Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

Online teaching approval

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

Enhancing the delivery mode for this course offers an opportunity to vastly expand the potential student enrollment base beyond what has been typical in this class. Students will be able to take this class regardless of their campus affiliation and those who are not resident in Ohio will also have access to it. This change to permit full online delivery is also consistent with the History Department's goals of expanding enrollment, greater outreach to new student constituencies, and flexibility in instructional/pedagogical approaches. The shift to permit DL designation for this course will not entail any additional fiscal or logistical commitments on the part of the instructor or Department.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?

(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

n/a

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? No

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Course description

This course explores the rich, complex, and varied history of Islam in Africa. We will approach the subject from religious, social, cultural, historical, and political angles as we attempt to deepen our understanding of the impact Islam and the Muslim world has had on the African continent and its peoples, as well as the ways in which Africans have shaped the development, practice, spread, and importance (locally and globally) of Islam and the Muslim world. There are roughly as many Muslims in Africa as there are Christians. However, whereas Christianity's presence in Africa is largely the result of European missionaries arriving with European colonialists in the 19th and 20th centuries, Islam has been a major religion over large parts of Africa since the 600s, spreading rapidly even under European colonial rule in the 20th century. Islamists are important forces in African politics. Islam has deeply shaped many African cultures. And Islam has been formative in legal and economic practices throughout the continent. Moreover, Africans have given their own interpretations to Islamic practice and even theological suppositions, incorporating many pre-Islamic aspects into their Islam. Throughout the course we will look at legal schools, education systems, the relationship between politics and religion, the rural/urban divide, gender roles, cultural traditions, the organization of Muslim communities, and the economic implications of Islam for Africa. We will cover nearly 1500 years of history over a large part of the world's second largest continent with the greatest linguistic and cultural diversity of any landmass. Consequently, we will not be able to examine everything in detail but will highlight some local occurrences in order to reflect on more general trends, which will be the essence of our journey. It is expected that students will engage with the material and bring their own insights to the subjects raised over the course of the semester. The course is organized around a combination of lectures, readings, discussions, and expository exercises – exams, short writing assignments, and a ten-page paper. Attendance and participation are vital for your and the course’s success. You will have to complete each module before you are able to advance to the next module. Within each module you will have to complete all the sections before you are permitted to advance to the next module. Each module will open at the start of each week and remain open throughout the course, so you can always go back and review previous material for the course.

GE Course Information

Historical Study:

Goals:

Recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today’s society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Weekly Online Discussions:

Online discussions are a means to explore the course material and personal interests (as they relate to the class) in greater depth than is possible through the recorded lectures and the readings. They are designed to foster interaction and introspection on specific aspects of the course material. Each week a new subject theme will be posted on the course's Carmen website. Students are expected to participate in weekly conversations by posting reactions to that week's topic. A paragraph will be sufficient for credit although it is hoped that students will fully engage with the topics. They can also be spaces for exploring ideas about the paper, when relevant. Students may also revisit themes throughout the semester as part of on-going conversations. The subjects will be posted by Monday and students are expected to have made their interventions by the end of the day on Sunday, except for the last week since it only has one day of class and the discussions must be posted by the end of that day. Grading will be done based on whether the student has participated or not. A couple of words is NOT sufficient. You must write at least a few sentences to get credit. Retroactive credit also WILL NOT be given.

Weekly Short Writing Assignments:

The short writing assignments, due by the end of the day each Sunday for the weekly module except for the final week when the assignment will be due by the end of the day Monday since it is the last class, will be comprised of responses to questions posted that relate to the readings and lectures posted for that week. They are designed to offer in-depth analysis of core concepts explored through that's week's subjects. The weekly writing assignments are building blocks for the term paper as well as preparation for the mid-term and final exams. Each week the instructor will post the guiding questions that relate to that week's material and students are expected to write a one-page paper responding to those prompts by using information from the readings and the lectures for that week. In the rare week when there is not any assigned reading, the responses will be based on material presented in the recorded lectures for that week. Grading will be based on completeness in responding to the prompts, use of the materials from the week, and quality of the analysis. Unlike the discussions, the short writing assignments will have a numerical grade associated with them.

Paper Assignment:

Warning: PLAGIARISM is illegal. If you quote directly from a text without proper markings (quote marks and a notation of the source) it is PLAGIARISM. If you turn in work that is not your own original work produced exclusively for this class, it is also PLAGIARISM. If you summarize a text without proper notation, it is PLAGIARISM. Those who submit plagiarized work are subject to dismissal from the University, automatic failing grade for the course, diminished grade for the paper, academic probation, and, in severe cases, prosecution.

Project Goals and Guidelines: Each student, in consultation with the instructor, must develop a topic of interest that fits within the broad rubric of the course subject: The History of Islam in Africa. The paper topic must be approved by the instructor. Students should develop topics that can be realistically completed within the limited time period of the quarter. Also, the topics should be attentive to the availability of resources to complete the project. While this is not a major research paper, students are expected to do some outside research, beyond the required readings for the course, in order to complete the project. The goals of the assignment are to produce a piece of original writing about the history of Islam in Africa, to enhance writing skills, acquaint the student more intimately with the Islamic experience in Africa and the African experience with Islam, and open new perspectives on how we view the world and the people in it.

Evaluation and Grading of the Paper: The paper will be assessed in accordance with how well the student has formulated the topic and followed through on it in the course of research and writing. The paper should be written in a rigorous fashion. It will be evaluated according to how well the student has kept to the main argument and the issues that guide the research. Presentation (grammar, spelling, punctuation, diction, organization, and format) is an integral part of the project and therefore will have a significant effect on the overall appraisal of the work. Proper notation is important in scholarly work and will be used to assess the paper.

The paper must meet the following technical requirements:

Tabs to indent first lines of paragraphs 0.5"

All work must be Double-Spaced

Typed or computer generated

12 pt. text size

Times New Roman Font

No extra spacing between paragraphs

No sub-heads

No footnotes or endnotes

All pages must be numbered at the bottom center

References (citations) formulated as: following the citation (author's last name: p. #)

Names to appear on a separate cover sheet affixed to the front of page 1 of the essay.

Length is 10 pages minimum 12 pages maximum excluding notes and sources

Sources Used section attached at the end

Must be submitted in either Word or PDF format

Students must make use of at least two of the four texts assigned for the class and three outside sources. Outside sources can be approved Internet sites however check with the instructor beforehand to make sure the source is reputable.

Late assignments

Please contact me at least three days before an assignment is due if you think you will need to turn it in late. I will take late assignments on a case-by-case basis.

Faculty feedback and response time

I am providing the following list to give you an idea of my intended availability throughout the course. (Remember that you can call 614-688-HELP at any time if you have a technical problem.)

Grading and feedback

For large weekly assignments, you can generally expect feedback within 7 days.

E-mail

I will reply to e-mails within 24 hours on school days.

Discussion board

I will check and reply to messages in the discussion boards every 24 hours on school days.

Attendance, participation, and discussions

Student participation requirements

Because this is a distance-education course, your attendance is based on your online activity and participation. The following is a summary of everyone's expected participation:

- Logging in:
Be sure you are logging in to the course in Carmen each week, including weeks with holidays or weeks with minimal online course activity. (During most weeks you will probably log in many times.) If you have a situation that might cause you to miss an entire week of class, discuss it with me as soon as possible.

- Office hours and live sessions:

All live, scheduled events for the course, including my office hours, are optional. For live presentations, I will provide a recording that you can watch later. If you are required to discuss an assignment with me, please contact me at the beginning of the week if you need a time outside my scheduled office hours.

- Participating in discussion forums:

As participation, each week you can expect to post at least four times as part of our substantive class discussion on the week's topics.

Discussion and communication guidelines

The following are my expectations for how we should communicate as a class. Above all, please remember to be respectful and thoughtful.

- Writing style: While there is no need to participate in class discussions as if you were writing a research paper, you should remember to write using good grammar, spelling, and punctuation. Informality (including an occasional emoticon) is fine for non-academic topics.
- Tone and civility: Let's maintain a supportive learning community where everyone feels safe and where people can disagree amicably. Remember that sarcasm doesn't always come across online.
- Citing your sources: When we have academic discussions, please cite your sources to back up what you say. (For the textbook or other course materials, list at least the title and page numbers. For online sources, include a link.)
- Backing up your work: Consider composing your academic posts in a word processor, where you can save your work, and then copying into the Carmen discussion.

Policies for this online course

- Quizzes and exams: You must complete the midterm and final exams yourself, without any external help or communication. Weekly quizzes are included as self-checks without points attached.
- Written assignments: Your written assignments, including discussion posts, should be your own original work. In formal assignments, you should follow MLA style to cite the ideas and words of your research sources. You are encouraged to ask a trusted person to proofread your assignments before you turn them in--but no one else should revise or rewrite your work.
- Reusing past work: In general, you are prohibited in university courses from turning in work from a past class to your current class, even if you modify it. If you want to build on past research or revisit a topic you've explored in previous courses, please discuss the situation with me.
- Falsifying research or results: All research you will conduct in this course is intended to be a learning experience; you should never feel tempted to make your results or your library research look more successful than it was.
- Collaboration and informal peer-review: The course includes many opportunities for formal collaboration with your classmates. While study groups and peer-review of major written projects is encouraged, remember that comparing answers on a quiz or assignment is not permitted. If you're unsure about a particular situation, please feel free just to ask ahead of time.
- Group projects: This course includes group projects, which can be stressful for students when it comes to dividing work, taking credit, and receiving grades and feedback. I have attempted to make the guidelines for group work as clear as possible for each activity and assignment, but please let me know if you have any questions.

Ohio State's academic integrity policy

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>.

Statement on title IX

Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are Civil Rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories (e.g., race). If you or someone you know has been sexually harassed or assaulted, you may find the appropriate resources at <http://titleix.osu.edu> or by contacting the Ohio State Title IX Coordinator, Kellie Brennan, at titleix@osu.edu

Accessibility accommodations for students with disabilities

The University strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. Your mental health!

As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614- 292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1-800-273- TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org

Course Description and Objective

This course explores the development and expansion of Islam in Africa from about the 8th century CE to the present. It will address historical contingencies that account for Islam's local receptivity as well as its dynamic interactions with local cultures, politics, traditional religions, Christianity and European colonialism. While the Islamization of Africa is important for understanding African history, the Africanization of Islam is equally important. Consequently, we will seek to understand the dialectical relationship between Islam and African religious and cultural expressions, especially how Islam transformed and was transformed by indigenous religious knowledge, cultures and polity. We will further analyze how African Muslims reconstructed and asserted their religious identities by localizing Islamic intellectual traditions, healing practices, music, arts, cultural norms and formal and informal religious festivals. We will also examine current issues in contemporary African Muslim societies such as internal debates about spiritual purity such as between members of Sufi brotherhoods and their opponents, the Salafi, the complex relationship between Islam and the secular state, Islam and socio-economic developments, and Muslims engagements with people of other faiths. Rather than homogenizing Islam in Africa, we will explore diverse religious practices across time and space even as we pay attention to common denominators and patterns. By the end of the semester, students should be able to appreciate Islam's common framework as well as its diversity and dynamics within that larger framework. In particular, students should be able to explain the nuances of religious affiliations, cooperation and conflicts, and to understand the difference between religious politics and faith.

Academic Goals

The main academic goal of this class is to introduce students to the skills and techniques for critical reading and analyses of primary and secondary historical materials, as well as developing the skills for analyzing global events from a historical perspective. However, rather than completing an entire research project to meet this goal, students will conduct a number of smaller writing exercises each week, and a short paper at the end of the semester. In addition students will take a number of quizzes designed to ensure the readings are done diligently. Students should leave this course with the ability to engage in well-informed discussions about the history of Islam in Africa and to be able to use these skills to understand the history of Islam in a global context.

Expected Learning Outcome

The selected readings, videos and academic exercises are intended to help student:

1. To understand how past events are studied and how these events influence today's society and the human condition.
2. To recognize the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.
3. To acquire the skills necessary to construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
4. To describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
5. To speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.
6. To describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures.
7. To recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

In addition, this course is designed to help students:

8. Understand a broad history of Africa through the historical development of Islam and its impacts on African societies;
9. Acquire a general knowledge of Africa appropriate for a global citizen, including Africa's geography, cultural, ethnic and linguistic diversity'
10. Build on their general knowledge to gain scholarly and specialist knowledge of African institutions, societies, and history. This means being able to engage Africa critically, recognize stereotypes, unpack essentialization, dismiss generalized myths about Africa, and move beyond dichotomous thinking.
11. Learn to think like historians in posing and answering questions historical questions.
12. Gain and deploy intellectual frameworks for approaching the study of religions as part of developing the skills for understanding the ways religion shapes cultural identities and human interactions.

GE Fulfillments
Historical Studies

The course also fulfills Group Africa, pre-1750 for History Majors.

Prerequisite: No Prerequisite

Course Readings

The assigned readings include small and accessible books, academic articles, book chapters and documentaries. The following required books are available from various online vendors:

- (1) Hal Marcovitz, Islam in Africa (Africa: Progress and Problems) Kindle Edition; Amazon Digital Services, Inc.

This book provides accessible overview of Islam in Africa. Though it is a Kindle Edition, you can also download it to your PC or Mac.

- (2) David Robinson, Muslim Societies in African History, (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press) 2004

This book provides some specific case studies of the development of Islam in Africa. It is a very accessible book, intended for general as well as academic audiences. We will read the chapters in specific segments of the course.

- (3) Richard Smith, Ahmad al-Mansur: Islamic Visionary, Pearson Education, Inc. 2006.

This very interesting and tightly packed but accessible book, offers a close look at the shifting political landscapes of Europe, North Africa and West Africa during the 16th century that had a profound impact on Muslim societies in northern and western Africa. The biographical analyses of Ahmad al-Mansur, the King of Morocco during the 16th century, will help us explore the complex relationship between North African Muslim dynasties and their European counterparts during the 16th century. The story of al-Mansur's political maneuvering at the time when Europe was emerging as a global naval power provides critical historical contexts for understanding a number of themes in African Islamic history, especially the politicization of jihad as an instrument of state expansion, political alliances between a North African Muslim dynasty and Christian Europe, and the impact of the collapse of Songhay, the last medieval Islamic West African kingdom, on the modern history of West African Islam.

- (4) Additional assigned journal articles and book chapters are part of the required readings and therefore must not be ignored. Most of these will be posted to Carmen under Readings in the Content module

Videos

Assigned videos/documentaries are parts of required course materials, and they will be made available via either a YouTube link or through the university media streaming services. You will need to download the appropriate software to view the videos made available through the media library. The University streaming website is:
<https://drm.osu.edu/media/>

Supplementary Resources

Many scholarly articles related to Islam in Africa can be found in academic journals in places such as jstor.org. A few of the journals that are closest to the topic of this course include, Journal of Religion in Africa, Journal of African History, and Journal of Muslim Minority Nations.

There are also several books and reference materials that provide general information on a wide range of topics related to the history of religion in Africa more broadly as well as the history of Islam. These include:

The Encyclopedia of African and African-American Religions (BL2462.5 E53)

Encyclopedia of Islam Online

The Oxford Encyclopedia of the Islamic World

The Encyclopedia of Islam and the Muslim World

Encyclopedia of Twentieth-Century African History (DT29 E53)

The UNESCO General History of Africa (DT20 G45)

Course Requirements

Map Quiz: Multiple-Choice Questions (10%)

Because Africa is vast territorially and culturally, it is important that we study the locations of the countries and other geographical landscapes that make up the continent. The map quiz is thus intended to encourage you to become familiar with the locations of African countries, regions and topography that are important for understanding the content of the course and the reading materials. A mere online search will produce a plethora of African maps that you can use to study for the quiz. I encourage you to pay attention to regional geo-political divisions (explained in week one's lecture), the major island countries, and old names of some of the countries, e.g. Northern and Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Congo/Zaire, Upper Volta, etc.

Thematic Response Papers (30%)

In the thematic response papers you should identify the main points in the readings and state how they relate to or fail to connect with previous readings. I would like to know the extent to which you engaged the materials through demonstration of critical reading and analysis. Specific instructions will be given for each assignment.

5 Quizzes (25%)

There will be five quizzes during the semester. Each quiz will comprise 10 multiple-choice questions for a total of 5%, and they will be available during a forty-eight -hour period from midnight on Thursdays to midnight on Fridays. See the syllabus for specific closing dates of each syllabus. Once you open the quiz, you will have 45 minutes to complete it. The quizzes will be extracted from the readings, lectures and other materials for that week and or the previous week. The purpose of this exercise is to ensure students complete the readings and other materials related to the course. Most of the questions will therefore assess your understanding of the main ideas as well as historical facts in the assigned readings and related materials.

Discussion (30%)

As a discussion intensive course, your participation in discussion is a critical component of the learning process. We will assign you to specific discussion groups and you will be responsible for posting your responses to the discussion board in your group. Your responses should be thoughtful and creative, to demonstrate that you read and engaged with the readings and related materials. We strongly encourage you to feel free to initiate discussion among yourselves. In fact, the highest discussion points WILL be awarded to those who creatively initiate lively conversations in their groups as well as those whose responses demonstrate critical thinking and understanding of the materials. In order words, vague responses will result in a lower grade. Specific instructions will be provided for each discussion assignment (See also p 7). There is also a Q&A discussion module in Carmen for you to post your questions or concerns. Anyone can respond to the questions or concerns of their peers, but I will intervene when it is obvious that no one has the answer. Be patient, as we will give your colleagues the chance to respond and we intervene when necessary. Questions requiring immediate response should be sent by email to the TA or the instructor through email.

Final Exams (15%)

The final paper is an opportunity for you to either conduct a short research on a narrow topic or write a review essay by comparing two books on Islam in Africa. Detailed instructions for the final paper will be provided by the third week of the semester and posted to Carmen.

Other Requirements

Enrollment

All students must be officially enrolled in the course by the end of the second full week of the semester. No requests to add the course will be approved by the department chair after that time. Enrolling officially and on time is solely the responsibility of the student.

Readings and Lectures

This course draws on a wide variety of sources, and reading is one of the key ways students are expected to learn. The amount of readings varies each week, but the average week's reading is about 75 pages. Although this is an online class, students are expected to allocate time for reading and listening to lectures as they would do in a face-to-face class. This corresponds to 2 ½ hours per week. In addition, students are expected to spend a minimum of 6 hours per week for completing required readings, including videos, and completing all other assignments for that week. Obviously, a longer time may be required for completing some of the writing assignments.

Online Classes

A major difference between a face-to-face class and an online class is the emphases on reading and writing. In contrast to a face2face class, where students listen to lectures and vocalize their responses during discussions and Q&A, an online class requires reading and listening to lectures, and writing responses to discussion questions. Consequently, an online class helps to sharpen students' writing and reading skills, with limited impacts on oral and aural skills. This information should help you decide whether an online class such as this will contribute to developing the skills you would like to possess. Obviously, all these skills are relatively important for academic development, but their impacts vary depending on individuals.

Submission of work

All assignments are due at the time/date indicated on the syllabus. All written assignments should be typed, double-spaced, with 1-inch margins and in a 12-point font. Your name should be on the first page and all pages should be numbered.

Tardiness

A late submission of assignments is unacceptable. Each day of tardiness will result in a reduction of one letter grade (e.g. from A to B) earned in that specific assignment. Any assignments submitted three days after the due date without the instructor's prior permission will receive an automatic "E" grade. Requests for extension of scheduled assignments will not be granted except under extraordinary and verifiable circumstances.

My Commitment to Your Success

The instructor is committed to helping you succeed in this course, so please consult me if you are having difficulties in the course and I will make every effort to accommodate your needs but in ways that will not give you undue advantage over your colleagues. You may find helpful hints on study strategies at <http://all.successcenter.ohio-state.edu/>

Your Commitment

You agree that you will make your best effort to succeed and you will bring to the attention of the instructor any difficulties you might encounter in the course. To do well, you should complete the readings and all assignments. The course is designed for you to succeed and we look forward to helping you achieve your objectives. You also agree to use courteous language in your communications with the instructor and his assistants, as well as your colleagues. Finally, you agree to provide honest feedback in the SEI as well as through email communication to the instructor. Your feedback is immensely valuable and will be greatly appreciated.

Religious Holidays

We respect all religious holidays. You should therefore, not hesitate to request an extension for an assignment in order observe a religious holiday.

Plagiarism and academic misconduct:

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct (COAM) to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed, illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations and other types of tests. Plagiarism is presenting another person's words, ideas, or sequence of arguments as your own without attribution. We will discuss what constitutes plagiarism and how to cite sources properly in this course. If at any point, however, you have a question about this, please ask. If you are tempted to plagiarize or find yourself using material from the Internet or any other source and trying to pass it off as your own, stop working on the assignment and contact the instructor. It is better to submit work late than to violate the Code of Student Conduct. It is the instructors' responsibility to report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487), and the professor and discussion section leaders take this responsibility seriously. Because this is an online course, we pay closer attention to activities that can be defined as plagiarism. All writing assignments will include instructions on how to cite external sources. For additional information, please consult the Code of Student Conduct at: (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/resource_csc.asp). Here is a direct link for discussion of plagiarism:

http://cstw.osu.edu/writingCenter/handouts/research_plagiarism.cfm.

OSU Writing Center

Since your grade for this course will be largely determined by the quality of your writing, I strongly recommend that you make good use of the Writing Center. Seeking assistance from the Writing Center DOES NOT constitute academic misconduct. Consult the Center's website for further information. <http://cstw.osu.edu>

Disability Services

Students with disabilities that have been certified by the Office for Disability Services will be appropriately accommodated, and should inform the instructor as soon as possible of their needs. The Office for Disability Services is located in 150 Pomerene Hall, 1760 Neil Avenue; telephone 292-3307, TDD 292-0901; <http://www.ods.ohio-state.edu/>

Courtesy

As in all human interactions, virtual or otherwise, we expect you to use appropriate language in all your communications in this course. Discourteous behavior and or the use of unacceptable language violate(s) The Ohio State University's rule of classroom conduct that apply to virtual space as well. Failure to observe academic decorum will be reported to the appropriate authorities.

Email and Office Hours

Since this is an online class, we will communicate mostly by emails. Please, it will be helpful to create a separate folder in your email, if possible, in order to track all correspondence from this class. I am also happy to respond to your email messages provided you bear in mind the following points. In academic and professional settings, all emails should have a descriptive subject line ("Question about History 3304 assignment"), begin with a respectful salutation ("Prof. Kobo"), and conform to standard English with proper punctuation and capitalization. An excellent overview of how students can most effectively use email with their professors can be found at this link: "How to e-mail a professor" <<http://mleddy.blogspot.com/2005/01/how-to-e-mail-professor.html>>

My intention is to answer all emails from students within twenty-four hours. However, due to official travels and service commitments, it might take up to forty hours to reply to some emails. I respectfully request that you explore all options for answers to your concerns, including reading this syllabus and other group email correspondences, for answers to your questions before contacting me. This consideration will enable me attend to urgent matters related to the class more efficiently. I will also be available for face-to-face meeting but you should send me an email to request such meetings. If you have written to me and have not heard back within forty hours, please resend the message.

Course technology

Baseline technical skills necessary for online courses

- Basic computer and web-browsing skills
- Navigating Carmen

Technology skills necessary for this specific course

- CarmenConnect text, audio, and video chat
- Collaborating in CarmenWiki
- Recording a slide presentation with audio narration
- Recording, editing, and uploading video

Necessary equipment

- Computer: current Mac (OS X) or PC (Windows 7+) with high-speed internet connection
- Webcam: built-in or external webcam, fully installed
- Microphone: built-in laptop or tablet mic or external microphone

Faculty feedback and response time

I am providing the following list to give you an idea of my intended availability throughout the course. (Remember that you can call 614-688-HELP at any time if you have a technical problem.)

Grading and feedback

For large weekly assignments, you can generally expect feedback within 7 days.

Student participation requirements

Because this is a distance-education course, your attendance is based on your online activity and participation. The following is a summary of everyone's expected participation:

- Logging in: AT LEAST ONCE PER WEEK
Be sure you are logging in to the course in Carmen each week, including weeks with holidays or weeks with minimal online course activity. (During most weeks you will probably log in many times.) If you have a situation that might cause you to miss an entire week of class, discuss it with me as soon as possible.
- Office hours and live sessions: OPTIONAL OR FLEXIBLE
All live, scheduled events for the course, including my office hours, are optional. If you are required to discuss an assignment with me, please contact me at the beginning of the week if you need a time outside my scheduled office hours.

- Participating in discussion forums: 4+ TIMES PER WEEK

I expect you to post at least four times as part of our substantive class discussion on the week's topics.

Discussion and communication guidelines

I will check and reply to Q&A messages in the discussion boards every 24 hours on school days. The following are my expectations for how we should communicate as a class. Above all, please remember to be respectful and thoughtful.

- Writing style: While there is no need to participate in class discussions as if you were writing a research paper, you should remember to write using good grammar, spelling, and punctuation. Informality (including an occasional emoticon) is fine for non-academic topics.
- Tone and civility: Let's maintain a supportive learning community where everyone feels safe and where people can disagree amicably. Remember that sarcasm doesn't always come across online.
- Citing your sources: When we have academic discussions, please cite your sources to back up what you say. (For the textbook or other course materials, list at least the title and page numbers. For online sources, include a link.)
- Backing up your work: Consider composing your academic posts in a word processor, where you can save your work, and then copying into the Carmen discussion. Please use accessible word processing software.

Basic Reading Strategies

For long articles and chapters, I recommend that you first read the introduction and conclusion to identify the main arguments. Write these down. Read the entire texts quickly for details and supporting evidence. Go back and read relevant parts of the introduction and conclusion, and then examine the evidence that support the argument. Is the writer providing general information about a historical event or is s/he participating in a debate about a specific argument that historians have not agreed upon? What does the writer contribute to the larger literature? Are you convinced and why? Write down what you have learned from the reading. Speed reading is good but don't read too fast to miss the main points. Ignore difficult names that are not pertinent to the main idea. Ask questions in the Q&A and be ready to participate in discussion.

How your paper will be graded

The following information should help you understand how we will grade your papers, in addition to the content.

An "A" paper must meet the following criteria:

Must be an analytical and not a descriptive paper

A descriptive paper is one that simply describes an event or an individual without analyzing the events or the individual's significance to history and to that specific event. A descriptive paper tells the story. It is the style used by media reporters who are expected to be neutral in presenting the facts. Their responsibility is to report. But when analysis is needed to help the audience understand what is going on, they often invite specialists to analyze, explain or provide commentary. In this analogy, an “A” student plays the role of a specialist.

An analytical paper is the one that helps readers see the nuances of the event by drawing their attention to certain subtleties that are not readily visible. An analytical paper demonstrates deeper knowledge whereas a descriptive paper indicates that the writer has only a superficial knowledge of the event or episode, or is just not interested!

Must have a well-articulated thesis statement that is defended with substantial evidence

The following is an example of a good thesis statement: “In this paper I will demonstrate that the Almoravids did not cause the collapse of the Old Ghana Empire through military conquests. Rather, the Almoravids contributed to Ghana’s decline by depriving it of tax revenue when it shifted the trans-Saharan trade routes away from areas controlled by Ghana.” Please, be more subtle than the above example!

Any paper that lacks a well-articulated thesis statement will often end up being descriptive.

Must pay attention to grammatical rules. A couple of intricate grammatical errors in punctuation, unavoidable verbosity, minor typos and the like will not be penalized provided there are only a few of them.

Must be well organized in terms of:

a good introduction with a clearly stated thesis,
a coherent body that supports the thesis with evidence,
a good conclusion drawn from the evidence and linked to the thesis statement.

To use our Almoravid example, a good conclusion may look like this:

“The materials I have examined in this paper indicate that the Almoravid did not engage in direct military conflicts with the Old Ghana Empire. Rather, the Almoravids employed their military powers to shift the trading routes away from Ghana, thus depriving the empire of revenue. By the 11th century, Ghana was already experiencing internal economic crises and needed such revenue to sustain itself. It may therefore be more accurate to argue that the Almoravids contributed to Ghana’s decline by depriving it of vital tax revenue, which would have helped Ghana maintain a strong army needed to ensure the continued loyalty of its tributary states. Many of the tributary states that formed part of the empire had begun to declare their independence even before the rise of the Almoravids. The Almoravids simply facilitated the slow disintegration of the Ghana Empire by adding economic pressure to already strained political relations with its suzerain states; the military conquest hypothesis is just not supported by available evidence.”

Must be based on clear understanding of the authors’ arguments (i.e. not misrepresenting the author’s point of view).

Must use acceptable referencing format as suggested for each specific assignment.

Other Grades:

A “D” paper is one that fails to meet all the above criteria and suggests that the author has limited knowledge of the topic or lacks interest in the subject.

A paper that is not relevant for the course will also end up with a D or C-

A well-written but descriptive paper will be awarded at most a B grade

A B+ or A- will depend on the degree of quality in comparison with an “A” paper.

GE ASSESSMENT PLAN

A. Historical Studies

ELO 1: Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.

Methods of Assessment:

1. Direct Measure:

Specific Question/Assignment: There will be a question on the mid-term/final exam to assess students' ability to construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.

Sample: Legalist and Sufi Islam have had major, but different impacts on the spread and practice of Islam in Africa. West African societies have been shaped by the often-competing influences of Legalism and Sufism. Write an essay in which you respond to the above statement, assessing the impact of legalism and Sufism on West African Muslim societies.

Assessment Rubric:

Excellent	Good	Fair	Poor
Demonstrates a robust, critical, integrated and self-aware understanding of history and the factors that shape human activity.	Demonstrates adequate and integrated understanding of history and the factors that shape human activity.	Demonstrates modest understanding of history and the factors that shape human activity.	Demonstrates little or no understanding of history and the factors that shape human activity.

2. Indirect measure:

Students will complete an informal feedback survey that rates their experience. They will hand these in before the final.

Directions: In order to assess the effectiveness of this General Education course, we are asking for students' input on learning objectives. Please place an X in grid below to indicate how strongly you agree that this course provided you with opportunities to meet the learning objectives. You may type in comments in the space provided. All responses are anonymous.

This course provided opportunities for me to meet this objective.

Agree Strongly	Agree	Neutral	Disagree	Disagree strongly

Please explain:

Level of student achievement expected for the ELO: Expected score: 75% of students good or better and agree or agree strongly that course meets objectives.

Assessment Evaluation Goals:

A brief summary report will be written and be made available to the Chair of the department. We intend to ensure that the proposed course adequately articulates these goals, teaches toward them, tests for them, and helps students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

ELO 2: Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.

Methods of Assessment:

1. Direct Measure:

Specific Question/Assignment: a question will appear on the midterm or final to assess students' ability to describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.

Sample question: For the last two centuries Africa has been home to a variety of movements characterized as "reformist." Write an essay in which you discuss three major types of reformist Islam giving their goals and from where they derived their support. Be able to give some examples of reformist movements in your answer.

Assessment Rubric:

Excellent	Good	Fair	Poor
Demonstrates a robust, critical, and self-aware analysis of the origins and nature of contemporary issues.	Demonstrates adequate and critical understanding of the origins and nature of contemporary issues.	Demonstrates modest understanding of the origins and nature of contemporary issues.	Demonstrates little or no understanding of the origins and nature of contemporary issues.

2. Indirect measure:

Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

ELO 3: Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Methods of Assessment:

1. Direct Measure:

Specific Question/Assignment: Students will write a term paper (10-12 pages) to assess students' ability to speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

Sample question: Using primary sources as well as the assigned readings write a term paper in which you discuss a significant aspect of or event in the history of Islam in Africa. While the topic is of your choosing in consultation with the instructor, it should engage with the subject in its historic context and analyze what that aspect or event meant for the legacy of Islam in Africa today?

Assessment Rubric:

Students will complete an informal feedback survey that rates their experience. They will hand these in before the final.

Directions: In order to assess the effectiveness of this General Education course, we are asking for students' input on learning objectives. Please place an X in grid below to indicate how strongly you agree that this course provided you with opportunities to meet the learning objectives. You may type in comments in the space provided. All responses are anonymous.

This course provided opportunities for me to meet this objective.

Agree Strongly	Agree	Neutral	Disagree	Disagree strongly

Please explain:

Level of student achievement expected for the ELO: Expected score: 75% of students good or better and agree or agree strongly that course meets objectives.

Assessment Evaluation Goals:

A brief summary report will be written and be made available to the Chair of the department. We intend to ensure that the proposed course adequately articulates these goals, teaches toward them, tests for them, and helps students realize their individual potential to meet them. Assessments will be summarized and used to alter the course for the next teaching.

B. Diversity- Global Studies

ELO 1: Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples and cultures outside the U.S.

1. Direct Measure:

Specific Question/Assignment: a question will appear on the midterm or final to assess students' ability to understand the economic, political, cultural, and social dimensions of the past and present societies of Africa and will learn to weigh the various aspects of these dimensions in their understanding of the past and present.

Sample: “Despite their relative absence in Muslim societies of Africa today, the sects of Shi’a and Kharijite Islam were vital to the spread and development of Islam in Africa during its formative centuries.” Write an essay responding to the statement.

Assessment Rubric:
