Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

The Department of African American and African Studies and History would like to offer a 100% online version of AFAMAST 3083 and History 3083.

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

AFAMAST and HISTORY 3083 is a very popular course among OSU students. Adding a second delivery mode allows the Departments to reach an even larger audience. Additionally, this course is an elective for a couple of certificates. Therefore we believe creating a distance learning version will enable students to more efficiently complete the certificate requirements.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?

(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

N/A

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? No

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Course description

The Civil Rights Movement is one of the most significant social and political developments in American history. The African American pursuit of equality has been long and arduous. While this quest can be said to start on the shores of Africa we will start our examination during the Civil War era; quickly moving to the “nadir”; and the New Deal and World War II era activism. We will then examine what has been called the “high tide” of the Civil Rights Movement, 1955-65. This era largely conducted in the South was initially led by an older generation of activists who were quickly overtaken by young people (largely students) and working people who wanted “freedom” now. As the South began to respond to the activist phase, the conflict shifted to the North where victories were few. The sluggishness of the northern response led to the urban uprisings of the 1960s and the cries of “Black Power.” These tensions, in turn, led to a splintering of the movement but not its end. And indeed, largely due to the voter suppression attempts around the nation as well as the recent spate of police encounters, the Movement is being re-invigorated.

Course learning outcomes

By the end of this course, students should successfully be able to:

- To understand how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.
- To recognize the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the Africa and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.
- To acquire the skills necessary to construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
- To describe and analyze the origins and nature of historical issues.
- To speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas within their historical contexts.

Discussion Board

Each week you must make at least one initial post and one response post related to that week's readings. The instructor will also engage in discussion by posting a topic that students can choose to respond to and engaging with the responses. At the end of each week the instructor will provide a written response that places the discussions in the proper historical context and offer feedback on the topics explored.

Length:

Initial posts need to be at least 250 words in length and must be posted by 11:59pm on Tuesday of each week. You must also include at least one question for classmates to respond to, the question should be well thought out and require some critical thinking skills.

Response posts need to be at least 150 words in length and must be posted by 11:59pm on Friday of each week.

Substance:

A substantive post consists of a well-thought-out response to the question or prompt. It should respond to the prompt in a way that clearly supports a position, begins a new line of thought, or somehow adds to the discussion by critically reflecting on what is being discussed or moving the discussion in a related direction. Replies to classmates' posts should likewise be substantive. Simple replies like, "I agree, your point was well taken" or "I understand your point of view," general comments on the quality of the original post, or simply restating the idea of the person you are responding to do NOT qualify as substantive posts. In addition to being substantive, it is important to recognize that although this is a "discussion," certain linguistic conventions are not appropriate in written form. As our discussion takes place in a written format, it is expected that you will take time to formulate your ideas, organize them, and compose them in the formal style you would use in a term paper.

Exams:

Both the midterm and final exam that will both consist of 2-3 IDs and 1 essay question. Once you open the exam you will have 24 hours to submit your responses to the drop box. Each response will need to include appropriate in-text citations and include details from the texts as well as information gleaned during our discussion posts. Exams will be proctored utilizing Proctorio via our Carmen site.

1. Each ID needs to be at least two paragraphs in length and must address the "who, what, when, where, and significance" of the term. Why is the term important? What impact has the term had on this time period in Black history?
2. Your essays need to be a full essay of at least 5-7 paragraphs. In must include an introduction, at least 3 body paragraphs and a conclusion.
3. You must have appropriate citations throughout.

Papers:

You are required to write two papers over the course of semester. Please reference the writing guidelines post on Carmen to ensure that they are written properly. No late papers will be accepted. Students will be expected to schedule a time to meet with the instructor virtually to discuss the progress of their papers at least once during the semester and at least 5 days prior to the papers due date.

Carmen Quiz:

You will be required to complete a Carmen Quiz showing understanding of our course site and requirements by the end of our first week of class.

Late assignments

Late assignments are not accepted. You should not wait until the last moment to submit assignments/exams. It is your responsibility to ensure that you have a working internet connection and a computer that will be functioning. You should always know where the nearest space is with wi-fi and available computers in the case that you have an issue. These are NOT acceptable excuses for late assignments, therefore, late assignments will not be accepted.

Faculty feedback and response time

I am providing the following list to give you an idea of my intended availability throughout the course. (Remember that you can call 614-688-HELP at any time if you have a technical problem.)

Grading and feedback

For large weekly assignments, you can generally expect feedback within 7 days.

E-mail

I will reply to e-mails within 24 hours on school days.

Discussion board

I will check and reply to messages in the discussion boards every 24 hours on school days.

Attendance, participation, and discussions

Student participation requirements

Because this is a distance-education course, your attendance is based on your online activity and participation. The following is a summary of everyone's expected participation:

- Logging in: AT LEAST THREE TIMES PER WEEK
Be sure you are logging in to the course in Carmen each week, including weeks with holidays or weeks with minimal online course activity. (During most weeks you will probably log in many times.) If you have a situation that might cause you to miss an entire week of class, discuss it with me as soon as possible.
- Office hours and live sessions: OPTIONAL OR FLEXIBLE
All live, scheduled events for the course, including my office hours, are optional. For live presentations, I will provide a recording that you can watch later. If you are required to discuss an assignment with me, please contact me at the beginning of the week so that we can schedule an appointment.
- Participating in discussion forums: 2+ TIMES PER WEEK
As participation, each week you can expect to post at least two times as part of our substantive class discussion on the week's topics.

Discussion and communication guidelines

The following are my expectations for how we should communicate as a class. Above all, please remember to be respectful and thoughtful.

- Writing style: While there is no need to participate in class discussions as if you were writing a research paper, you should remember to write using good grammar, spelling, and punctuation. Informality (including an occasional emoticon) is fine for non-academic topics.
- Tone and civility: Let's maintain a supportive learning community where everyone feels safe and where people can disagree amicably. Remember that sarcasm doesn't always come across online.
- Citing your sources: When we have academic discussions, please cite your sources to back up what you say. (For the textbook or other course materials, list at least the title and page numbers. For online sources, include a link.)
- Backing up your work: Consider composing your academic posts in a word processor, where you can save your work, and then copying into the Carmen discussion.

Other course policies

Academic integrity policy

Policies for this online course

- Exams: You must complete the midterm and final exams yourself, without any external help or communication.
- Written assignments: Your written assignments, including discussion posts, should utilize either MLA or Turabian style to cite the ideas and words of your research sources. You are encouraged to ask a trusted person to proofread your assignments before you turn them in--but no one else should revise or rewrite your work.
- Reusing past work: In general, you are prohibited in university courses from turning in work from a past class to your current class, even if you modify it. If you want to build on past research or revisit a topic you've explored in previous courses, please discuss the situation with me.
- Falsifying research or results: All research you will conduct in this course is intended to be a learning experience; you should never feel tempted to make your results or your library research look more successful than it was.

Ohio State's academic integrity policy

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>.

Accessibility accommodations for students with disabilities

The University strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. Your mental health!

As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life’s Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614- 292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1-800-273- TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org

AAAS 3083-010 Civil Rights and Black Power Movement Spring 2018

Dr. Judson L. Jeffries
Office: University Hall
Office Hours: by appt.

E-mail: jeffries.70@osu.edu

Required Texts:

- Aldon Morris. 1984. The Origins of the Civil Rights Movement (New York: Free Press).
- Judson L. Jeffries. 2006. Black Power in the Belly of the Beast (Urbana: Illinois: University of Illinois Press).

Overview/Purpose:

This course will introduce students to two of the most dynamic and important movements in American history-The Modern Civil Rights Movement and the Black Power Movement. Specifically, students will examine the historical and socio-cultural circumstances that gave rise to these movements as well as explore some of the movement's major figures and organizations. Some students may find studying the successes and failures of these movements helpful as they look to establish organizations and movements of their own that address some of America's most pressing social ills and injustices.

Course Requirements/Grading:

Attendance is mandatory. There are no excused or unexcused absences. Three absences will result in a deduction of a half letter grade from your final grade. Coming to class late or leaving early with any consistency is just cause for deducting a student's grade by a half letter grade.

Participation (25%) Students are expected to actively participate in class discussion of the assigned readings and topics. You should come to class having completed all the readings and prepared to engage in serious and constructive dialogue. Our discussions will consist of both demonstrating your knowledge of the text (what information the chapter covers, what issues it raises, etc.) and analyzing and critiquing the chapter (addressing larger issues related to the material, stating and explaining your own views, commenting on specific quotes, making connections between texts, etc.) All comments and observations must be respected, even if you do not agree with the speaker(s). Any student found to be disrespecting another student in any way will be dealt with swiftly and judiciously. Your participation will be graded on both the frequency and quality of your contributions to discussions.

Each student will serve as a discussion leader once during the semester. Meaning each student is required to present in front of the class in his/her capacity as discussion leader. The assigned student is responsible for leading the class in discussion about one of the readings for that particular day. Since everyone will have read the material, these presentations should contain minimal summarization of the text. Rather, the discussion leader should devote the majority of her/his presentation to sharing her/his critical analysis and insights about the reading and the chosen theme(s). You must also hand in at least a four page, but no more than page paper, discussing and analyzing your assigned reading (s) for that particular week. Papers should be typed, double-spaced and stapled.

Quizzes (35%) At least four quizzes will be given during the semester. The schedule for said quizzes will be determined by me with input from the class.

Research paper (40%) Each student is required to submit a twenty page research paper at the end of the course. Topics must be approved by the instructor.

GE Diversity: Social Diversity in the United States

This course fulfills one of OSU's General Education (GE) requirements. The following information can be found at <http://asccas.osu.edu/curriculum/ge-goals-and-learning-outcomes>.

Goals: Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

CLASS POLICIES*

- Read the syllabus in its entirety. By remaining in the class you are agreeing to complete the assignments listed on the syllabus, thus it is imperative that you familiarize yourself with the course requirements, assignments, and policies.
- Always bring the assigned readings to class. As a class that centers on discussion of the texts, you must come to class with your own copy of the readings so that you can “discuss and interact knowledgeably with them.” Students who come to class without the materials may receive a lower participation grade on that day.
- Eating is not allowed during class.
- All homework assignments must be typed. Margins should be set at one (1) inch on all sides and no fonts larger than 12 point. Staple and number multiple pages. Handwritten assignments will not be accepted. Five (5) points will be deducted from all papers that do not adhere to the formatting guidelines.
- If you miss class, it is your responsibility to obtain any materials or information discussed during your absence.
- All electronic equipment must be turned off before class begins.

Changes to the syllabus may be made, but with some advance notice.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES

Academic Misconduct

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 33356-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct (http://studentaffairs.osu.edu/info_for_students/csc.asp).

GE: Historical Study

ELO1: Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.

Specific Question/Assignment: Students will be given a short writing assignment that will ask them to analyze an important historical argument as present from scholars with various responses.

Sample: Students will write a response that exhibits their understanding of the ways in which major scholars have constructed the impacts of the Civil Rights and Black Power Movements. Through this process they will understand the various schools of thought in the writing of the Civil Rights Movement and Black Power.

Excellent	Good	Fair	Poor	Total
Demonstrates thorough understanding of an integrated perspective of history	Demonstrates an adequate understanding of an integrated perspective of history	Demonstrates a partial understanding of an integrated perspective of history	Demonstrates little or no understanding of an integrated perspective of history

EL02: Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.

Specific Question/Assignment: There will be a question on their second exam of the semester to assess their understanding of the origins and nature of contemporary issues.

Sample: Students will be asked to write a 3-5 paragraph essay connecting roots of the social movements for Civil Rights to the current movements for racial equity.
