HIST 3213H

Slavery in the Ancient World (Honors)

We Fr 12:45 – 2:05 pm.
Campbell Hall 209
Spring 2017

Professor J. Albert Harrill
Department of History, The Ohio State University

Course Description, Questions, and Goals. Slavery is key to understanding life in the ancient world, because classical Athens and Rome were genuine slave societies. In what ways was slavery integrated into Greek and Roman family structures, religion, philosophy, and culture? Was the institution questioned or attacked as immoral? What caused slave revolts, the most famous being led a gladiator named Spartacus? How did ancient Jews and early Christians react to slavery? What legacies from ancient slavery remain with us today? Attempts to answer these questions have sparked considerable controversy among scholars. This course will introduce the student to this debate, the primary sources, and their difficulties.

Office Hours

Mon. 1:00–2:30 p.m. and Weds. 2:30–4:00 p.m., Dulles Hall 238. No appointment necessary; just stop by! (Other times are possible by appointment). The student is required to meet the professor in office hours multiple times, to discuss each stage of their research project.

3. Joshel, Sandra R. Slavery in the Roman World. Cambridge University Press, 2010.
4. duBois, Page. Slavery: Antiquity and Its Legacy. Oxford University Press, 2009.
5. Shaw, Brent B. Spartacus and the Slave Wars: A Brief History with Documents. Bedford/St. Martin's Press, 2001.

Course Requirements:

1. Attendance and participation are required, and the use of office hours is encouraged.
2. Midterm (Feb. 17), and Final Exam (April 27, 12:00 – 1:45 p.m.)
3. Historical Research Paper (10–12 pages) on a topic of the student’s choice.
The Research Paper has multiple deadlines, a semester-long project: topic on March 1, preliminary bibliography on March 24, an oral presentation in class between April 5 and 14, and Final Draft due on April 24.
4. Initiating a Seminar. Each student is to initiate a class discussion (Schedule to be circulated). The presentation is to be a précis focusing on part of the assigned homework that day. What is a précis? The précis (abstract, summary) is a useful genre of academic writing, in which you summarize in ca. eight (8) sentences the author’s main theme and purpose.

Note: The paper is to be submitted electronically, to Dropbox on Carmen.

Grading: 25% Midterm
25% Final Exam
25% Historical Research Paper, including Oral Presentation
25% Initiating a Seminar and class participation

Grading Policy: An A indicates excellence of the highest quality. A B indicates above average work, meeting more than the minimum. A C indicates that the student minimally does the requirements of the course. In grading papers, I give a grade in the “B” range to papers I judge basically successful, and a grade in the “C” range to papers I judge basically unsuccessful. An A paper will have to impress me strongly, one way or the other, to get a higher or lower grade. An “A” paper therefore will be a paper that is not merely good, but genuinely outstanding.

Grade scale: A, 100-93%; A-, 92-90%; B+, 89-87%; B, 86-83%; B-, 82-80%; C+, 79-77%; C, 76-73%; C-, 72-70%; D+, 69-65%; D, 64-60%; E 59% and below.

Attendance Policy. It is a requirement of this course that you attend every class session and that you arrive on time. Two absences for any reason will cost a grade step (e.g., a final grade of B– will be lowered to C+), and this penalty will be repeated on down the grade scale for each additional second absence. A word of warning: you had better save your absence for a time when you are truly ill or otherwise unable to attend class. The policy does not mean that you get one class “cut” plus additional “excused” absences. Exceptions are granted only rarely, at the professor’s discretion. If a student has legitimate cause for such an exception, he or she must initiate a meeting with the professor in office hours with documentation and a plan for making up the missed work.

NOTE: No use of laptop computers, or cell phone texting during class; exceptions of the laptop policy are granted only for medical reasons.

Course Policies and Information

Absences from Exams: If there will be a problem with the exam dates, you must let me know NOW during the first week of class.

Acceptance of Late Papers. Written work is to be submitted on time, that is, by the start of the class period on the day the paper is due (unless otherwise specified on the assignment). An essay assignment submitted after the start of class is late (by one day). Late papers will result in the loss of a grade step for every day after the due date (e.g., a paper with the grade of B will become B– if one day late, C+ if two days late, and so forth). All essays must be submitted before the last day of class. FAQ: Do I have to complete all of the test and assignments? Yes, you must complete all required assignments and tests in order to pass this course.

Academic Misconduct. It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487)." For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

Proposal for HIST 3213H Statement of Qualitative Differences

1. The specific goals of the course will be achieved through a pedagogical combination of student-initiated seminars, research-paper (multiple) deadlines, and a series of in-class oral presentations, in addition to essay-based testing (midterm and final examinations). The regular version of the course has fewer textbooks, follows more a lecture format, and lacks both a research paper requirement and oral presentations.
2. Greater exposure to the basic material of the course is achieved in a number of ways. Additional textbooks add breadth and depth, as does a screening and critical review of a modern epic film on the topic (Spartacus), paired with a sourcebook of primary sources. Comparing a modern film against the primary sources is often an eye-opening experience for undergraduates.
3. The course provides exposure to, and the use of, methodology and research techniques through the research and writing of an original paper of historical analysis, using both primary and secondary sources with specific attention to selecting an appropriate method based on the nature of the available evidence.
4. Honors students read additional textbooks, write an original research project, give a series of in-class oral presentations, must prepare précis before each class, and take turns leading seminar discussions. The amount of work is, therefore, considerably greater than that in the non-honors version.
5. Each student will be required to individually meet the professor multiple times in office hours, to discuss each stage of his/her research project. Another way that greater student/faculty contact will be achieved is the very procedure of each class—discussion in a roundtable format rather than a lecture style—which encourages the students to become a reading community engaged in a shared academic conversation.
6. An original research paper, individual oral presentations, and student-led discussions make creative thinking an essential aspect of the course requirements. Additionally, the testing will be through primary source analysis rather than multiple-choice questions.
7. The additional textbooks present rival, and often opposing, approaches to the use of comparative evidence from modern periods for understanding ancient slavery. Students will thus be exposed to interdisciplinary work. The various approaches are, e.g., legal, sociological, ethnographic, and literary—in addition to historical.

8. Because the research paper has multiple deadlines, students will go through a pedagogical process that will demand a high level of intellectual output. That output includes (1) a formal proposal that justifies the topic, (2) a clear statement on method, and (3) an annotated bibliography that provides a critical review of the nature of the primary and secondary sources. The student will present each stage of her/his research project before an audience of peers.

9. Intended audience: Open to students at any level and in any field of study—Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and/or Seniors are welcome.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee (ASCC)

FROM: Paula Baker, Chair, Undergraduate Teaching Committee, Department of History

RE: Assessment Plan for proposed GE courses: Historical Study Category, Social Diversity in the U.S., and Diversity: Global Studies

Assessment Goals and Objectives

1. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for all History courses might be summarized as follows:

Historical Study GE Requirements:

Goals:

Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Goals of the courses that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes:

History courses develop students' recognition of how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition through the following ways:

1. Critically examine theories of history, and historical methodologies
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on specific regions, time periods and themes of the human past.
3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine social, political, economic, military, gender, religious, ecological, and ethnic/racial/national movements in a wider socio- cultural context.
4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct historical moments, social movements and their effects

2. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Social Diversity in the U.S. might be summarized as follows:

Social Diversity GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in social diversity will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand how the categories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation have shaped peoples' identities and the distribution of power and resources in the U.S. and elsewhere
 2. Describe theories of racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious formation on exams and written assignments.
 3. Critically examine theories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation
 4. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation.
 5. Access and critically examine movements framed by race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and/or nation in a wider socio-cultural context.
 6. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments of ethnic, racial, nationalist, gender, class, and/or religious mobilization or social movements and their effects.
3. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Diversity: Global Studies might be summarized as follows:

Global Studies GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in Diversity – Global Studies will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students critically examine the political, economic, social, cultural and philosophical development in the World.
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on the differences and similarities between cultures and peoples.
3. Access and critically examine ethnically, nationally or religiously framed movements in a wider socio-cultural and global context.
4. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments in human history and how they shaped the world in the past and today.
5. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand the complexity of debates over international issues. They will describe theories of international issues on exams and written assignments.
6. Students will understand the roots and structures of today's globalized world.

II. Methods

An assessment of whether these objectives are met is effectively carried out by an examination of the work students are actually required to do for the course. Contributions in class discussions will be considered, but weighted more lightly, given the tendency for more confident students to contribute more to such discussions. Paper and exams will provide an understanding of students' abilities to think historically and to engage in analysis. This can be gauged by their responses to specific exam questions—asking students to provide a perspective on history and relate that perspective to an understanding of the factors that shape human activity. Thus, exams for Historical Study courses will have at least one question that requires students to provide a perspective on the factors that shaped an event or theory. Similarly, for courses that include Diversity in the U.S. GE requirements, we will have at least one question that requires students to provide a description of the roles of categories such as race, gender, class, ethnicity and religion and how those roles have helped shape either their perspective or the country's perspective on diversity. For courses that include Diversity: Global Studies, we will ask one question that requires students to provide an understanding of some combination of political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical differences in or among the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S. In this way, we hope to measure the courses (and the students') progress toward the multiple objectives of the GE. In this way we should be able to ascertain whether they are acquiring the desired skills and not simply learning (and regurgitating) specific information.

Summary of Data:

A committee, appointed by the UTC Chair, will be asked to evaluate a sample of questions and papers, and to gauge how well the goals of the course seem reflected in them. Assessment of Historical Study, Social Diversity, and Diversity: Global Issues from the GE goals will be carried out primarily through the evaluation of formal graded assignments and ungraded in-class assignments. The committee will rank the assignments across a four-category scale that captures students' mastery of the GE goals. Students will complete an informal feedback survey halfway through the semester to assess their own performance, the pace of the class, and the instructor's effectiveness. A brief summary report will be written by the UTC Chair, and that, as well as the sampled questions themselves, will be made available to the instructor and to the Chair of the department. We intend to insure that the proposed courses adequately articulate these goals, teach toward them, test for them, and help students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.
