to them but in which they were only able to take one course in the “Critical Perspectives” category. Alternatively, this option will enable them to petition to have a course included in their major that is not included in the published curriculum, perhaps a course taught by a new faculty member or a one-off course taught by a visitor to the campus. The “Electives” category allows for the curricular flexibility required to study an ever-changing and multi-faceted phenomenon like globalization.

The second problem with the current curricular structure for the Globalization Studies major is that the proliferation of thematic categories and types of course has encouraged the inclusion in the choice set courses whose relevance to the globalization phenomenon might not be immediately obvious to students, even potential majors and minors. Random examples include Linguistics 4597.02: Language and the Law and Political Science 4216: East European Politics. The proposed revised curriculum will include courses whose relevance to the globalization phenomenon is evident from either or both their title and subject matter. The list of courses will be reviewed periodically and updated as faculty members leave and new ones arrive or new courses come online from faculty already in the university.

This proposal, therefore, represents an effort to inject new life (and popularity) into the Globalization Studies specialization and to do this essentially by simplifying its curricular structure so as to bring it in line with other IS majors of proven rigor and popularity. A comparison of the current and proposed major and minor sheets will show that the overall goals remain the same and that what has changed is that the choice set confronting students has been narrowed and curricular structure simplified to allow them to make a more focused and coherent selection of courses based on their own interests.

Curriculum: Major

The proposal is for a revised, 30-hour multidisciplinary major in Globalization Studies that follows the same curricular structure as the ten other specializations in UISP at the same time as being intellectually separate from them. Thus, the separate Globalization Studies specialization that currently exists must be dropped and reincarnated as simply the 11th specialization in UISP. Students must earn a C- or higher on all courses in the major and have a minimum 2.0 grade point average.

Required Foundations (12 hours) (This is exactly the same list of courses as on the current curriculum)

Curriculum: Minor (15 hours)

The proposal is for a revised, 15-hour multidisciplinary minor in Globalization Studies that follows the same curricular structure as the other minors in UISP at the same time as being intellectually separate from them. Up to two courses, or six credit hours, are permitted to overlap with GE requirements. All students minoring in Globalization Studies must pass all courses in the minor with a grade of C- or higher.

Required Courses: 6 hours

Comparative Studies 3360	Introduction to Globalization and Culture (3)
International Studies 3850	Introduction to Globalization (3)

Electives: 9 hours

AEDECON/INTSTDS 4532	Food Security & Globalization (3)

Sociology 5450	Sociology of Global Health and Illness (3)
Sociology 5525	Global Criminology (3)
WGSST 3505	Feminist Perspectives on Globalization (3)

Transition Plan

Assuming University approval of the restructured Globalization Studies major and minor in time for Autumn 2017 implementation, all students declaring the major or minor thereafter will be subject to the new requirements. All students who declared a major or minor before Autumn 2017 will remain under the old requirements.

Administration

To declare a major, students will meet with a UISP advisor, who will help them to plan their major or minor program. Proposed changes to the course content of the major or minor will be discussed and approved by the UISP Oversight Committee.

Departments wishing to propose courses for the Globalization Studies major and/or minor should submit the following to the UISP Director:

- A fully articulated syllabus for the course(s);
- A statement (two pages maximum) describing how the proposed course(s) would add to the Globalization Studies major and/or minor;
- A description of the history of the proposed course. Is it new? How many times has it been offered before and how frequently will it be offered in the future?
- A short biography of the faculty member who will have primary responsibility for teaching the course

The courses that figure, now or in the future, in the “Foundations” and “Critical Perspectives” groupings will have to share the characteristics of being offered regularly, preferably once a year but no less than once every two years.

Implementation of Proposed Restructured Major and Minor

It is hoped that the proposal will be approved by both ASC Curriculum Committee and CAA by the end of the 2017 Spring semester so that the restructured major and minor will become available to students in Autumn 2017.

Questions regarding this proposal should be addressed to Anthony Mughan, 33 Townshend Hall, 1885 Neil Avenue, CAMPUS; his telephone number is 292-9657 and his e-mail address is mughan.1@osu.edu.

Globalization Studies

I. REQUIRED FOREIGN LANGUAGE MINOR

In addition to major requirements, students must complete one of the following foreign language minors*:

- | | | |
|------------------------------|----------------|-----------|
| • Andean & Amazonian Studies | • Italian | • Russian |
| • Arabic | • Japanese | • Spanish |
| • Chinese | • Korean | • Turkish |
| • French | • Modern Greek | |
| • German | • Persian | |
| • Hebrew | • Portuguese | |

Note: *International Students should consult with the IS department about this requirement.
A second major in a foreign language will also fulfill this requirement.*

II. PRE-MAJOR: (Complete 3 classes): 9-10 hours. Complete sections (a) and (b).

- a. Completion of 1103 or equivalent of one of the languages listed above, with a grade of C- or higher.
- b. Completion of the following classes with a grade of C- or above. These courses do not count in the major, but may also double count for GE requirements:

- | | |
|--------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| • Economics 2002.01 or 2002.02 | Principles of Macroeconomics (3) |
| • Geography 2400 | Economic and Social Geography (3) |

III. MAJOR REQUIREMENTS: Complete sections (a), (b) and (c). Continued on back.

- Complete a minimum of 30 credit hours and 10 courses.
- Courses used in your major cannot also be used for GE requirements.
- You must earn a C- or higher in all courses on your major and have a minimum 2.0 grade point average in the major.

a. REQUIRED FOUNDATIONS: (Complete all four courses): 12 hours.

1. Comparative Studies 3360 Introduction to Globalization and Culture (3)
2. International Studies 3850 Introduction to Globalization (3)
3. International Studies 4850 Understanding the Global Information Society (3)
4. Political Science 4330 Global Governance (3)

b. CRITICAL PERSPECTIVES (choose four): 12 HOURS

Anthropology 5602	Women's Health in Global Perspective (3)
Comparative Studies 4597.01	Global Studies of Science and Technology (3)
Comparative Studies 4597.02	Global Culture (3)

SPANISH/INTSTDS 5640	Globalization and Latin America (3)

I. REQUIRED MINOR

In addition to major requirements, students must complete one of the following minors:

- Agribusiness: minimum 12 hours (4-5 classes)
Prerequisite: AEDECON 2001 or (Econ 2001.01 or 2001.02)
- Business: 15 hours (5 classes)
Prerequisites: Econ 2001.01 or 2001.02, CSE 1110 or higher, Math 1130 or 1148 or math placement in M or L.
- City and Regional Planning: 12 hours (4 classes)
- Environmental Science: 15 hours (5 classes)
- Geographic Information Science: 15 hours (5 classes)
- Global Public Health: 15 hours (5 classes)

II. PRE-MAJOR: (Complete 4 classes): 12-13 hours. Complete sections (a) and (b).

a. Completion of 1103 or equivalent of one of the following languages with a grade of C- or higher. Choose from:

- | | | |
|-----------|----------------|--------------|
| • Arabic | • Italian | • Portuguese |
| • Chinese | • Japanese | • Quechua |
| • French | • Korean | • Russian |
| • German | • Modern Greek | • Spanish |
| • Hebrew | • Persian | • Turkish |

b. Completion of the following classes with a grade of C- or above. These courses do not count in the major, but may also double count for GE requirements:

- | | |
|--------------------------------|--|
| • Economics 2002.01 or 2002.02 | Principles of Macroeconomics (3) |
| • Geography 2400 | Economic and Social Geography (3) |
| • Statistics 2450 | Introduction to Statistical Analysis I (3) |

III. MAJOR REQUIREMENTS: Complete sections (a), (b), (c) and (d), continued on back.

- Complete a minimum of 30 credit hours and 10 courses.
- Courses used in your major cannot also be used for GE requirements.
- You must earn a C- or higher in all courses on your major and have a minimum 2.0 grade point average in the major.

a. REQUIRED FOUNDATIONS: (Complete all four courses): 12 hours.

1. Comparative Studies 3360 Introduction to Globalization and Culture (3)
2. International Studies 3850 Introduction to Globalization (3)
3. International Studies 4850 Understanding the Global Information Society (3)
4. Political Science 4330 Global Governance (3)

b. ADVANCED FOREIGN LANGUAGE: (Complete one): 3-5 hours.

Note: International students should consult with the IS department about this requirement.*

- | | | |
|------------------|---------------------|-------------------|
| • Arabic 2104 | • Italian 2102 | • Portuguese 3401 |
| • Chinese 2102 | • Japanese 2102.01 | • Quechua 5504.01 |

Globalization Studies Minor (GLOBLST-MN)

International Studies, 33 Townshend Hall, 1885 Neil Ave., Columbus, OH 43210-1222
614-292-9657; <http://internationalstudies.osu.edu>

Globalization is the process of countries, through increasing contact, communication and trade, coming closer together to create a single global system in which developments in one part of the world can profoundly affect individuals or communities in other parts of it.

The globalization studies minor gives students an interdisciplinary perspective on the forms that globalization takes, the forces that shape them, and their consequences for the life chances of individuals and communities worldwide, as well as for the global system itself.

The globalization studies minor consists of 15 credit hours. You must take International Studies 3850 and Comparative Studies 3360, the required core courses, and receive a grade of C- or higher before you can declare the minor. To declare the minor, you will meet with an International Studies advisor and plan your minor program. The minor course work is listed below: take one course from the Arts & Humanities group, one course from the Social Sciences group; the third course can come from either one of these groups. After International Studies has approved your minor program, you must file the form with your college office.

Some courses in this minor may have pre-requisites. Please consult the course bulletin before enrolling in courses.*

Globalization is the process of countries, through increasing contact, communication and trade, coming closer together to create a single global system in which developments in one part of the world can profoundly affect individuals or communities in other parts of it.

The globalization studies minor gives students an interdisciplinary perspective on the forms that globalization takes, the forces that shape them, and their consequences for the life chances of individuals and communities worldwide, as well as for the global system itself.

The globalization studies minor consists of 15 credit hours. You must take International Studies 3850 and Comparative Studies 3360, the required core courses, and receive a grade of C- or higher before you can declare the minor. To declare the minor, you will meet with an International Studies advisor and plan your minor program. ~~The minor course work is listed below: take one course from the Arts & Humanities group, one course from the Social Sciences group; the third course can come from either one of these groups.~~ After International Studies has approved your minor program, you must file the form with your college office.

Some courses in this minor may have pre-requisites. Please consult the course bulletin before enrolling in courses.*
