Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

Adding Lived Environment GE Theme

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

Faculty would like to add Lived Environment GE theme, which is a strong fit for the class.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?

(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

N/A

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? No

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Course description

The car shapes the world we live in today. Its influence is obvious in the United States, as learning to drive is a sign of independence in modern society and car ownership is often a major mark in one's life. Its influence has been more diffuse, too, as ideas of capitalism, technology, and consumerism are inherently linked to the creation and expansion of the car in modern society. The car has a global effect beyond the United States as well, sometimes with even more explicit connections to ideas of modernity and development that have shaped people's understanding of their nation. With the large-scale adoption of the car, humans fundamentally reshaped their lived environment to accommodate these technological machines, from building roads to intensively consuming oil, with long-term repercussions. This course will examine the effects of the development of the car in the 20th century in the United States and globally. Through this course, we will examine how the car has become a definitive part of global society today.

Course learning outcomes

GE Requirement: This course fulfills the general requirements and expected learning outcomes for the following GE themes:

Themes: General
Goals	Expected Learning Outcomes	Notes
GOAL 1: Students analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than the foundations.	Students... 1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking about the topic or idea of the theme.	Interrogate how cars became normalized parts of our lived environments today, which requires critical and logical thinking about cars, the world, and the environment. Students to broaden their understanding of cars beyond modern day consumption and places car development in a global context. By broadening out the history of cars, it encourages students to think critically about current debates about cars and energy transitions (essay I, II, primary source, and final paper)
	1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or idea of the theme.	In the final essay, students are expected to write an advanced, in-depth and scholarly exploration of a present day issue of the global car industry and connect it to a history of car development discussed throughout the course.
GOAL 2: Students integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.	2.1 Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences as they apply to the theme.	All assignments will ask students to draw on varied sources presented in class, which will include historical analysis, promotions, films, newspaper accounts, political critique and more to inform and broaden their preexisting ideas about car history.

	2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.	Through the final essay, students will write an advanced, in-depth and scholarly exploration of a present day car issues and connect them to the history of car discussed throughout the course. Students must select a modern car issue, incorporate independent research, and connect this topic to historical themes discussed in class. This essay promotes self interest, reflection, and creative work.

Assignment information

Assignment Overview

- Writing. Students are asked to complete four writing assignments and a presentation:
 - Assignment 1: One 3-4 page paper on early car development

Primary transportation shifted from animal transportation in the late 19th century to automobile transportation in the first decades of the 20th century. What actors, innovations, and/or events helped promote the car's rise? What changes to the lived environment were necessary to accommodate broader adoption of cars? In your opinion, which was most important and why? You must address three different countries in your analysis.

- Assignment 2: One 3-4 page essay based on car development in the mid-20th century

This essay builds on the first in-class activity from the semester. You already established what your first car was. Now I want you to put that car in historical context. What social, political, economic, and environmental factors since the end of WWII drove the creation, selection, and use of that car? Notably, is/was your car domestic or foreign and how have historical events discussed in class influenced that selection? You must connect your car to themes discussed in class. Again, if you've never had a car, what social, political, economic, and environmental factors linked to car culture and the construction/shift in car culture have allowed you to move around the city?

- Assignment 3: One 2 page primary source essay.

By 1990, the best selling car in America was the Honda Accord when foreign imports had represented less than 10% of the US market in 1960. This dramatic shift reflects a major transformation in public opinion about the American car industry between 1960 and 1990. OSU has the largest cartoon archive in the world. This includes an extensive collection of political cartoons, which uniquely provide useful insight into public opinion. This primary source assignment requires that you find a political cartoon that speaks to this transformation in American public opinion about foreign cars and/or the domestic car industry between 1960 and 1990 using the OSU Billy Ireland Cartoon Library's online archival collection (<http://osucartoons.pastperfectonline.com>).

Students must clearly identify who produced the cartoon (author), when it was published, where it was published and by which newspaper. What does the cartoon depict and how does the source speak to broader themes discussed in class about the rise of foreign cars in the US and/or the fall of domestic car companies? How and why did attitudes about American cars change in the late 20th century?

- Group Project: One group project on the modern car issues.

Group Presentations will be a cumulative project on a particular aspect of the global history of the car. Students will split into groups of 4-5 and select a topic of interest to research in depth and present to the class in more depth. Topics must be based on modern car history (1980 to present), but students must historicize the topic and are encouraged to think beyond that timeframe in effort to do so. The group must touch on an international topic- meaning if a group talks about an American company it must focus on an international aspect within that company. No group can overlap on themes.

- Assignment 4: A final 10-page paper based on your modern car project, in which each student incorporates independent research with the longer car history.

Final papers will be a culmination of each student's research topic from the group project. The student will provide a longer research paper that addresses the deeper historical context of a particular modern history topic. There is no specific timeframe limit on this. It will include primary documents presented in the course and historicize the special topic presented to the class, adding context based on course readings and lectures to bolster the historical background of the topic.

Late assignments

Late work shall be penalized half a letter grade per day. For example, if a paper is due on Monday at 5pm, but a student submits it on Tuesday at 8am, the grade would be reduced from an A to A- for that one day. If a student submitted the paper on Tuesday at 11:59am, the grade would be reduced from an A to a B+ for two days, and from an A to a B for three days. No assignment will be accepted more than one week after the original due date, except for extraordinary circumstances. I reserve the right to determine what is "extraordinary" in concert with the faculty handbook.

Grading scale

93–100: A
 90–92.9: A-
 87–89.9: B+
 83–86.9: B

80–82.9: B-
77–79.9: C+
73–76.9: C
70–72.9: C-
67–69.9: D+

Faculty feedback and response time

I am providing the following list to give you an idea of my intended availability throughout the course. (Remember that you can call 614-688-HELP at any time if you have a technical problem)

Grading and feedback

For large weekly assignments, you can generally expect feedback within 7-10 days.

E-mail

I will reply to e-mails within 36 hours on school days. Please be sure to read class-wide emails as I will often respond to questions that I receive from multiple students in announcement emails to the whole class.

Please address me as Prof. Eaglin or Dr. Eaglin in emails. All emails must include a header, address me directly, and be signed using your name. In the title of the email, please specify the course (HST2710) as I am teaching more than one class and receive numerous emails.

Discussion board

I will check and reply to messages in the discussion boards every 48 hours on school days.

Attendance, participation, and discussions

Attendance is required. Assignments will be based on course lectures. In class activities and quizzes also contribute to final grades. These cannot be completed in absentia. Absences due to approved university activities, serious illnesses, or funeral of a close family member must have appropriate documentation to be accepted without penalty.

Discussion and communication guidelines

The following are my expectations for how we should communicate as a class. Above all, please remember to be respectful and thoughtful.

- Writing style: While there is no need to participate in class discussions as if you were writing a research paper, you should remember to write using good grammar, spelling, and punctuation. Informality is fine for non-academic topics.

- Tone and civility: Let's maintain a supportive learning community where everyone feels safe and where people can disagree amicably.
- Citing your sources: When we have academic discussions, please cite your sources to back up what you say. (For the textbook or other course materials, list at least the title and page numbers. For online sources, include a link.)
- Backing up your work: Consider composing your academic posts in a word processor, where you can save your work, and then copying into the Carmen discussion.

Policies for this online course

- Quizzes: You must complete the weekly quizzes without assistance from others. These will generally reference readings, themes, or content discussed in class. Students will be able to drop the lowest quiz grade.
- Written assignments: Your written assignments, including discussion posts, should be your own original work. In formal assignments, you should follow MLA style to cite the ideas and words of your research sources. This generally means use parenthetical references including the author's last name and the page number in the text, i.e. (Eaglin, 7). You are encouraged to ask a trusted person to proofread your assignments before you turn them in--but no one else should revise or rewrite your work.
- Reusing past work: In general, you are prohibited in university courses from turning in work from a past class to your current class, even if you modify it. If you want to build on past research or revisit a topic you've explored in previous courses, please discuss the situation with me.
- Collaboration: The course includes opportunities for formal collaboration with your classmates. In discussion boards, please be open to other's opinions and considerate of your peers.
- Group projects: This course includes group projects, which can be stressful for students when it comes to dividing work, taking credit, and receiving grades and feedback. I have attempted to make the guidelines for group work as clear as possible for each activity and assignment, but please let me know if you have any questions. In formal group projects you will have the opportunity to assess your group to alert the professor of unequal participation. Ohio State's academic integrity policy

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>.

Your mental health!

As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614- 292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614-292-5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available through the 24/7 National Suicide Prevention Hotline at 1-800-273- TALK or at suicidepreventionlifeline.org

GE THEME COURSES

Overview

Courses that are accepted into the General Education (GE) Themes must meet two sets of Expected Learning Outcomes (ELOs): those common for all GE Themes and one set specific to the content of the Theme. This form begins with the criteria common to all themes and has expandable sections relating to each specific theme.

A course may be accepted into more than one Theme if the ELOs for each theme are met. Courses seeing approval for multiple Themes will complete a submission document for each theme. Courses seeking approval as a 4-credit, Integrative Practices course need to complete a similar submission form for the chosen practice. It may be helpful to consult your Director of Undergraduate Studies or appropriate support staff person as you develop and submit your course. .

Please enter text in the boxes to describe how your class will meet the ELOs of the Theme to which it applies. Please use language that is clear and concise and that colleagues outside of your discipline will be able to follow. You are encouraged to refer specifically to the syllabus submitted for the course, since the reviewers will also have that document. Because this document will be used in the course review and approval process, you should be as specific as possible, listing concrete activities, specific theories, names of scholars, titles of textbooks etc.

Accessibility

If you have a disability and have trouble accessing this document or need to receive the document in another format, please reach out to Meg Daly at daly.66@osu.edu or call 614-247-8412.
