Dear Professor Hubbe,

On Friday, October 25, the Social and Behavioral Sciences Panel of the ASC Curriculum Committee (ASCC) reviewed a proposal for new course Anthropology 7005.

The Panel did not vote on the course but would like the following matter addressed first:

The syllabus for the course is identical to the one that the Panel recently approved for Anthropology 3005 "Careers with Anthropology", except for the last 4 weeks in the schedule. The Panel would like an explanation on why those courses are offered at both the undergraduate and the graduate level with almost identical content. What would happen if a student were an undergraduate and later a graduate student in the Department? Has the Department considered offering both courses as one 5000-level course open to both undergraduate and graduate students with slightly different content/expectations/approaches for both groups? The panel can further help the department but first needs information on the intended relationship between 3005 and 7005.

If you have any questions about this feedback, do not hesitate to follow up with Susan Kline, faculty Chair of the SBS Panel (cc'd here). I will keep the course in our queue while awaiting the Department's response.

Best,
Bernadette
