

Proposed Revisions to NELC Programs of Study, April 2018

Summary

The Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures (NELC) is proposing a variety of changes to many of its programs of study. Here is a brief description of the rationale and changes, with details for each major and minor explained in greater detail below. Supporting documentation is also attached.

Current Issues:

1. No significant changes have been made to NELC department majors and minors since the semester conversion in 2012. At the same time, NELC faculty has changed dramatically.
2. Upper-level language courses are extremely small in Hebrew, Persian, and Turkish.
3. NELC majors and minors typically require three semesters of language study and a culture course as prerequisites (15 credits), representing a considerable prerequisite load.
4. NELC majors do not take many courses in other subfields in NELC.
5. Jewish Studies became part of NELC in 2017. There is a great deal of overlap between Hebrew and Jewish Studies majors and minors.

Proposed Changes:

1. New learning objectives have been developed for all majors and minors. New assessment plans have been developed for all majors.
2. Require only the introductory language sequence as prerequisite for majors and minors, moving culture course requirements inside of the majors and minors.
3. Allow majors to take a cognate elective, to better situate their studies in Near Eastern Languages and Cultures and related fields.
4. Revise required courses and elective lists for majors and minors, maintaining academic rigor while relying on courses that are offered on a regular basis, so that majors can complete requirements within four years and most minors can complete requirements within two years.
5. Require 4 semesters (Persian and Turkish) or 5 semesters (Arabic and Hebrew) of total language study for language minors, instead of 6 semesters.
6. Combine Hebrew and Jewish Studies majors into a single major, with distinct language and interdisciplinary tracks.
7. Create a minor in Islamic Studies with no language requirement (submitted via curriculum.osu.edu).
8. Expand the existing Turkish minor into a minor in Turkish and Central Asia Studies, to take advantage of OSU's existing resources in Central Asia Studies.
9. Modify course numbers and create new courses to ensure that there are sufficient upper-division courses for majors and minors, taught in foreign languages and in translation. Semester conversion created few 3000 level courses in the department. We are trying to distribute department courses in a logical manner, guided by the following criteria:
 - a. 2000: Intermediate Undergraduate: introductory courses
 - b. 3000: Upper Level Undergraduate: topic or theoretical courses
 - c. 4000: Advanced Undergraduate: in-depth courses
 - d. 5000: Advanced Undergraduate and Graduate Courses

In February 2018, NELC underwent external review. In their report, dated March 3, 2018, the external review committee included the following comment: "The process of reviewing and reforming the Department's curriculum is on the right track, showing wide collaboration among faculty."

Administering Department: Near Eastern Languages and Cultures

Proposed Implementation Date: August 2019

3. Islamic Studies

Degree: Islamic Studies

The Islamic Studies major is an interdisciplinary program that allows students to combine language study with courses in NELC, Religious Studies and History. This has led to challenges both in ensuring courses are offered on a regular basis and in assessing the major. Several of the courses currently required are taught by other departments (CMRS, History, Religious Studies), so NELC cannot control if/when they will be taught and how to assess majors' work. Additionally, staffing changes in NELC have made it difficult to offer some of the core courses for the major. Revisions aim to rethink the required categories and courses to encompass an interdisciplinary field and facilitate the timely completion of the major. Please note that we are also proposing a new minor in Islamic Studies, submitted via curriculum.osu.edu.

The current Islamic Studies major requires 4 prerequisites (15 credits) and 10 major courses (32 credits). It divides those major courses into 6 different categories, each category ranging from a single course (ie, Theory and Method in the Study of Religion: Religious Studies 3972) to an electives category in which students select 3 of 58 listed courses. However, many of these course, both inside and outside of NELC, are not taught on a regular basis. Additionally, at least one of these courses (Religious Studies 3972) has a new prerequisite (Religious Studies 2370), which means Islamic Studies majors functionally have to add an additional course in order to complete requirements.

Relatively few institutions are able to offer an Islamic students undergraduate major or minor, since it relies on advanced language instruction and interdisciplinary courses in Islamic Studies.

University	Major Prerequisites	Major Courses
Ohio State - current	4 (15 credits)	10 (32 credits)
Michigan	None	None
Texas	4 (16 credits)	8 (24 credits)
UCLA (Middle Eastern Studies)	0	11 courses
Ohio State – Revision	3 (12 credits)	9 (32 credits)

Proposed Revisions:

Non-language prerequisite moved inside of major. The Islamic Studies major currently requires one culture prerequisite in addition to the 3-semester introductory language sequence. That culture course would now be part of the major.

Updating required courses. Academic Advisor Tommy Beyl frequently reports that Islamic Majors have difficulty completing courses because many of the courses required for the major are taught by different departments, and have not been offered regularly. This revision changes the categories of required courses so that NELC can provide the courses that majors need to graduate.

- Required core courses, NELC 3501 and Religious Studies 2370 have no departmental prerequisites and are taught at least once per academic year.
- NELC is committing to offering at least one Qu'ran course and one additional Islamic religion course each academic year, as well as one Islamic Society and Culture course each semester.
- The electives list has been updated to include courses that are offered regularly, inside and outside of NELC.

Allow one cognate elective for the major, to encourage students to take one course toward the major in any of the NELC fields of study.

Revised Learning Objectives

1. Students develop intermediate competency in one language relevant to Islamic Studies (Arabic, Turkish, Persian).
2. Students demonstrate familiarity with Islamic cultures and communities in the past and present.
3. Students read and interpret critically a diverse range of Islamic texts and material artifacts.
4. Students learn to interpret critically Islamic beliefs, thought and practices.

Islamic Studies Assessment Plan
Near Eastern Languages and Cultures
March 2018

This document elucidates the assessment plan for the various majors offered by the department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures, according to the guidelines set by college. In doing so, it will enumerate the methods that will be used to assess whether the program goals (and learning objectives) are being met, align an evaluation method with each program goal (and learning objective) students should achieve, and specify the criteria that will be used to evaluate successful student learning. Moreover, it provides a timeline of the implementation of the proposed changes at the time of the submission of the proposal, and describes the methods the department will employ with the collected data over time, aimed at further improvements of the program in the future.

Islamic Studies Major:

The Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures (NELC) coordinates an interdisciplinary major in Islamic Studies, which studies the many different aspects of the Islamic Civilization, its development through times, as well as various specific aspects of the Islamic societies in past and present. The ISLAMIC STUDIES program allows students to combine relevant courses from a number of fields and disciplines pertaining to Islamic language, literatures, and cultures. In choosing elective courses, majors are not limited to the area commonly known as the Middle East, but rather are encouraged to explore the many dimensions of Islamic Studies across spatial and chronological boundaries.

GOAL 1. Students develop intermediate competency in one language relevant to Islamic Studies (Arabic, Turkish, Persian).

METHODS/MEANS:

Direct assessment: final exam/project in advanced language courses.

Instructors will be provided with guidelines and will choose the appropriate assignment/exam upon which to base the assessment. Instructors will also fill out a basic assessment report, reporting the percentage of students attaining various levels of proficiency (intermediate/intermediate high competency, etc.) at the end of the final semester of compulsory language instruction for the major.

EVALUATION/CRITERIA:

Majors must complete either Arabic 3105, Persian 2105 or Turkish 2102, though they may choose to complete more advanced language courses. Students who achieve 80% or higher on the final examination/project will meet department standards for intermediate competency in Arabic, Persian or Turkish language. Instructors may also choose to complete a short form rating language skills (achieve intermediate competency in speaking, reading, listening comprehension, and writing).

IMPLEMENTATION SCHEDULE: Autumn 2018

ASSESSMENT OF CHANGES MADE: Creating a way to assess student language proficiency across different languages relevant to the field of Islamic Studies. This will allow the department to assess whether Islamic Studies majors have the language skills to pursue major-level courses in the field.

NEXT STEP: The new assessment information will facilitate review of the Islamic Studies major program and the associated language programs, to be done on a yearly basis each May. In May 2018, after the initial year of assessment, the Curriculum Committee will assess whether this is an effective measure of student language proficiency and take necessary steps to improve the assessment plan.

GOAL 2. Students demonstrate familiarity with Islamic cultures and communities in the past and present.

METHODS/MEANS:

Direct assessment: portfolio and interview

Indirect assessment: student surveys

EVALUATION:

In order to directly assess that students have met the learning objectives established by the department for the ISLAMIC STUDIES Major, the department will follow a five-step process:

1. Instructors of all non-language NELC Islamic Studies courses at the 3000 level or higher will be required to identify one question or aspect of the final exam or final paper that relates to Islamic cultures and communities, past and present. (average: 2 courses per semester)
2. All final exams/final papers/final project (choose for each course) will be collected and filed in the NELC office at the end of each semester as a matter of standard practice.
3. Whenever a student declares the ISLAMIC STUDIES Major a portfolio folder for that student will be created and placed in the NELC office by the academic advisor. As a backup, audits will be performed at the end of each semester to confirm that the folders are up to date.
4. At the end of each semester office staff will sort final exams/final project/papers for all 3000-5000 level courses and place individual exams in appropriate portfolio folders for all ISLAMIC STUDIES majors.
5. If a professor chooses to include assessment questions and or projects in assignments other than the final exam that professor will be responsible for placing a copy of the graded assignment in the assessment folders for all majors taking the class

PORTFOLIO INTERVIEW

This is an in-person individual meeting between a NELC faculty member and declared majors in their year of coursework. Students will be asked to review their portfolio and to discuss materials contained in it. The meeting is envisioned as a 20-30 minute appointment, which will include discussion of work completed and questions designed to allow students to reflect on formative texts, concepts, figures and events that they encountered in their course of study. Professors will have a standard form to fill in after the meeting, rating the student on their familiarity with Islamic cultures and communities, past and present. A student with 80% rating or better will meet department standard for achieving familiarity with Islamic cultures and communities.

Indirect assessment will take place via two different surveys provided to undergraduate students:

1. In departmental student evaluations of instruction at the conclusion of each semester, students in 3000-5000 Arabic courses will be asked the following question:

Please rank from 1-5, with 1 being very little and 5 being a great deal:

After taking this course, I am more familiar with past and/or present Islamic cultures and communities.

2. All graduating students will complete a NELC Graduate Survey, administered as part of the portfolio interview (see below). They will be asked:

Please rank from 1-5, with 1 being very little and 5 being a great deal:

I can competently discuss different Islamic cultures and communities.

IMPLEMENTATION SCHEDULE: Ongoing

ASSESSMENT OF CHANGES MADE: New approach to assessment that combines direct assessment (portfolio and interview) with indirect assessment (student surveys).

NEXT STEP: The Curriculum Committee will evaluate the first-year implementation of the portfolio system at the conclusion of Academic Year 2018-2019. It will make recommendations to the Chair of Undergraduate Studies about portfolios as a mode of assessment and if necessary, recommend improvements to the portfolio.

GOAL 3. Students read and interpret critically a diverse range of Islamic texts and material artifacts.

METHODS/MEANS:

Direct assessment: portfolio and interview

Indirect assessment: student surveys

EVALUATION

The same five-step portfolio process and portfolio interview will be implemented with respect to Goal 3.

1. Instructors of all non-language Islamic courses at the 3000 level or higher will be required to identify one question or aspect of the final exam or final paper that demonstrates students' abilities to read and interpret critically different Islamic texts or material artifacts. (average: 2 courses per semester)

[steps 2-5 as described above]

PORTFOLIO INTERVIEW

During the portfolio interview, professors will rate student abilities to interpret critically a diverse set of Islamic texts and material artifacts. A student with 80% rating or better will meet the department standard for reading and interpreting critically a diverse range of Islamic texts and material artifacts.

Indirect assessment will take place via two different surveys provided to undergraduate students:

1. In departmental student evaluations of instruction at the conclusion of each semester, students in 3000-5000 Arabic courses will be asked the following question:

Please rank from 1-5, with 1 being very little and 5 being a great deal:

In this course, I have acquired skills to read Islamic texts or material artifacts and to interpret them.

2. All graduating students will complete a NELC Graduate Survey, administered as part of the portfolio interview (see below). They will be asked:

Please rank from 1-5, with 1 being very little and 5 being a great deal:

I have acquired the skills to read a variety of Islamic texts.

I have acquired the skills to interpret Islamic texts or material artifacts, in the original language or in translation.

IMPLEMENTATION SCHEDULE: Ongoing

ASSESSMENT OF CHANGES MADE: New approach to assessment that combines direct assessment (portfolio and interview) with indirect assessment (student surveys).

NEXT STEP: The Curriculum Committee will evaluate the first-year implementation of the portfolio system at the conclusion of Academic Year 2018-2019. It will make recommendations to the Chair of Undergraduate Studies about portfolios as a mode of assessment and if necessary, recommend improvements to the portfolio.

GOAL 4. Students learn to interpret critically Islamic beliefs, thought and practices.

METHODS/MEANS:

Direct assessment: portfolio and interview

Indirect assessment: student surveys

EVALUATION:

Subject: concurrence

Morgan,

Sorry for the delay in getting back to you – all the usual excuses! Anyway, here is IS's concurrence?

This is a note to confirm that International Studies endorses without exception the suite of changes that NELC is making to its undergraduate program. These changes are especially welcome to International Studies because they make NELC minors more flexible and accessible to its students at the same time as making it possible for them to complete their compulsory foreign language minor (Arabic, Hebrew Persian or Turkish) in two instead of three years. Their choice of courses enhancing their knowledge of the culture and literature of the region is also improved.
