

Hello Drs. Paulsen and Woo-Young,

Thank you for the follow-up email. I had intended to get back to you last week and I was unable to do so. Here is our response to your concurrence request.

The College of Social Work supports the creation of the above referenced course. The proposed course requires several psychology prerequisites and is heavily focused on neuroscience. These aspects place the course outside the scope of the courses in our existing social work addition courses.

Please let me know if you need anything additional.

Regards,

Tamara

Dear Dr. Davis,

The Department of Psychology is creating a new course titled Psychological Science of Addiction (Psychology 4320). The course will have either Psychology 3313 (Introduction to Behavioral Neuroscience) or Psychology 3331/2367.02 (Abnormal Psychology) as a prerequisite, and will be taught at an advanced undergraduate level. I am attaching the syllabus, and requesting the support of the College of Social Work for this course. You can respond via email or by returning the attached concurrence form to me by October 31st. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Alisa Paulsen
