Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

- (1) Change the number from 5463 to a 4000 level (4462 is fine--that appears to be available).
- (2) Make the course a 4-credit hour Research and Creative Inquiry course.
- (3) Qualify for the Citizenship theme.
- (4) Qualify for the Health and Well-Being theme.

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

- (1) We want to restrict the course to advanced undergraduates with a 4000 level course number.
- (2) This course and topic are well-suited for adding a laboratory section and developing a research component.
- (3 and 4) The course aligns well with both the Citizenship and Health and Well-Being goals.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?

(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

This course will now target advanced undergraduates and no longer be available for graduate students. Graduate students will need to meet their programmatic needs through advanced seminar courses.

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? No

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Course Details

Course goals or learning objectives/outcomes

- Analyze inequality and social change at an advanced level by engaging in critical and logical thinking related to citizenship and well-being.
- Integrate approaches by making connections to the diverse audiences interested in research on inequality and social change as well connecting to foundational coursework in social inequality within Sociology and in other disciplines.
- Students will study a range of perspectives on citizenship as social belonging versus social exclusion.
- Students will study proposals for justice and equity and critically assess how these connect to dimensions of social inclusion and exclusion that constitute citizenship.
- Students will read and analyze perspectives on economic and financial wellbeing and connections to disparities in physical and mental health.

Previous Value

- Students will understand classical and modern theories of the key dimensions of inequality, poverty, and social mobility.
- Students will identify and communicate the major patterns and trends in inequality and poverty in the United States and other post-industrial societies.
- Students will comprehend and critically assess the available data and methods used to analyze structures of stratification, including knowing the the sources, types, strengths, and weaknesses of such data and methods.
- Students will critically evaluate societal debates and policy recommendations related to ameliorating inequality and poverty and/or fostering social mobility.

Comments

- Thank you for the suggestion to elaborate on the component assignments for the final research paper. I have now added brief discussion of each component to the Lecture Assignments section.

The instructor has revised the syllabus with the committee's comments in mind.

The instructor writes: "I have now added brief discussion of each component of the lecture assignments section. I've fixed the course time on the syllabus to reflect our intention to offer the class twice weekly for 80 mins with an additional lab." (by Downey, Douglas B on 02/20/2022 10:21 AM)

Course meetings

The course will meet three times a week, twice in lecture and once in lab.

Lecture: Tues/Thurs 11:10am-12:30pm

Lab: Friday 11:30am-12:25pm

Course credit

The workload in this course is consistent with 4 credit hours as defined in the OSU bylaws and rules, Chapter #335-8-24 Credit hours. The course will require nine hours “per week of the average student's time, including class hours, to earn the average grade of “C,”” plus an additional three hours of laboratory work per week. Each credit hour is assigned for each three hours of outside work or laboratory work, making SOCIOL 4462 a four-credit course. Significant outside work will be required in order to: read original research; write weekly reading responses analyzing the readings; follow public conversations about the social science of inequality and social change; conduct an independent research project; and communicate the results of the research project in writing and in a research presentation at the end of class.

Course description

The study of social inequality is one of the central problems in the field of sociology. Even when structures of stratification are not the primary focus, most sociological research deals in one way or another with hierarchy. In this course we will examine the key approaches to understanding social stratification in contemporary sociology. The research studied will focus primarily on the United States, but the theories and concepts discussed can be applied to the analysis of inequality in many societies. We will focus on class, race, and gender inequalities, with discussion of how these connect to other intersecting structures of inequality as well. A guiding theme throughout the course will be to understand how inequities in economic welfare structure all dimensions of inequality in a capitalist society such as the United States in the twenty-first century.

We will study inequality as connected to social change in several respects. Societies undergo constant change along with strong tendencies to inertia in some structures. In other words, social science occurs in the context of history. We will therefore study trends and patterns of social change in inequality. One key source of change in inequality is social policy, politics, and activism. We will study how political-economic actors and institutions affect structures of inequality. We will also consider how Sociology as a social science relates to proposals to remedy or redress inequality. This is a matter of debate among scholars and thus we will consider selected alternative perspectives that will then prepare students to consider other approaches in the future in other courses or on their own.

The course is designed for undergraduate students who have had some prior background in the foundations of the social science of inequality and are looking for a deeper and more advanced engagement with this thematic of study. Students may come to the course from a diverse set of disciplinary backgrounds and prior courses, but I will assume foundational knowledge of research on social inequality.

A core course goal will be for students to develop skills in analyzing and communicating about inequality and social change in their role as global citizens as well as in diverse social settings, including families, civil society, jobs and careers that they may engage in the future. Understanding social inequality and diverse perspectives on what is to be done about social disparities is a core element of being an effective and influential global citizen.

Course learning objectives

By the end of this course and in connection with other theme courses, students should successfully be able to:

General Theme Learning Objectives

THEME GOAL 1: Analyze inequality and social change at an advanced level by engaging in critical and logical thinking related to citizenship and well-being. Students will build on foundations by:

- Reading, analyzing, and critically assessing original cutting edge research;
- Communicating in writing and speaking core research findings in the area of social inequality;
- Communicating about social change, both historical developments and evaluating proposals for change at varied levels.

THEME GOAL 2: Integrate approaches by making connections to the diverse audiences interested in research on inequality and social change as well connecting to foundational coursework in social inequality within Sociology and in other disciplines. Students will develop integrative knowledge and skills by:

- Studying the diverse audiences for social science research and diverse motivations for social change in systems of inequality;
- Understanding how diverse experiences of social inequality affect research in defining questions, acceptable data and evidence, and status of different researchers;
- Actively researching a core area of social inequality targeted at communicating results to an audience beyond the academy;
- Demonstrating capacity to use reflection and self-assessment through a multi-stage research project that builds on prior experiences and requires specific detailed response to challenging feedback from peers and instructors.

Citizenship for a Just and Diverse World Learning Objectives

CITIZENSHIP GOAL 1: Students will study a range of perspectives on citizenship as social belonging versus social exclusion. Students will apply the knowledge and skills to:

- Identify and describe unequal experiences of belonging and exclusion across diverse populations and localities.
- Identify and describe their own position within systems of inequality;
- Develop communication skills in writing and speaking about global citizenship that demonstrate intercultural competence.

CITIZENSHIP GOAL 2: Students will study proposals for justice and equity and critically assess how these connect to dimensions of social inclusion and exclusion that constitute citizenship.

- Studying cutting edge social thought on evidence-based approaches to social change in inequality through readings and guest lectures by practitioners.
- Understanding how experiences of social inclusion and exclusion affect perspectives on social change, including through material interests, access to power, and cultural capital.
- Struggling with the dilemmas of pursuing justice and social change using high-equality evidence even as evidence may remain partial and limited.

Health & Wellbeing Learning Objectives

HEALTH & WELLBEING GOAL: students will read and analyze perspectives on economic and financial wellbeing and connections to disparities in physical and mental health including:

- Analyzing the contribution of social inequality to disparities in economic/financial wellbeing, and physical and mental health;
- Identifying the sources of resilience in the context of inequalities as well as consider alternative proposals to improve human flourishing across all dimensions of wellbeing by redressing social inequality.

Lecture Assignments

Class attendance and participation. I expect everyone to attend each class session (barring illness, see below). While I understand that variation in experience and temperament will lead some to talk more than others, you should come to class ready to engage. I see discussion as an opportunity for all of us to work out our ideas and learn from alternative perspectives.

Weekly reading analysis. A short analysis of the readings of no more than one page is due before each class meeting from week 4 through week 14. The weekly responses should provide your assessment of the readings and raise questions. While some summary of the readings may be appropriate, these should not primarily rehearse the main points, but rather should offer your assessment of the readings, connections to other ideas, and questions that the readings provoked for you. The purpose of the responses is to encourage you to use writing as a tool for thinking and to facilitate our class discussions by deepening your engagement with the material. They will be assessed for whether completed with reasonable effort.

Submit responses to Carmen by 9am on Thursday each week so that we have time to review them before class. I will NOT accept late essays except in the case of emergency. Each student may skip one reading response during the semester, resulting in 10 total.

Exams. There will be two exams in a mix of closed-response format (e.g. multiple choice, matching, true/false) and open response (short answer and essay) that will assess understanding of the core concepts (first quiz) and core empirical patterns and trends (second quiz) that we discuss in the course.

Final research paper. All students must complete a research project on a social inequality topic, broadly construed. I will provide detailed guidelines and there will be progress reports due throughout the semester and time during class sessions dedicated to developing the paper to support students in completing this assignment. In brief, the format will require students to identify an audience to which they will communicate social science research on inequality. I will encourage students to select an audience relevant to their academic and/or career goals. Then they will write a research paper briefing that audience on an important area of social inequality, drawing on the conceptual and empirical knowledge students have developed in the course. Students will have a large degree of flexibility in choosing the topic, within the area of inequality, poverty, and mobility broadly construed.

In order to support the development of the paper, student will complete the project in stages with assignments due before the final research paper is due:

1. Research paper idea mapping: students will write a 1-2 page memo on topic areas that interest them, the research questions that engage them within those topic areas.
2. Research paper problem statement: students will write a 1 page summary of the research questions and the audiences they would like to reach.
3. Research paper draft: students will write a first draft of all the sections of the paper, to be detailed in a handout distributed after the first week.
4. Research paper presentation: students will present their project to instructors and classmates in the last week of class, communicating their research question, the answers identified in the paper, and the audiences they wish to reach. I schedule the research paper presentation before the final paper due date so that student will have the opportunity to incorporate feedback from instructors and classmates.

5. Final research paper due during finals week.

Lab Assignments

Each week during the lab sessions, students will complete an in-class assignment on the process of research on inequality and social change. Assignments will be built on the data available at: <https://www.socialexplorer.com/> During the first half of the semester, assignments will focus on developing skills in utilizing the data and analysis steps. During the second half of the semester, the assignments will focus on steps in the process of developing the final research paper. See the Course Schedule: Lab below for further details.

Late assignments

Please keep me informed of any health, care-giving or other issues that arise related to the pandemic. I will work flexibly with individual students to identify reasonable accommodations. I will also be alert to issues affecting the entire class that may require adjustments. Students who need to miss class or who are not able to participate due to illness (COVID-19 or other illnesses), exposure to COVID-19, care for family members exposed to COVID-19, or for other reasons should contact me as soon as possible to arrange for accommodation. Students in special situations or those requiring specific, long-term or other accommodation should seek support from appropriate university offices including but not limited to: Student Advocacy, Student Life Disability Services and the Office of Institutional Equity.

Statement on Title IX

Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are Civil Rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories (e.g., race). If you or someone you know has been sexually harassed or assaulted, you may find the appropriate resources at <http://titleix.osu.edu> or by contacting the Ohio State Title IX Coordinator at titleix@osu.edu

Accessibility accommodations for students with disabilities

The University strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. Mental health resources

As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614- 292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1-800-273- TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org

The study of social inequality is one of the central problems in the field of sociology. Even when structures of stratification are not the primary focus, most sociological research deals in one way or another with hierarchy. In this course we will examine the key approaches to understanding social stratification in contemporary sociology. The literature covered will be particularly focused on the United States, but the theories and concepts discussed can be applied to the analysis of stratification in many societies. We will focus on class, race, and gender inequalities, with discussion of how these connect to other intersecting structures of inequality as well. A guiding theme throughout the course will be how inequities in material welfare structure all dimensions of inequality in a capitalist society such as the United States in the twenty-first century.

The course is designed for undergraduate and graduate students who have had some prior background in the social science of inequality and are looking for a deeper engagement with this area of study. Students may come to the course from a diverse set of disciplinary backgrounds and prior courses.

We will pursue three primary objectives in Sociology 5463:

- 1) Students will study the conceptual foundations for study in the area of inequality, poverty, and mobility. We can of course only cover a selection of the vast research in this area. I have structured the readings to offer a sampling of the key theoretical and classical treatments of social stratification, as well as several cutting-edge areas of current research. This will provide the tools to facilitate further reading and inquiry.

- 2) Students will study the key empirical trends in inequality, poverty, and mobility in the twenty-first century United States. We will focus in this semester on linking those empirical trends to research on COVID-19 as both a highly relevant case study and as a causal influence on the dimensions of inequality that we study in the course.
- 3) Students will develop skills in reasoning with data through assignments focused on making an argument utilizing the conceptual and empirical background they develop in the course applied to a question of particular interest to them. This will require outside research and reading, and will focus on writing and communicating about data and empirical dynamics.

Online Course Guidelines

The course will include one synchronous zoom each week as well as weekly asynchronous lectures and related activities. The synchronous zoom will include a range of activities, including opportunities for Q&A, discussion, and analytic exercises. Attendance is mandatory at the synchronous zoom.

In addition, there will be asynchronous lectures and related instruction most weeks as assigned on the course Carmen webpage.

Readings

Readings are available through the links on this syllabus and on the Carmen course webpage. Student will also read one of the following books, which are available as e-books through the OSU library system. Students may of course purchase these books if desired. I will ask for your preferences and assign about a quarter of the class to read each book.

Harris, Alexes. 2016. A pound of flesh: Monetary sanctions as punishment for the poor. Russell Sage Foundation.

Silva, Jennifer M., 2013. Coming up short: Working-class adulthood in an age of uncertainty. Oxford University Press.

Cottom, Tressie M., 2017. Lower ed: The troubling rise of for-profit colleges in the new economy. The New Press.

Ray, Ranita, 2017. The making of a teenage service class: Poverty and mobility in an American city. Univ of California Press.

Students expecting to specialize in this area may find the following readers valuable, though they aren't required for this course. The first is particularly useful for many classical pieces that we will not have time to cover this semester.

David B. Grusky. 2014. (Fourth Edition.) Social Stratification: Class, Race, and Gender. Boulder, CO: Westview Press.

David B. Grusky and Szonja Szelenyi. 2007. The Inequality Reader: Contemporary and Foundational Readings in Race, Class, and Gender. Boulder, CO: Westview Press. (Overlaps some with the previous book but has more recent selections.)

Course assignments

Grades will be based on the following components:

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|-----|
| 1) Class attendance and participation | 10% |
| 2) Reading responses | 20% |
| 3) Book precis | 10% |
| 4) Quizzes | 30% |
| 5) Final paper | 30% |

Class attendance and participation. I expect everyone to attend each class session (barring illness or emergency, see below). While I understand that variation in experience and temperament will lead some to talk more than others, you should come to class ready to engage. I see discussion as an opportunity for all of us to work out our ideas and learn from alternative perspectives.

Weekly reading response. A short response on the readings is due before each class meeting from week 3 through week 15. They may be no more than one page, but can be just a paragraph or a set of questions. These are very open-ended and can be structured. These essays should provide your assessment of the readings and raise questions. While some summary of the readings may be appropriate, these should not primarily rehearse the main points, but rather should offer your appreciation and/or critique of the readings, connections to other ideas, and questions that the readings provoked for you. The purpose of the responses is to encourage you to use writing as a tool for thinking and to facilitate our class discussions by deepening your engagement with the material. They will be assessed for whether completed with reasonable effort.

Submit responses to Carmen by 10am on Monday each week so that I have time to review them before class. I will NOT accept late essays except in the case of emergency. Each student may skip one reading response during the semester, resulting in 10 total.

Quizzes. There will be two quizzes in mostly closed-response format (e.g. multiple choice, matching, true/false) along with a few short essays that will assess understanding of the course material.

Final paper. All students must complete a final paper on social inequality in the United States. I will provide detailed guidelines and there will be progress reports due throughout the semester and time during class sessions dedicated to developing the paper to support students in completing this assignment. In brief, the format will require students to identify an audience to which they will communicate social science research on inequality. I will encourage students to select an audience relevant to their academic and/or career goals. Then they will write a 10 page research paper, drawing on the conceptual and empirical knowledge students have developed in the course. Students will utilize secondary research and utilize evidence from data resources provided in the course. Students will have a large degree of flexibility in choosing the topic, within the area of inequality, poverty, and mobility in the United States.

COVID-19 Accommodations

I have designed this course expecting that some or all students may be remote the full semester and some students may need time to isolate and recover from illness. Please keep me informed of any health, care-giving or other issues that arise related to the pandemic. I will work flexibly with individual students to identify reasonable accommodations. I will also be alert to issues affecting the entire class that may require adjustments. Students who need to miss class or who are not able to participate due to illness (COVID-19 or other illnesses), exposure to COVID-19, care for family members exposed to COVID-19 or other reasons should contact me as soon as possible to arrange for accommodation. Students in special situations or those requiring specific, long-term or other accommodation should seek support from appropriate university offices including but not limited to: Student Advocacy, Student Life Disability Services and the Office of Institutional Equity.

University Resources and Policies

Disability and Accessibility: The University strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. You are also welcome to register with Student Life Disability Services (SLDS) to establish reasonable accommodations. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. SLDS contact information: slds@osu.edu; 614-292-3307; slds.osu.edu; 098 Baker Hall, 113 W. 12th Avenue.

Mental Health: As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614--292--5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614--292--5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1--800--273-TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org.

Academic Integrity and Academic Misconduct: Academic integrity is essential to maintaining an environment that fosters excellence in teaching, research, and other educational and scholarly activities. Thus, The Ohio State University and the Committee on Academic Misconduct (COAM) expect that all students have read and understand the University's Code of Student Conduct, and that all students will complete all academic and scholarly assignments with fairness and honesty. Students must recognize that failure to follow the rules and guidelines established in the University's Code of Student Conduct and this syllabus may constitute "Academic Misconduct."

The Ohio State University's Code of Student Conduct (Section 3335-23-04) defines academic misconduct as: "Any activity that tends to compromise the academic integrity of the University, or subvert the educational process." Examples of academic misconduct include (but are not limited to) plagiarism, collusion (unauthorized collaboration), copying the work of another student, and possession of unauthorized materials during an examination. Ignorance of the University's Code of Student Conduct is never considered an "excuse" for academic misconduct, so I recommend that you review the Code of Student Conduct and, specifically, the sections dealing with academic misconduct.

If I suspect that a student has committed academic misconduct in this course, I am obligated by University Rules to report my suspicions to the Committee on Academic Misconduct. If COAM determines that you have violated the University's Code of Student Conduct (i.e., committed academic misconduct), the sanctions for the misconduct could include a failing grade in this course and suspension or dismissal from the University.

If you have any questions about the above policy or what constitutes academic misconduct in this course, please contact me.

Other sources of information on academic misconduct (integrity) to which you can refer include:

Copyright and Appropriate Use of Course Materials: Professor Rachel Dwyer owns the copyright to the syllabus, exams, handouts, study aides, online lectures, in-class lectures and other materials distributed or demonstrated in this course. They are provided solely for the educational use of students enrolled in this course. You are not permitted to copy or re-distribute them for purposes unapproved by the instructor; in particular, you are not permitted to publicly post or otherwise redistribute course materials or your lecture notes. Unauthorized use of course materials may be considered academic misconduct in addition to a violation of copyright law.

Religious Holidays: Notify the instructor within the first week of class regarding any conflict between religious observance dates and course examinations or assignments.

Diversity and inclusion: The Ohio State University affirms the importance and value of diversity in the student body. Our programs and curricula reflect our multicultural society and global economy and seek to provide opportunities for students to learn more about persons who are different from them. We are committed to maintaining a community that recognizes and values the inherent worth and dignity of every person; fosters sensitivity, understanding, and mutual respect among each member of our community; and encourages each individual to strive to reach his or her own potential. Discrimination against any individual based upon protected status, which is defined as age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status, is prohibited.

GE THEME COURSES

Overview

Courses that are accepted into the General Education (GE) Themes must meet two sets of Expected Learning Outcomes (ELOs): those common for all GE Themes and one set specific to the content of the Theme. This form begins with the criteria common to all themes and has expandable sections relating to each specific theme.

A course may be accepted into more than one Theme if the ELOs for each theme are met. Courses seeking approval for multiple Themes will complete a submission document for each theme. Courses seeking approval as a 4-credit, Integrative Practices course need to complete a similar submission form for the chosen practice. It may be helpful to consult your Director of Undergraduate Studies or appropriate support staff person as you develop and submit your course.

Please enter text in the boxes to describe how your class will meet the ELOs of the Theme to which it applies. Please use language that is clear and concise and that colleagues outside of your discipline will be able to follow. You are encouraged to refer specifically to the syllabus submitted for the course, since the reviewers will also have that document. Because this document will be used in the course review and approval process, you should be as specific as possible, listing concrete activities, specific theories, names of scholars, titles of textbooks etc.

Course subject & number

General Expectations of All Themes

GOAL 1: Successful students will analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than the foundations.

Please briefly identify the ways in which this course represents an advanced study of the focal theme. In this context, “advanced” refers to courses that are e.g., synthetic, rely on research or cutting-edge findings, or deeply engage with the subject matter, among other possibilities. (50-500 words)

Course subject & number

ELO 1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking about the topic or idea of the theme. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

ELO 1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or idea of the theme. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

Course subject & number

GOAL 2: Successful students will integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.

ELO 2.1 Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences as they apply to the theme.

Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

ELO 2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met.

(50-700 words)

Specific Expectations of Courses in Citizenship

GOAL 1: Successful students will explore and analyze a range of perspectives on local, national, or global citizenship, and apply the knowledge, skills, and dispositions that constitute citizenship.

ELO 1.1 Describe and analyze a range of perspectives on what constitutes citizenship and how it differs across political, cultural, national, global, and/or historical communities. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

ELO 1.2 Identify, reflect on, and apply the knowledge, skills and dispositions required for intercultural competence as a global citizen. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

Course subject & number

GOAL 2: Successful students will examine notions of justice amidst difference and analyze and critique how these interact with historically and socially constructed ideas of citizenship and membership within societies, both within the US and/or around the world.

ELO 2.1 Examine, critique, and evaluate various expressions and implications of diversity, equity, inclusion, and explore a variety of lived experiences. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

2.2 Analyze and critique the intersection of concepts of justice, difference, citizenship, and how these interact with cultural traditions, structures of power and/or advocacy for social change. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

Research & Creative Inquiry Course Inventory

Overview

The GE allows students to take a single, 4+ credit course to satisfy a particular GE Theme requirement if that course includes key practices that are recognized as integrative and high impact. Courses seeking one of these designations need to provide a completed Integrative Practices Inventory at the time of course submission. This will be evaluated with the rest of the course materials (syllabus, Theme Course submission document, etc). Approved Integrative Practices courses will need to participate in assessment both for their Theme category and for their integrative practice.

Please enter text in the boxes below to describe how your class will meet the expectations of Research & Creative Inquiry Courses. It may be helpful to consult the Description & Expectations document for this pedagogical practice or to consult with the OSU Office of Undergraduate Research and Creative Inquiry. You may also want to consult the Director of Undergraduate Studies or appropriate support staff person as you complete this Inventory and submit your course.

Please use language that is clear and concise and that colleagues outside of your discipline will be able to follow. You are encouraged to refer specifically to the syllabus submitted for the course, since the reviewers will also have that document. Because this document will be used in the course review and approval process, you should be as specific as possible, listing concrete activities, specific theories, names of scholars, titles of textbooks etc.

Pedagogical Practices for Research & Creative Inquiry

Course subject & number

Performance expectations set at appropriately high levels (e.g. students investigate their own questions or develop their own creative projects). Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Research & Creative Inquiry Inventory

Significant investment of time and effort by students over an extended period of time (e.g., scaffolded scientific or creative processes building across the term, including, e.g., reviewing literature, developing methods, collecting data, interpreting or developing a concept or idea into a full-fledged production or artistic work) Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Interactions with faculty and peers about substantive matters including regular, meaningful faculty mentoring and peer support. Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Research & Creative Inquiry Inventory

Students will get frequent, timely, and constructive feedback on their work, iteratively scaffolding research or creative skills in curriculum to build over time. Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Periodic, structured opportunities to reflect and integrate learning in which students interpret findings or reflect on creative work. Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Research & Creative Inquiry Inventory

Opportunities to discover relevance of learning through real-world applications (e.g., mechanism for allowing students to see their focused research question or creative project as part of a larger conceptual framework). Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Public Demonstration of competence, such as a significant public communication of research or display of creative work, or a community scholarship celebration. Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Research & Creative Inquiry Inventory

Experiences with diversity wherein students demonstrate intercultural competence and empathy with people and worldview frameworks that may differ from their own. Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Explicit and intentional efforts to promote inclusivity and a sense of belonging and safety for students, (e.g. universal design principles, culturally responsible pedagogy). Please link this expectation to the course goals, topics and activities and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-500 words)

Research & Creative Inquiry Inventory

Clear plan to market this course to get a wider enrollment of typically underserved populations.
