Effective Term Autumn 2023
Previous Value Spring 2013

Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

Updating Course to be in the Citizenship Theme.

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

This course explores modern Arabic literature as a space where different understandings of gender are analyzed and imagined. We will read literary narratives from the 1960s to the present and consider how gender is being produced in interaction with other categories such as the nation, social class, sexuality, and language. Starting with debates about gender and citizenship in the early postcolonial period, we will discuss literature that speaks to different historical and national contexts, such as liberation from colonial powers, the Lebanese Civil War, Palestine, immigration and diaspora, and contemporary literature that speaks to issues of race and national histories.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?

(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

None

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? Yes

Please identify the pending request and explain its relationship to the proposed changes(s) for this course (e.g. cross listed courses, new or revised program)

Cross-listing with WGSS 2702

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Dear Committee,

Thank you for your feedback on my course Arabic / WGSS 2702, “Gender in Modern Arabic Literature. I initially applied in July 2022 to request that the course be considered for the new General Education theme “Citizenship for a Just and Diverse World.” I received feedback from the committee a couple of weeks ago. This feedback included a request to update the course syllabus to "more actively demonstrate with clearer and more direct specificity how the course will engage with the Goals and ELOs for the Citizenship for a Diverse and Just World theme."

I have updated the syllabus to address this concern. I have changed the course title “Gender in Modern Arabic Literature” to “Gender and Citizenship in Modern Arabic Literature” and updated the course description to better highlight the course’s focus on questions of citizenship, justice, and diversity. Some readings and assignments have also been updated. Most notably, the last assignment included in the major sequence of assignments required in the course (the scaffolded research assignment) is a group presentation focused on racial justice initiatives and reports in the Arabic-speaking region. With the support of an ALX racial justice grant, my course GTA prepared an annotated list of racial justice initiatives that student groups will research, present, and connect to our discussion of the novel Celestial Bodies by Omani writer Jokha Alharthi. We are already implementing this new assignment this fall semester.

Another update to the syllabus includes a wider array of readings in the course section focused on literature of the Lebanese Civil War. The section now includes short stories and poetry and a discussion of gothic writing and how it often appears in Arabic literary renderings of war and displacement that produce anxieties around the meaning of citizenship.

Thank you for taking the time to review this syllabus and proposal again. Please let me know if you have any questions!

Sincerely,

Johanna Sellman

Gender and Citizenship in Modern Arabic Literature

3 credits

Meeting days and times: TBD

Instructor: Johanna Sellman (sellman.13@osu.edu)

Office hours: TBD

Prerequisites: completion of GE Foundation Writing and Information Literacy course

This course explores modern Arabic literature from the 1960s to the present as a space where different understandings of gender and citizenship are analyzed and imagined. Starting with debates about gender and citizenship in the early postcolonial period, we will discuss novels, short stories, and poetry by women writers that speak to different historical and national contexts, such as liberation from colonial powers, the Lebanese Civil War, Palestinian historical memory, and legacies of slavery in the Gulf. We will complement these literary texts with both documentary and narrative film. In each section of the class, we will consider how literary texts intervene in different conceptions of citizenship and social justice. By participating in ongoing scholarly conversations on modern Arabic literature and gender we will also reflect on how our own learning community is generating questions and knowledge.

Course goals:

By the end of this course, students should successfully be able to:

- 1) Read and analyze modern Arabic literary texts in translation in their social, national, and political contexts
- 2) Demonstrate familiarity with major themes and debates in postcolonial Arabic literature written by women authors
- 3) Analyze a variety of ways that gender is explored in Arabic literature, through means such as language and narrative structure
- 4) Consider how constructions of citizenship are often explicitly and implicitly gendered
- 5) Probing the relationship between being attentive readers of global literature and developing competency as a global citizen
- 6) Discuss how citizenship (and sometimes efforts to re-define it) is implicated in projects to advance justice for diverse populations
- 7) Identify and examine their own implicit beliefs about social identities, including gender, ethnicity, and race

General Education

Foundations: Citizenship for a Just and Diverse World

Goals and ELOs

Goal 1: Successful students will analyze concepts of citizenship, justice and diversity at a more advanced and in-depth level than in the Foundations component.

1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking about the topic or idea of citizenship for a just and diverse world.

1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or idea of citizenship for a just and diverse world.

Goal 2: Successful students will integrate approaches to understanding citizenship for a just and diverse world by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.

2.1 Identify, describe and synthesize approaches or experiences as they apply to citizenship for a just and diverse world.

2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.

Goal 3: Successful students will explore and analyze a range of perspectives on local, national or global citizenship and apply the knowledge, skills and dispositions that constitute citizenship.

3.1 Describe and analyze a range of perspectives on what constitutes citizenship and how it differs across political, cultural, national, global and/or historical communities.

3.2 Identify, reflect on and apply the knowledge, skills and dispositions required for intercultural competence as a global citizen.

Goal 4: Successful students will examine notions of justice amid difference and analyze and critique how these interact with historically and socially constructed ideas of citizenship and membership within society, both within the United States and around the world.

4.1 Examine, critique and evaluate various expressions and implications of diversity, equity and inclusion, and explore a variety of lived experiences.

4.2 Analyze and critique the intersection of concepts of justice, difference, citizenship, and how these interact with cultural traditions, structures of power and/or advocacy for social change.

In this course, we will meet these goals by:

- examining how gender is constructed in literary texts.
- discussing the way that important frameworks and contexts of modern Arabic literature such as Orientalism, nationalism, and diaspora are understood in relation to gender.
- focusing on the role that historical and social contexts have played in shaping the form, style, and themes of literary works.

- analyzing how meaning is constructed through literary devices and aesthetics.
- appreciating the different ways that Arabic literature has engaged with social issues in modern and contemporary societies.
- examining our own implicit and explicit beliefs about gender in a variety of contexts.
- Engaging with our classroom community in a manner that supports each individual's learning and dignity.

GE: This course fulfills the Diversity: Global Studies and Literature GE categories

As part of the Diversity: Global Studies category of the General Education curriculum, this course is designed to prepare students to be able to do the following:

Goals: Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students understand some of the political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical aspects of one or more of the world's nations, peoples, and cultures outside the U.S.
2. Students recognize the role of national and international diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values as global citizens.

As part of the Literature category of the General Education curriculum, this course is designed to prepare students to be able to do the following:

Goals: Students evaluate significant texts in order to develop capacities for aesthetic and historical response and judgement; interpretation and evaluation; and critical listening, reading, seeing, thinking, and writing.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

1. Students analyze, interpret, and critique significant literary works.
2. Through reading, discussing, and writing about literature, students appraise and evaluate the personal and social values of their own and other cultures.

How this course fulfills these learning:

This course examines how Arabic literature written by women writers explore and challenge prevailing conceptions of citizenship within their own diverse societies and regions. To do so, we study “political, economic, cultural, physical, social, and philosophical” contexts of the books. This includes studying the role of women in nationalist imaginaries, the anxieties about politics and economics that literature unearths, the way that literary represents and re-imagines prevailing gendered social structures, and the philosophical underpinnings of different Arab feminist approaches. Throughout the course, readings and assignments encourage reflection on and recognition of the diversity within the Arabic-speaking region. It is through critical analysis, close reading, and discussions of significant literary works that students will develop their skills of textual analysis. In addition to supporting their scholarly goals, these skills will better situate students to evaluate and posing themselves vis-a-vis the social structures of their own culture as well as the cultural contexts of the literature of the course.

Descriptions of major course assignments

Participation (15%) Participation is an important component of the learning process. It helps you activate your knowledge and process course materials and discussions. Participation may mean different things to different learners. In this course, participation includes contributing to group discussions, listening and responding to the instructor and peers, speaking in class discussions, and reflecting on ideas through in-class writing assignments.

Regular attendance is essential for your success in this course and for building a consistent learning community. After three absences your final grade will be lowered by 3%. Please speak to the instructor if you are in an extended situation that prevents you from attending class. Please stay home if you are feeling ill and communicate with the instructor on how you can catch up!

Academic integrity and collaboration: You are encouraged to collaborate with your peers during our synchronous Zoom discussions.

Weekly Assignments (15%) Most weeks, students will complete an assignment that engages course materials in different ways. We will use a variety of formats, for example, participation in discussion board, short written reflections on readings, formulating questions, taking quizzes, and creative work. In some cases, students will complete weekly assignments in designated small groups.

Academic integrity and collaboration: For the group assignments, students are required to collaborate. In some cases (such as quizzes) students will only submit their own work.

Scaffolded Research and Writing Assignment (40%) Four short (2-page) writing assignment will each focus on a particular writing and research skill including using textual evidence, engaging with secondary sources, creative writing, and analyzing character and narrative structure. Each writing assignment focuses on the content of a particular novel and section of the course. These assignments aim to deepen your engagement with course materials and prepare you for the final project.

Textual evidence (10 %) In this assignment you will use textual evidence (cite, paraphrase) from The Open Door to support a thesis about how the book engages with concepts of justice in the early postcolonial periods.

Creative writing (10 %). In this assignment you will write a creative, fictional, personal, and / or experimental text inspired by The Stone of Laughter and the novel's exploration of difference in the context of a nation at war.

Scholarship as conversation (10%) In this assignment you will engage with a secondary source (documentary, article, or chapter discussed in class) to analyze the novel Minor Detail.

Presentation on racial justice initiatives in the Middle East (10%) In this group assignment, your group will select a source or initiative on racial justice in the Middle East (list provided) and prepare a concise presentation that summarizes key points and applies them to the novel Celestial Bodies and / or other course materials.

Academic integrity and collaboration: Students may consult with the instructor, TA, or Middle East Studies Librarian.

Final Project Proposal: (5%) A few weeks before the final project is due you will submit an outline of your proposed plans for feedback.

Final Project (25%) Your final project is a short research paper (around 5-6 double-spaced pages) where you support and argument using textual evidence from semester readings. You will also engage with context and secondary academic sources. This is a chance to put together the skills you have been practicing!

There is also a creative option. You may write a short story, creating a film, podcast, write poetry, etc. or do something else related to the topics of the class. A creative project will include a short written reflection (about 2 double-spaced pages) on the process and the goals for your work.

Academic integrity and collaboration:

Students may consult with the instructor or Middle East Studies Librarian.

Late assignments: Please talk to your instructor if you believe you will have trouble meeting a deadline.

Grading scale: A (93-100) A- (90-92) B+ (87-89) B (83-86) B- (80-82) C+ (77-79) C (73-76) C- (70-72) D+ (67-69) D (60-66) E (below 60)

Academic Misconduct:

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>.

Disability Services:

The University strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. ### Mental Health:

As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student’s ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614-292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1-800-273-TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org.

Sexual misconduct / relationship violence:

Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are Civil Rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories (e.g., race). If you or someone you know has been sexually harassed or assaulted, you may find the appropriate resources at <http://titleix.osu.edu> or by contacting the Ohio State Title IX Coordinator at titleix@osu.edu

Diversity:

The Ohio State University affirms the importance and value of diversity in the student body. Our programs and curricula reflect our multicultural society and global economy and seek to provide opportunities for students to learn more about persons who are different from them. We are committed to maintaining a community that recognizes and values the inherent worth and dignity of every person; fosters sensitivity, understanding, and mutual respect among each member of our community; and encourages each individual to strive to reach his or her own potential. Discrimination against any individual based upon protected status, which is defined as age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status, is prohibited.

GE THEME COURSES

Overview

Courses that are accepted into the General Education (GE) Themes must meet two sets of Expected Learning Outcomes (ELOs): those common for all GE Themes and one set specific to the content of the Theme. This form begins with the criteria common to all themes and has expandable sections relating to each specific theme.

A course may be accepted into more than one Theme if the ELOs for each theme are met. Courses seeking approval for multiple Themes will complete a submission document for each theme. Courses seeking approval as a 4-credit, Integrative Practices course need to complete a similar submission form for the chosen practice. It may be helpful to consult your Director of Undergraduate Studies or appropriate support staff person as you develop and submit your course.

Please enter text in the boxes to describe how your class will meet the ELOs of the Theme to which it applies. Please use language that is clear and concise and that colleagues outside of your discipline will be able to follow. You are encouraged to refer specifically to the syllabus submitted for the course, since the reviewers will also have that document. Because this document will be used in the course review and approval process, you should be as specific as possible, listing concrete activities, specific theories, names of scholars, titles of textbooks etc.
