Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

New GE status

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

This course aligns well with the Health and Well-being GE.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?

(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

N/A

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? No

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Overview

This course brings anthropological theory and method into the “clinic”—very broadly defined. Our first task will be to explore what constitutes a clinical encounter and how that might vary across contexts. Our second task will be to develop a set of theoretical and methodological tools to bring into the clinic, to help us to understand people’s health experiences as more than the product of individual choices. We will also bring these tools to the clinic by investigating health systems and health experiences as products of particular social, historical, and political economic arrangements.

A reading seminar, the course is centered around careful, critical readings of recent ethnographies that unfold in clinical settings. Drawing inspiration from different ethnographic approaches to clinical research, over the course of the term students will develop research proposals for a clinic of their choosing. Each proposal will attend to the political economic and sociohistorical context surrounding the clinic, ascertain the sites beyond the clinic necessary to the research, articulate theoretical and practical stakes of the research questions, identify appropriate methods to answer research questions, and discuss the ethics of the methodological approach. Students will develop these proposals in dialogue with their peers and the professor in and outside of class.

Learning Outcomes

After completing this course, you will

- 1) be familiar with theoretical frameworks in medical and psychological anthropology,
- 2) have a firm understanding of a structural approach to health and medicine,
- 3) be able to discuss how history, political economy, and social policy shape population and individual health, and
- 4) have developed skills in ethnographic methodology that you can take with you into the fields of healthcare and health policy.

GE—ELOs

As a course offered as part of the Health and Well-Being GE Theme, you will also

- 1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking about the topic or idea of health and well-being.
- 1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or idea of health and well-being.
- 2.1 Identify, describe and synthesize approaches or experiences as they apply to health and well-being.
- 2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.
- 3.1 Explore and analyze health and well-being from theoretical, socio-economic, scientific, historical, cultural, technological, policy and/or personal perspectives.
- 3.2 Identify, reflect on, or apply strategies for promoting health and well-being

You will leave “Anthropology in/of the Clinic” with a skillset that allows you to contextualize human health and behavior in broader social, economic, and geopolitical contexts, and to articulate how and why these contexts matter for urgent questions in the study and practice of healthcare. For those seeking future professions in health and healing, this course will encourage you to redress glaring inequalities in healthcare access and outcomes. Our course assignments and in-class activities will not only teach you advanced content for careers in healthcare, but they will help you develop a sense of self-efficacy in mastering new and challenging materials. You will be empowered to draw your personal experiences into the classroom and to understand your capacity to change healthcare systems for the better.

GE—Goals

1. Successful students will analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than in the Foundations component. [Note: In this context, "advanced" refers to courses that are e.g., synthetic, rely on research or cutting-edge findings, or deeply engage with the subject matter, among other possibilities.]
2. Successful students will integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.
3. Students will explore and analyze health and wellbeing through attention to at least two dimensions of wellbeing. (e.g., physical, mental, emotional, career, environmental, spiritual, intellectual, creative, financial, etc.)

Required Texts

We will be reading several textbooks for this class, listed below. They are available to you as e-books via the OSU library, and to order hard copies online, see thriftbooks.com or betterworldbooks.com.

- 1) Eugene Raikhel (2016). Governing Habits: Treating Alcoholism in the Post-Soviet Clinic. Ithaca: Cornell University Press. available open access
- 2) Julie Livingston (2012). Improvising Medicine: An African Oncology Ward in an Emerging Cancer Epidemic. Durham: Duke University Press.
- 3) Sameena Mulla (2014). The Violence of Care: Rape Victims, Forensic Nurses, and Sexual Assault Intervention. New York: New York University Press.
- 4) Angela Garcia (2010). The Pastoral Clinic: Addiction and Dispossession along the Rio Grande. Oakland: University of California Press.

All other materials will be made available to you through Carmen. To organize your notes and readings electronically, I strongly recommend that you download Mendeley (www.mendeley.com), free PDF annotation management software.

Evaluation

Course evaluation will consist of five components:

Seminar Participation

- 1) Individual participation (20%) This course is organized as a discussion-based seminar, so it is expected that you come to class having read or viewed assigned course materials, taken notes, and are prepared to ask questions and share your thoughts with the class. To assist you with reading critically and creatively, I have provided a reading guide on Carmen. You will write a 1-page self-assessment of your participation on which you will receive instructor feedback, due weeks 6 and 10.
- 2) Group presentations (30%) Each group will create a document in the style of the reading guide to share with class and to facilitate class discussion, including with visiting speakers.

Clinical Ethnographic Writing

- 3) Clinic narrative (10%) Due week 5, 2-3 pages, you will write a paper narrating your experience at a clinic, putting the narrative in conversation with course readings. You will share your narrative with a classmate for feedback and turn in a final draft week 7.
- 4) First research proposal draft (10%) – Due week 12, 6-8 pages, your first proposal draft will identify your clinical setting, outline relevant sociocultural, historical, and political economic context, articulate a research question, suggest the importance of that question and the clinic at hand to broader problems in medical anthropology and the social study of health, and list key methods ideal for answering your question.
- 5) Final research proposal and presentation (30%) – Due the last day of class, 8-10 pages, your final research proposal will refine the draft turned in during week 12, describe the practical and ethical considerations of your proposed research, and include a statement describing plans to share findings with the clinic or community.

Grades will be determined as follows: A ≥ 93, A- 90-92, B+ 88-89, B 83-87, B- 80-82, C+ 78-79, C 73-77, C- 70-72, D+ 68-69, D 60-67, <60 is a failing grade.

Deadlines

Deadlines help you manage your time. Every student may have one 3-day extension with no questions asked. Please email me if you need an extension on any individual assignment.

Classroom Etiquette

To build an effective learning environment we must respect one another's perspectives, effort, and time. Each of us bring to the class not only our personal interpretations of the course materials but also our lived experiences in the world around us. Most importantly, our course is a space for trial and error: for trying out new ideas and refining and revising those ideas through discussion.

To report harassment, discrimination, sexual misconduct, or retaliation and/or seek confidential and non-confidential resources and supportive measures, contact the Office of Institutional Equity:

- Online reporting form at equity.osu.edu,
- Call 614-247-5838 or TTY 614-688-8605
- Or Email equity@osu.edu

E-Communication

I will use CARMEN to communicate with you regarding important class news, including class cancellations. Outside of class and office hours, please feel free to contact me via CARMEN or email (moore.4540@osu.edu).

Academic Integrity

The Ohio State University's Code of Student Conduct (Section 3335-23-04) defines academic misconduct as: Any activity that tends to compromise the academic integrity of the University, or subvert the educational process. Examples of academic misconduct include (but are not limited to) plagiarism, collusion (unauthorized collaboration), copying the work of another student, and possession of unauthorized materials during an examination. For more information, see the Code of Student Conduct: <https://trustees.osu.edu/bylaws-and-rules/code>.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

The university strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. In light of the current pandemic, students seeking to request COVID-related accommodations may do so through the university's request process, managed by Student Life Disability Services.

If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic, or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. SLDS contact information: 614-292-3307/slds@osu.edu.

Student Wellness

As a student, you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities.

The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting <https://ccs.osu.edu/mental-health-support-options/> or calling 614-292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on-call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1-800-273-TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org.
