Course Details

Course goals or learning objectives/outcomes

- Students will understand the factors that led to the development of a persecuting society in medieval Europe and how it has been perpetuated since that time.
- Students will understand how changes in society prompt persecution and that persecution is not a direct result of the actions of the minority group.
- Students will gain an understanding of the patterns and tools of persecution, and will demonstrate the depth of their comprehension through the writing of a medieval sermon cycle in which they employ the tools of persecution.
- Students will exhibit an ability to relate medieval persecution to modern persecution through their research papers in which they will discuss the medieval roots or patterns of persecution evidence in a modern-day example of persecution.
- Students will hone their analytical skills through the reading and discussion (in both writing and class discussion) of primary and secondary materials.

Content Topic List

- Christian / Islamic / Jewish relationships
- The use of medicine to stigmatize minority groups
- Power relationship within marriage
- The role of the Church in society and in persecution
- The development of racism as a concept

Course: HISTORY 3231: Creating Medieval Monsters: Constructions of the “Other”

Instructor: Sara M. Butler, butler.960@osu.edu, (614) 688-2598

Department: History

College: A & S

Brief Description of the Course:

This course examines the development of a persecuting society in medieval Europe. The goal of this course is to explore the various ways that minorities were demonized, literally turned into “monsters” in the medieval discourse and artwork, in order to create a strong sense of unity within Christendom. A study of the persecution of minorities will include a wide variety of groups, but focus specifically on: Jews, lepers, Muslims, religious non-conformists, sexual nonconformists, and women.

Brief Description of the Course Goals:

- 1) Students will understand the factors that led to the development of a persecuting society in medieval Europe and how it has been perpetuated since that time.
- 2) Students will understand how changes in society prompt persecution and that persecution is not a direct result of the actions of the minority group. For example, students will understand how women’s status in society is tied closely to inheritance patterns; how fears about Judaism reflect Christian concerns about the Eucharist, etc.
- 3) Students will gain an understanding of the patterns and tools of persecution, and will demonstrate the depth of their comprehension through the writing of a medieval sermon cycle in which they employ the tools of persecution.
- 4) Students will exhibit an ability to relate medieval persecution to modern persecution through their research papers in which they will discuss the medieval roots or patterns of persecution evidence in a modern-day example of persecution.
- 5) Students will hone their analytical skills through the reading and discussion (in both writing and class discussion) of primary and secondary materials. Our primary source material will be limited to the mass media of the Middle Ages: sermon stories.

General Topics to be Covered:

- 1) Christian / Islamic / Jewish relationships
- 2) The use of medicine to stigmatize minority groups
- 3) Power relationship within marriage
- 4) The role of the Church in society and in persecution
- 5) The development of racism as a concept

General Education Requirements

Historical Study: Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:	How this will be accomplished in the course:
1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.	This course will be looking at history from a wide variety of disciplines: art, law, medicine, philosophy, politics, psychology, religion, sexuality and gender, and sociology. These sources help us to gain an understanding of the medieval Western European mentality, and the factors that led to the creation of a persecuting society.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.	This course purposely juxtaposes the modern with the medieval in an attempt to understand how medieval persecution lays the foundation for Western cultural stereotypes. It also helps us to understand patterns and methods of persecutions and how those are echoed in the modern era.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.	Students who take this course will become experts in medieval sermon stories. The textbook for the course [Joan Young Gregg (ed.), Devils, Women and Jews: Reflections on the Other in Medieval Sermon Stories (New York, 1997)] is a collection of medieval sermon stories that we will be deconstructing through class discussions in order to understand how they teach stereotypes and foster persecution. Students will demonstrate their proficiency by writing their own "medieval" sermon stories. In addition, students will be spending a great deal of time reading secondary sources and thinking critically about their approaches in both writing and in class discussion.

Diversity: Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Outcomes for Global Studies:	How this will be accomplished in the course:
1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.	This course will study the following locations: England, France and French territories, Holy Roman Empire, Northern Africa, Rome and the Italian City-States, Iberia and Andalusia (that is, modern-day Spain and Portugal), Saudi Arabia, Scotland, and Yemen. Persecution requires that we study ideas from a wide variety of different standpoints, thus we will touch on politics, the economy, culture, society, the body, and philosophy at various points throughout the course.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.	This course intends to juxtapose cultures against each other to emphasize diversity, but also to examine reactions to diversity, as well as imagined diversity.

Important Dates:

Paper #1: Mar. 5

Paper #2: Apr. 13

Take-home Exam: Apr. 27

All students must be officially enrolled in the course by the end of the second full week of the quarter. No requests to add the course will be approved by the Chair after that time. Enrolling officially and on time is solely the responsibility of the student.

Course Description

By examining the ideology of community and marginality in the High Middle Ages, an era that has earned the title of a “persecuting society,” students will have the opportunity to view how a community of medieval Christians, feeling threatened by both external and internal forces, protected Christian community by lashing out at those on the margins. The goal of this course is to explore the various ways that minorities were demonized, literally turned into “monsters” in the medieval discourse and artwork, in order to create a strong sense of unity within Christendom. A study of the persecution of minorities will include a wide variety of groups, but focus specifically on: Jews, lepers, Muslims, religious non-conformists, the possessed, sexual nonconformists, and women. By demonstrating that demonization is a common response to unhappiness rooted in our own daily lives, this course hopes to offer a lens to study persecution in later eras.

GE and History Categories

This course fulfills half of the GE “Historical Study” requirement, or the “Diversity: Global Studies” requirement.

In the history major, it fulfills the following requirements:

- a) Geographic concentration: North America or Europe
- b) Chronological category: pre-1750 period
- c) Thematic concentration: history of race, ethnicity, and nation

Course Goals

- 1) Students will understand the factors that led to the development of a persecuting society in medieval Europe and how it has been perpetuated since that time.
- 2) Students will understand how changes in society prompt persecution and that persecution is not a direct result of the actions of the minority group. For example, students will understand how women’s status in society is tied closely to inheritance patterns; how fears about Judaism reflect Christian concerns about the Eucharist, etc.
- 3) Students will gain an understanding of the patterns and tools of persecution, and will demonstrate the depth of their comprehension through the writing of a medieval sermon cycle in which they employ the tools of persecution.
- 4) Students will exhibit an ability to relate medieval persecution to modern persecution through their research papers in which they will discuss the medieval roots or patterns of persecution evidence in a modern-day example of persecution.
- 5) Students will hone their analytical skills through the reading and discussion (in both writing and class discussion) of primary and secondary materials. Our primary source material will be limited to the mass media of the Middle Ages: sermon stories.

Expected Student Learning Outcomes:

History courses develop students’ knowledge of how past events influence today’s society and help them understand how humans view themselves.

- a) Students acquire a perspective on history and an understanding of the factors that shape human activity.
- b) Students display knowledge about the origins and nature of contemporary issues and develop a foundation for future comparative understanding.
- c) Students, think, speak, and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

This course also aims to fulfill the Diversity requirement. Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

- a) Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.

- b) Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

C+	77-79.9

Assignment Descriptions

a) Reading Responses: Students need to learn how to write. You will only improve in your writing by writing frequently. Students will generally be reading two selections per week. Every time you read, you will be required to write a brief and casual reflection on the readings before you arrive in class to discuss it. This assignment can be handwritten and will not be graded for style and grammar. One paragraph will be a summary of what you read, the other paragraph will be a reflection.

b) Participation: Students are required to participate in class discussions, either in the full class discussions or the small group discussions that will begin our classes. Yes, I realize that some students are shy and do not like speaking in front of their peers; however, I am asking you to overcome this. Please realize that other students are not terribly proficient at writing, but I do not exempt them from the writing assignments. Participating in class discussion is an essential part of the university classroom experience. I will do everything in my power to make our classroom a comfortable and welcoming environment. As a gage to your participation:

Superlative Participation (A): frequent & unsolicited quality contributions to class discussion

Good Participation (B): at least one good comment / insight per week

Satisfactory Participation (C): active participation in the small groups / no participation in larger class discussions

Silence in both the small groups and the larger class discussions will be graded as an F

c) Short Papers:

PAPER #1: Due March 5

Find a current example of persecution (find something in the newspaper, on the internet, in a magazine). Research it to discover its roots and to understand the methods and pattern of persecution. Write a short paper highlighting how the Middle Ages set the stage for this persecution. This statement can be understood broadly. Perhaps the Middle Ages developed the tools for persecution (rhetoric, law, ideology), not necessarily the persecution of that group itself. Perhaps the pattern of persecution was similar. The goal of this paper is to demonstrate that you understand how persecution functioned in the Middle Ages, as well as how it provided the modern era with flexible tools that might be used to persecute any group.

This paper should be 8 full pages in length (double-spaced type, Times New Roman 12 pt font, normal margins). Each student is required to have at least one other student peer review his/her paper before handing it in.

PAPER #2: Due April 13

This paper will be a creative assignment. Students are asked to write a series of exempla that persecute the “other” (see the Joan Young Gregg book of exempla). The goal of this assignment is to demonstrate an awareness of patterns of persecution in the medieval period and to understand the general strategies (rhetorical, thematic, literary, etc.) employed by exempla to promote hatred.

This paper should be 6 full pages in length (double-spaced type, Times New Roman 12 pt font, normal margins).

d) Take-home Exam: Due any time before noon on Thurs. Apr. 27.

Write a thoughtful response to one of the following questions:

- 1) What were the most crucial factors leading to the development of a persecuting society? Was this development inevitable?
- 2) How did persecution in the Middle Ages pave the way for the Witch Craze of the early modern era?

You will be graded on your ability to draw on a broad variety of class lectures, discussions, readings, and documentaries, as well as constructing a logical and persuasive argument.

This exam should be roughly 5 pages in length (double-spaced type, Times New Roman 12 pt font, normal margins).

Attendance Policy

1. Attendance will be taken orally at the beginning of every class – if you are not present when attendance is taken, you will be considered absent. In general, for a class that begins at 11:30, I expect each student to be seated and preparing for class at 11:27 so that we may begin promptly at 11:30.
2. Each student is permitted to miss class three times without explanation. After that, the student's grade will be adjusted by 3 percent for each missed class.
3. I cannot, in good conscience, give a passing grade for the course to a student who has missed more than 12 classes, regardless of how well that student has done on class assignments. This rule will apply also in medical circumstances. This is not distance learning.

Extensions and Late Work Policy

If you need an extension, please ask for one in advance (“in advance” means at least 2 full days before it is due). Late papers will be penalized a full letter grade per day. For example, if your paper would have received an “A” on the deadline, the next day it will receive a “B.”

Disability and Accommodations Statement

Students with documented disabilities who have registered with the Office of Student Life Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. SLDS is located in 098 Baker Hall, 113 W. 12th Ave.; Tel.: 614-292-3307; VRS: 614-429-1334; Email: slds@osu.edu; Web: slds.osu.edu

Mental Health Statement

A recent American College Health Survey found stress, sleep problems, anxiety, depression, interpersonal concerns, death of a significant other, and alcohol use among the top ten health impediments to academic performance. Students experiencing personal problems or situational crises during the term are encouraged to contact the OSU Counseling and Consultation Service (614-292-5766; www.ccs.osu.edu) for assistance, support and advocacy. This service is free and confidential.

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term academic misconduct includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/resource_csc.asp).

Where to find Help with Your Writing:

History is a writing discipline. Writing is not peripheral; it is at the heart of everything we do. Your ability to express your thoughts will be a key part of assessment for the book review and the research essay. If you need a second set of eyes, make use of The Writing Center. You can drop in (Smith Lab 4120A, M-F 9:00-5:00); you can telephone to make an appointment, 614-688-4291, or you can sign up for an appointment on-line: <http://cstw.osu.edu/writing-center/schedule-appt>.

Reserve Clause

The professor reserves the right to make changes to the syllabus as necessary to meet the objectives of the course, to compensate for missed classes or schedule changes, or for similar legitimate reasons. Students will be notified of any such changes to the syllabus in adequate time to adjust to those changes.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee (ASCC)

FROM: Paula Baker, Chair, Undergraduate Teaching Committee, Department of History

RE: Assessment Plan for proposed GE courses: Historical Study Category, Social Diversity in the U.S., and Diversity: Global Studies

Assessment Goals and Objectives

1. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for all History courses might be summarized as follows:

Historical Study GE Requirements:

Goals:

Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Goals of the courses that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes:

History courses develop students' recognition of how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition through the following ways:

1. Critically examine theories of history, and historical methodologies
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on specific regions, time periods and themes of the human past.
3. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students will access and critically examine social, political, economic, military, gender, religious, ecological, and ethnic/racial/national movements in a wider socio- cultural context.
4. Students will carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct historical moments, social movements and their effects

2. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Social Diversity in the U.S. might be summarized as follows:

Social Diversity GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in social diversity will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand how the categories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation have shaped peoples' identities and the distribution of power and resources in the U.S. and elsewhere
 2. Describe theories of racial, ethnic, class, national, gender, and religious formation on exams and written assignments.
 3. Critically examine theories of race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation
 4. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and nation.
 5. Access and critically examine movements framed by race, gender, class, ethnicity, religion, and/or nation in a wider socio-cultural context.
 6. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments of ethnic, racial, nationalist, gender, class, and/or religious mobilization or social movements and their effects.
3. Both the GE and course-specific learning objectives for History courses requesting Diversity: Global Studies might be summarized as follows:

Global Studies GE Requirements:

Goals:

Courses in Diversity – Global Studies will foster students' understanding of the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

Goals of the course that fulfill the GE Learning Outcomes: Students will achieve the social diversity goals and learning outcomes by

1. Through reading in primary and secondary sources and in-depth class discussion, students critically examine the political, economic, social, cultural and philosophical development in the World.
2. Engage with contemporary and historical debates on the differences and similarities between cultures and peoples.
3. Access and critically examine ethnically, nationally or religiously framed movements in a wider socio-cultural and global context.
4. Carry out in-depth analysis in a final paper, exam, or project comparing distinct moments in human history and how they shaped the world in the past and today.
5. Completing readings, attending lectures, and participating in class discussions and in-class assignments that will help students understand the complexity of debates over international issues. They will describe theories of international issues on exams and written assignments.
6. Students will understand the roots and structures of today's globalized world.

II. Methods

An assessment of whether these objectives are met is effectively carried out by an examination of the work students are actually required to do for the course. Contributions in class discussions will be considered, but weighted more lightly, given the tendency for more confident students to contribute more to such discussions. Paper and exams will provide an understanding of students' abilities to think historically and to engage in analysis. This can be gauged by their responses to specific exam questions—asking students to provide a perspective on history and relate that perspective to an understanding of the factors that shape human activity. Thus, exams for Historical Study courses will have at least one question that requires students to provide a perspective on the factors that shaped an event or theory. Similarly, for courses that include Diversity in the U.S. GE requirements, we will have at least one question that requires students to provide a description of the roles of categories such as race, gender, class, ethnicity and religion and how those roles have helped shape either their perspective or the country's perspective on diversity. For courses that include Diversity: Global Studies, we will ask one question that requires students to provide an understanding of some combination of political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical differences in or among the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S. In this way, we hope to measure the courses (and the students') progress toward the multiple objectives of the GE. In this way we should be able to ascertain whether they are acquiring the desired skills and not simply learning (and regurgitating) specific information.

Summary of Data:

A committee, appointed by the UTC Chair, will be asked to evaluate a sample of questions and papers, and to gauge how well the goals of the course seem reflected in them. Assessment of Historical Study, Social Diversity, and Diversity: Global Issues from the GE goals will be carried out primarily through the evaluation of formal graded assignments and ungraded in-class assignments. The committee will rank the assignments across a four-category scale that captures students' mastery of the GE goals. Students will complete an informal feedback survey halfway through the semester to assess their own performance, the pace of the class, and the instructor's effectiveness. A brief summary report will be written by the UTC Chair, and that, as well as the sampled questions themselves, will be made available to the instructor and to the Chair of the department. We intend to insure that the proposed courses adequately articulate these goals, teach toward them, test for them, and help students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

Thanks, Chris. I am quite certain that it will be a fine class, but it was my responsibility to relate the comments from NELC.

Hi Kevin,

I have conveyed NELC's comments and concerns to Sara, who thinks they are reasonable. She is fully aware of the controversies surrounding Aslan's work (understandably) but wants to discuss the controversy with students and would like to see how they respond to its ideas.

She likes Trachtenberg's work but thinks its length would interfere with other readings. She notes that were she to teach a class exclusively focusing on the Jewish experience, she would certainly use it.

This is a new class which will doubtless evolve as she teaches it. Please feel free to contact her with any further advice or observations.

My best,

Chris

Hi Barry,

My apologies for the endless nature of my requests, but here are two more new courses that the history department is proposing, both medieval classes. We'd like to seek concurrence. If you have any thoughts, could you get back to me by, say, the 1st of November?

Thanks!
