Course goals or learning objectives/outcomes

- To introduce students to knowledge about central Ohio's indigenous people, past and present, and about ancient earthworks;
- To consider alternative ways of approaching the study of ancient peoples and earthworks
- To identify contemporary issues related to studying indigenous histories and cultures
- To identify contemporary issues related to studying earthworks, preserving them and making them accessible to the public.
- To expose students to a range of research methods including archival research, archaeology, oral history, art, and geophysical surveying among others
- To acquaint students with the politics regarding ownership and study of the past, processes for recognition, and policy challenges of public access, academic study, and World Heritage status
- Know about the ancient Newark Earthworks and the people who built them, having engaged in scholarly exploration of the topic. They will understand them in the context of other indigenous peoples and histories of Ohio and the Midwest.
- Have engaged in critical and logical thinking about the Earthworks, their builders, their history, and the contemporary issues.
- Understand the relevant concepts from the disciplines of history, anthropology, mathematics, astronomy, geography, museum studies, education, and American Indian Studies as they apply to the Newark Earthworks.
- Understand the goals and assumptions of scholars from different disciplines, and the similarities and differences in their approaches.
- Understand the contemporary issues of access, preservation, repatriation, tourism, and cultural diversity relevant to the site.
- Understand the local, state, tribal, national, and international politics of preservation, recognition, and World Heritage designation.

Newark Earthworks Course Concept, by Lucy E. Murphy, Oct. 24, 2021. Murphy.500@osu.edu
in collaboration with Prof. John Low, Prof. Robert Cook
Departments of History, Comparative Studies, Anthropology, Newark Campus (Nov 2023 revision)

This proposed course would be an interdisciplinary exploration of the ancient Native American mounds located in Newark and Heath, Ohio, considered to be one of the most important ancient sites in North America. Indigenous people created these earthworks two thousand years ago, crafting seven million cubic feet of dirt into geometric earthworks rising up to 14 feet in height, covering four-and-a-half square miles, including a lunar observatory. Most of the major features of this sophisticated complex still stand. The site is expected to be nominated for United Nations World Heritage status.

- This course is being created as a project linked to the Ohio State University's Newark Earthworks Center.
- This course is intended to align with OSU's new General Education requirements, in the Thematic Pathway called "Lived Environments."
- Faculty from many different departments can contribute to the course by providing lectures, course materials, guided tours, discussion leadership, and research opportunities for students.

Ohio State Newark faculty and staff who have agreed to participate:

Lucy E. Murphy, Professor of History
John Low, Associate Professor of Comparative Studies and Director, Newark Earthworks Center
Marti Chaatsmith, Associate Director, Newark Earthworks Center
Robert Cook, Professor of Anthropology
Christine Warner, Associate Professor of Teaching and Learning, Education Coordinator
Kenneth Madsen, Associate Professor of Geography
Michael Stamatikos, Assistant Professor of Physics
Niles G. Johnson, Associate Professor of Mathematics
Elizabeth Weiser, Professor of Rhetoric, Writing, & Museology

Other people willing to assist with this class:

Christine Ballengee Morris, Professor of Arts Administration, Education, and Policy, Ohio State University, Columbus Campus

Jennifer Aultman, Director of Historic Sites and Museums, Ohio History Connection

Course description

Welcome to the Newark Earthworks Course! This three-credit course in the Lived Environments General Education Theme is designed to give students an opportunity to learn about the indigenous peoples of ancient Ohio, an amazing complex of earthen mounds they created, and the many ways we can know about and further study them.

This course is an interdisciplinary exploration of the Native American mounds located in Newark and Heath, Ohio, considered to be one of the most important ancient sites in North America. Indigenous people created these earthworks two thousand years ago, crafting seven million cubic feet of dirt into geometric earthworks rising up to 14 feet in height, covering four-and-a-half square miles. Originally a site of ceremony and a lunar observatory, it has been altered in numerous ways: mounds were plowed up by farmers, a canal was built through an ancient cemetery, the Great Circle of Heath became a state fairground, and the Octagon earthworks became a golf club. Most of the major features of this sophisticated complex still stand, and it is increasingly factoring into descendant communities' present lives. The site has been nominated for United Nations World Heritage status by the United States Department of the Interior.

Through this course, you will learn about the ancient earthworks, how humans built and transformed that space, how different disciplinary approaches help us learn different aspects of the earthworks and how humans have interacted with it, and how we can think critically about contemporary issues of preservation and access. Faculty from different departments may contribute to the course by providing lectures, course materials, guided tours, discussion leadership, and research opportunities for students.

General Education (GE): This course has been approved in the GE Theme category "Lived Environments"

GOAL 1: Successful students will analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than the foundations.

ELO 1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking about the topic or idea of the theme.

ELO 1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or idea of the theme.

GOAL 2: Successful students will integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.

ELO 2.1 Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences as they apply to the theme.

ELO 2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.

GOAL 3: Successful students will explore a range of perspectives on the interactions and impacts between humans and one or more types of environment (e.g. agricultural, built, cultural, economic, intellectual, natural) in which humans live.

ELO 3.1 Engage with the complexity and uncertainty of human-environment interactions

ELO 3.2 Describe examples of human interaction with and impact on environmental change and transformation over time and across space.

GOAL 4: Successful students will analyze a variety of perceptions, representations and/or discourses about environments and humans within them.

ELO 4.1 Analyze how humans' interactions with their environments shape or have shaped attitudes, beliefs, values, and behaviors.

ELO 4.2 Describe how humans perceive and represent the environments with which they interact.

ELO 4.3 Analyze and critique conventions, theories, and ideologies that influence discourses around environments.

This course will meet the Theme goals and ELOs in the following ways:

Readings, lectures, and discussions will help you describe how humans have interacted with and transformed the Earthworks, connecting these interactions with attitudes and values. For instance, you will learn how the mound builders were influenced by the motions of the moon and other celestial bodies; the mounds they built would shape the beliefs and ceremonial practices of the Hopewell Culture and of subsequent cultures. The historical arc of the course will reveal how differing attitudes and beliefs have shaped transformations of and conflicts over the Earthworks up to the present day.

You will read and synthesize approaches from different disciplines, which means you will get an in-depth, advanced exploration of this topic that goes beyond a foundational course. You will learn about a variety of conventions, theories, and ideologies through readings and lectures that draw on different disciplines. Class discussions of readings will emphasize the goals and assumptions behind these disciplinary approaches. A related activity involves examining public discourse related to the Ohio State Supreme Court's decision to remove a golf club from the Earthworks.

Through readings and in-class activities, you will study a variety of perceptions and representations of the Earthworks, such as 19th-century maps, aerial photography, paintings, geophysical-research related images, and public history through museum depictions. In one activity, you will examine and write about how websites represent the Earthworks. In an ongoing journal as well as in exam responses, you will track and describe significant human interactions with the Earthworks, analyzing how these interactions are connected to attitudes, beliefs, and values. The journal will also be used to reflect on your learning in the course. A final project involving a presentation and researched essay will allow you to engage with a related topic in an in-depth way.

Land Acknowledgement: The Ohio State University acknowledges that its campuses have long served as sites of meeting and exchange for Indigenous peoples, including those in historical times known as the Shawnee, Miami, Wyandotte, Delaware, and the People of Fort Ancient, Hopewell, and Adena cultures also known as the earthworks builders, as well as other tribal nations of the region. The Ohio State University honors and respects the diverse Indigenous peoples connected to this land in which we gather.

Course Requirements and Evaluation

Your grade for the course will be determined by the following:

Journal: 25% The journal has two purposes. The first purpose is to track and describe significant human interactions with the Earthworks, analyzing how these interactions are connected to attitudes, beliefs, and values. This will be an in-class activity every three weeks in which we review recent readings and lecture notes. The second purpose is to reflect on your learning. At the beginning, middle, and end of the semester, you will write about how your conceptions have developed regarding human-environment interactions, how these interactions connect to attitudes and values, and how humans perceive and represent environments. You won't revise what you've written. Instead, you will add to it, reflecting on how your thinking has developed, and how readings and other activities have contributed to that development. This involves synthesizing knowledge and experiences, as well as making connections with prior knowledge, with out-of-class experiences, and with how you might expect your knowledge to develop further in other contexts. [ELO 2.2, 3.1, 3.2, 4.1, 4.2]

Final Project: 30% This research project will result in an essay (25%) and a presentation (5%). It will be based on at least three scholarly sources and relevant materials and experiences from this class. The project should engage with the complexity of human-environment interactions, as well as how humans perceive that environment. You will consult with the instructor at least three times during the last six weeks of the course to discuss progress on the project. Some potential topics for the project: Representations of the Earthworks; tourism (how heritage travel impacts communities); politics of preservation, recognition, and World Heritage designation; a different disciplinary approach to understanding the Earthworks; a different indigenous site; a different era in Ohio history; Earthworks as art and ceremonial space. More information will follow in detailed assignments, but for now, know that the essay will be at least 7 pages long, and the presentation will be somewhat informal (create slides, tell us two interesting things from your research, make two connections with class material). [ELO 1.2, 3.1, 3.2, 4.2]

Discussion Posts: 10% Discussion posts will be used at various points in the semester to share and discuss ideas for the Final Project, examples of representations of the Earthworks and other Indigenous sites, and information related to central course topics (history, public history, human-environment interactions, and different approaches to studying Indigenous sites, preservation, representation, tourism). [ELO 1.1, 2.1, 4.1, 4.2]

Quizzes: 10% We will have four unannounced quizzes that include short answer and multiple-choice questions that check your knowledge of the readings, focusing on describing disciplinary approaches, human impact on environmental change, and how that impact can be connected to beliefs, values, and behaviors. The quiz with the lowest score will be dropped. [ELO 2.1, 3.2, 4.1]

Midterm Exam: 15% The Midterm Exam will consist of essay questions that focus on critical thinking, identification, synthesis, and analysis of the different disciplinary approaches to the Earthworks, as well as descriptions of human perceptions and environmental transformations of the Earthworks [ELO 1.1, 2.1, 3.2, 4.2, 4.3]

Participation: 10% Participation includes attending, being prepared for class by doing the assigned readings, making thoughtful contributions to discussion, and being engaged in various in-class activities. The readings are woven into everything we do in the course, providing in-depth, scholarly approaches to the topic that we will analyze and synthesize across the semester in class discussions. We will also do various in-class activities in which we think critically about perceptions and representations of the Earthworks [ELO 1.1, 1.2, 2.1, 3.1, 3.2, 4.1, 4.2, 4.3]

Grading Scale: A= 93–100% A-= 90-92% B+= 87-89% B= 83-86% B-= 80-82%

C+= 77-79% C= 73-76% C-= 70-72% D+ = 67-69, D= 60-66% E=Below 60

Class Policies and Procedures

Carmen: Students should check Carmen regularly for readings, announcements, course resources, and other information.

Email: The professor will sometimes communicate with students via your OSU email account. Please make sure you check this account regularly. Students may use email to contact the professor outside of class. Please know that I typically respond within 24 hours, but I might not respond after 5 p.m.

Reading: Students are expected to complete all readings before the corresponding class meeting and should bring readings to class each time we meet. Readings will be posted on the course Carmen website. There is no textbook.

Attendance: You may miss two classes without penalty. Three “unexcused absences” will lower your final grade for the course one letter grade (e.g., a B to a C); four will result in a failure for the course. Only absences for documented illnesses, family tragedies, religious observances, or documented university-related travel will be excused.

Academic Honesty: It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>.

Disability Services:

The university strives to maintain a healthy and accessible environment to support student learning in and out of the classroom. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic, or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion.

If you are isolating while waiting for a COVID-19 test result, please let me know immediately. Those testing positive for COVID-19 should refer to the Safe and Healthy Buckeyes site for resources. Beyond five days of the required COVID-19 isolation period, I may rely on Student Life Disability Services to establish further reasonable accommodations. You can connect with the Newark Disability Services Office at:

Newark Disability Service Info:

Email: nwk-studentlifedisabilityservices@osu.edu

Phone: 740.755.7768.

Religious Accommodations:

It is Ohio State's policy to reasonably accommodate the sincerely held religious beliefs and practices of all students. The policy permits a student to be absent for up to three days each academic semester for reasons of faith or religious or spiritual belief.

Students planning to use religious beliefs or practices accommodations for course requirements must inform the instructor in writing no later than 14 days after the course begins. The instructor is then responsible for scheduling an alternative time and date for the course requirement, which may be before or after the original time and date of the course requirement. These alternative accommodations will remain confidential. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that all course assignments are completed.

Note: All readings will be available on Carmen. Instructor reserves the right to alter schedule for benefit of the class; any changes will be announced in class and on Carmen.

Course Outline

What to expect from class meetings: You should come to class prepared to discuss the readings for the day, including any questions you have about the material. I will provide a brief lecture to supplement the readings and guide the discussion, which will sometimes include breaking into small groups. I will help you understand the material as well as how it fits into course goals and assignments. Some days will focus heavily on a specific activity like examining different kinds of documents (see Week 8), but on most days you can expect to do small in-class activities that are not listed on the schedule (to keep the schedule tidy); for instance, in Week 6, I will guide you through an activity involving how we perceive and talk about environments. Most class days will end with a preview of how to approach readings for the next class meeting.

Week 1: Native Peoples of Ohio, Origin Stories

Jan 10: Course Introduction. Begin Reflective Journal.

GE THEME COURSES

Overview

Courses that are accepted into the General Education (GE) Themes must meet two sets of Expected Learning Outcomes (ELOs): those common for all GE Themes and one set specific to the content of the Theme. This form begins with the criteria common to all themes and has expandable sections relating to each specific theme.

A course may be accepted into more than one Theme if the ELOs for each theme are met. Courses seeing approval for multiple Themes will complete a submission document for each theme. Courses seeking approval as a 4-credit, Integrative Practices course need to complete a similar submission form for the chosen practice. It may be helpful to consult your Director of Undergraduate Studies or appropriate support staff person as you develop and submit your course. .

Please enter text in the boxes to describe how your class will meet the ELOs of the Theme to which it applies. Please use language that is clear and concise and that colleagues outside of your discipline will be able to follow. You are encouraged to refer specifically to the syllabus submitted for the course, since the reviewers will also have that document. Because this document will be used in the course review and approval process, you should be as specific as possible, listing concrete activities, specific theories, names of scholars, titles of textbooks etc.

Accessibility

If you have a disability and have trouble accessing this document or need to receive the document in another format, please reach out to Meg Daly at daly.66@osu.edu or call 614-247-8412.
