

Proposed Revisions to NELC Programs of Study, August 2019

Summary

The Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures (NELC) is proposing a variety of changes to many of its programs of study. Here is a brief description of the rationale and changes, with details for each major and minor explained in greater detail below. Supporting documentation is also attached.

Current Issues:

1. No significant changes have been made to NELC department majors and minors since the semester conversion in 2012. At the same time, NELC faculty has changed dramatically.
2. Upper-level language courses are extremely small in Hebrew, Persian, and Turkish.
3. NELC majors and minors typically require three semesters of language study and a culture course as prerequisites (15 credits), representing a considerable prerequisite load.
4. NELC majors do not take many courses in other subfields in NELC.
5. Jewish Studies became part of NELC in 2017. There is a great deal of overlap between Hebrew and Jewish Studies majors and minors.

Proposed Changes:

1. New learning objectives have been developed for all majors and minors. New assessment plans have been developed for all majors.
2. Require only the introductory language sequence as prerequisite for majors and minors, moving culture course requirements inside of the majors and minors.
3. Allow majors to take a cognate elective, to better situate their studies in Near Eastern Languages and Cultures and related fields.
4. Revise required courses and elective lists for majors and minors, maintaining academic rigor while relying on courses that are offered on a regular basis, so that majors can complete requirements within four years and most minors can complete requirements within two years.
5. Require 4 semesters (Persian and Turkish) or 5 semesters (Arabic and Hebrew) of total language study for language minors, instead of 6 semesters.
6. Combine Hebrew and Jewish Studies majors into a single major, with distinct language and interdisciplinary tracks.
7. Create a minor in Islamic Studies with no language requirement (submitted via curriculum.osu.edu).
8. Expand the existing Turkish minor into a minor in Turkish and Central Asia Studies, to take advantage of OSU's existing resources in Central Asia Studies.
9. Modify course numbers and create new courses to ensure that there are sufficient upper-division courses for majors and minors, taught in foreign languages and in translation. Semester conversion created few 3000 level courses in the department. We are trying to distribute department courses in a logical manner, guided by the following criteria:
 - a. 2000: Intermediate Undergraduate: introductory courses
 - b. 3000: Upper Level Undergraduate: topic or theoretical courses
 - c. 4000: Advanced Undergraduate: in-depth courses
 - d. 5000: Advanced Undergraduate and Graduate Courses

Administering Department: Near Eastern Languages and Cultures Proposed Implementation Date: August 2018

In February 2018, NELC underwent external review. In their report, dated March 3, 2018, the external review committee included the following comment: "The process of reviewing and reforming the Department's curriculum is on the right track, showing wide collaboration among faculty."

6. Turkish and Central Asia Studies

The current Turkish minor is small, with 3 students in 2017-2018. It is difficult to continue to offer upper level language courses with enrollments of 1-3 students on a regular basis. The proposed revision to the minor aims to revitalize the minor by reducing required language work and allowing more history and culture courses. This revision also recognizes that Turkish Studies is in contact with broader Turkic cultures in Central Asia. By including Central Asia Studies in the minor, we allow students pursuing Uzbek (already offered each year by NELC) and interested in taking courses on Central Asia with two faculty specialists (Morgan Liu, NELC; Scott Levi, History) to use these courses toward a degree. This combination would represent a unique direction that OSU is able to pursue, given its academic strengths in Central Asia. No other peer institutions are able to grant students a minor in Central Asia Studies. Since many of our minors are International Studies majors, this might be particularly attractive to students interested in this important geopolitical region that is often under-studied.

Current Turkish minors are required to fulfill 4 prerequisites (15 credits) and 4 courses (15 credits). Students have no choice of courses; all four minor courses are pre-determined, most of them are upper division language courses. Comparison with peer institutions⁶ shows that NELC's minor is similar in minor courses to other universities, but requires considerably more prerequisite courses than all institutions other than Michigan. This is primarily because the introductory language sequence is not included as part of the minor.

University	Minor Prerequisites	Minor Courses
Ohio State - current	4 (15 credits)	4 (15 credits)
Indiana (Near Eastern Languages and Cultures)	0	5 (15 credits)
Michigan (Near Eastern Languages and Cultures Minor)	4 courses	4 (16 credits)
Texas	0	15-21 credits
Arizona	0	18 units
Ohio State - Revision	3 (12 credits)	4 (13-15 credits)

Proposed Revisions:

Expand scope of minor to encompass Turkish and Central Asia Studies. OSU has two tenured faculty members working on Central Asia and NELC offers Uzbek on a regular basis. Expanding the minor to include Turkish and Uzbek, as well as Turkic cultures, acknowledges the university's strengths in this field. The expansion to the minor adds several courses currently taught in NELC, History and International Studies to the course electives list.

Non-language prerequisite moved inside of minor. Turkish minors currently require one literature or culture course in addition to the 3-semester introductory language sequence. That literature or culture course would now be a requirement for the minor.

Reducing required language courses. The proposed revisions decrease the number of required language courses from 3 language prerequisites (1101-1102-1103) and three upper-division language courses (2101, 2102, 3001) to 3 language prerequisites (1101-1102-1103) and Turkish or Uzbek 2101.

⁶ Few institutions offer a minor in Turkish; several offer minors in Near Eastern Studies (or similar) in which a student might pursue interests in Turkish. No other peer institutions currently offer undergraduate minors in Central Asia Studies.

- There is a range of language requirements in minors at other institutions, but the NELC proposal requiring minimum 4 semesters of language courses for the minor is comparable to similar programs:
 - University of Michigan: 4 semesters
 - Indiana University: 2 semesters
 - University of Texas, Austin: 4 semesters

Expanding Turkish and Central Asia Culture and History courses. Currently, minors are required to take 3 language courses and one literature course. As the revised minor allows more courses in translation, the electives list has been expanded to include courses in related fields (primarily, Islamic Studies and History). Danielle Schoon is currently developing a new course on Contemporary Turkish Society (Turkish 3350) that will further expand course options. This new course is being submitted via curriculum.osu.edu.

Re-titling introductory courses. For these relatively small courses, we are following the model of Slavic and Eastern European Languages and Cultures and updating course titles, with the hopes of attracting undergraduates.

Turkish 2241: Turkish Culture → Beyond Harems and Belly Dancers: Turkish Culture

Turkish 2701: Turkish Literature in Translation → Mystics, Sultans, Prisoners and Dreamers: Turkish Literature in Translation

Learning Objectives [Minor Only]

1. Students demonstrate intermediate competency in reading, writing, speaking, and listening to Turkish or Uzbek.
2. Students demonstrate familiarity with the historical breadth and diversity of Turkish and Central Asian cultures, societies, and politics.
3. Students demonstrate the ability to read and interpret critically a range of Turkish and/or Central Asian texts.

Transition Plan:

Changes to the requirements for fulfilling the Turkish and Central Asia Studies Minor will go into effect at the start of the 2019/2020 Academic Year. Students who entered OSU prior to the Autumn 2019 semester can choose to fulfill either the old or the new program requirements, in consultation with the NELC Academic Advisor. Students who enroll during or after the Autumn 2019 semester are required to fulfill the new program requirements.

Re: Proposed Changes in Turkish and Central Asia Studies Minor

The changes that we have proposed for the Turkish and Central Asia Studies Minor have my full support. The faculty in NELC have considered the program carefully and with due deliberation. I am confident that NELC is moving in the right direction both for the department and for prospective students who would enroll in the minor.

The essential feature of the change is that students would have more flexibility. Students with a solid foundation in the Turkish language could choose whether they wish to continue language studies or shift focus slightly and concentrate more on culture. I would note further that the proposal also incorporates additional courses from NELC and other departments dealing with Central Asia, an area of strength at OSU that has not been part of any program of study until now. The changes should allow students to complete coursework for the minor in two years, rather than the three years that are now needed.

International Studies has been urging NELC to streamline minor requirements so that undergraduates can complete them in two years, and this factor is reflected in the letter of support that we provided with our response.

Let me address the issue of running two tracks: Given the relatively small number of minors in this area – currently there are three students – the department could not offer a full complement of language and culture courses that would support both a language and a culture track within the minor. In the current proposal students will have the ability to mix language and culture courses, which leverages our instructional and curricular resources more effectively and ultimately benefits undergraduate students at OSU.

Sincerely,

Robert Holub

Subject: concurrence

Morgan,

Sorry for the delay in getting back to you – all the usual excuses! Anyway, here is IS's concurrence?

This is a note to confirm that International Studies endorses without exception the suite of changes that NELC is making to its undergraduate program. These changes are especially welcome to International Studies because they make NELC minors more flexible and accessible to its students at the same time as making it possible for them to complete their compulsory foreign language minor (Arabic, Hebrew Persian or Turkish) in two instead of three years. Their choice of courses enhancing their knowledge of the culture and literature of the region is also improved.
