Comments

- - The form and cover letter say that this course is a Foundation Social and Behavioral Science. However, that is not the case. This course is not part of the GEN as a Foundation Social and Behavioral Science. Please adjust the form as well as the cover letter.
- On the other hand, this course is still a GEL Diversity--Social Diversity in the US. Please make sure that the goals and ELOs for that category are present on the syllabus as well as a paragraph explaining how those ELOs are covered in the course.
- The form with the questions for Citizenship is not provided. Please upload it. (by Vankeerbergen,Bernadette Chantal on 06/29/2023 01:38 PM)

Dear curriculum committee:

Please consider our submission (Sociology 3306) for inclusion in the Citizenship theme of the new General Education curriculum. The course requires students to produce an in-depth comparison (of poverty, its relation to notions of justice, and its implications for how citizenship is defined in the U.S. and one other country.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

SYLLABUS: SOCIOLOGY 3306

SOCIOLOGY OF POVERTY

SPRING 2022

Course description

Poverty is a socially constructed state with significant individual and collective consequences that are both material and non-material. This advanced course uses a sociological lens to examine poverty in the United States and globally, with attention toward questions such as: How is poverty defined and measured? How do we deal with the challenge of poverty and what do these actions say about our view of citizenship? How is poverty distributed over space and across race/ethnicity and gender? How have these patterns changed over time? How does poverty affect individuals, families, communities, and society as a whole? What are some of the primary causes of poverty in the US and abroad? What policy measures have been taken - or could be taken - to reduce poverty? And what does poverty tell us about the political choices we make regarding what it means to be a citizen? We will unpack these and other questions by exploring current empirical research in Sociology and allied disciplines.

A core course goal will be for students to develop skills in analyzing and communicating about poverty issues in their role as global citizens as well as in diverse social settings, including families, civil society, jobs and careers that they may engage in the future. We will also study different ways that societies treat poverty and the implications those approaches have for what it means to be a citizen.

Instructor

Professor: Dr. Kammi Schmeer

Email address: schmeer.1@osu.edu

Phone number: 614-247-8110

Office hours: TBD

Office hours location: 105 Townshend Hall and Zoom

Course meetings & communication

Class meeting times: Tuesdays and Thursdays, 12:45 - 2:05pm

Office hours: You can email beforehand to schedule a specific a time or simply “drop in” via Zoom. If you are unavailable during my scheduled office hours and want to meet at a different time, send me an email with at least two options.

Email Communication: When emailing me, please include your name, the name of the class, and a brief explanation of why you are contacting me. I try to respond to all student emails within 24 hours, although my response time may be slower on weekends. If you have questions about assignments, do not wait until the last minute to contact me because you may not get a response immediately.

Technology Policy: Numerous studies indicate that students learn better by taking hand-written notes than by typing notes on a computer. I encourage you to put away your laptop during our in-person classes or use it only to take notes or reference readings. If you use your computer (or another device) to take notes, please abstain from doing other things, such as checking email or Facebook. I can and will call on people who appear not to be paying attention. All cell phones should be silenced and ignored, unless we are using them for a class activity.

General Education: This course meets the requirements for the legacy GE Social Science requirement for social diversity in the United States, along with the new GE Citizenship theme.

LEGACY GENERAL EDUCATION: Social Science (Diversity)

Goals

Students understand the pluralistic nature of institutions, society, and culture in the United States and across the world in order to become educated, productive, and principled citizens.

Expected Learning Outcomes

1. Students describe and evaluate the roles of such categories as race, gender and sexuality, disability, class, ethnicity, and religion in the pluralistic institutions and cultures of the United States.
2. Students recognize the role of social diversity in shaping their own attitudes and values regarding appreciation, tolerance, and equality of others.

How the course will meet the Diversity Goals and ELOs:

This course meets the diversity goals and expected learning outcomes by exploring the wide range of views regarding justice, citizenship rights, and poverty policy in the U.S. Students explore variations in these views by comparing notions of poverty, citizenship, and justice in two countries. Finally, students explore how poverty is distributed across race, gender, and region, and the implications poverty has for maintaining racial and gender-based inequality.

GENERAL EDUCATION THEME: CITIZENSHIP

Goals:

1. Successful students will analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than in the Foundations component. [Note: In this context, "advanced" refers to courses that are e.g., synthetic, rely on research or cutting-edge findings, or deeply engage with the subject matter, among other possibilities.]
2. Successful students will integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.
3. Successful students will explore and analyze a range of perspectives on local, national, or global citizenship and apply the knowledge, skills, and dispositions that constitute citizenship.
4. Successful students will examine notions of justice amid difference and analyze and critique how these interact with historically and socially constructed ideas of citizenship and membership within society, both within the United States and around the world.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

Successful students are able to:

- 1.1. Engage in critical and logical thinking about the topic or idea of the theme.
- 1.2 Engage in advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or idea of the theme.
- 2.1. Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences as they apply to the theme.
- 2.2. Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.
- 3.1. Describe and analyze a range of perspectives on what constitutes citizenship and how it differs across political, cultural, national, global, and/or historical communities.
- 3.2. Identify, reflect on, and apply the knowledge, skills, and dispositions required for intercultural competence as a global citizen.
- 4.1. Examine, critique, and evaluate various expressions and implications of diversity, equity, and inclusion, and explore a variety of lived experiences.
- 4.2. Analyze and critique the intersection of concepts of justice, difference, citizenship, and how these interact with cultural traditions, structures of power, and/or advocacy for social change.

How the course will meet the Citizenship Theme Goals and ELOs:

This course requires students to produce an in-depth analysis comparing poverty in the U.S. with another country, along with the implications for what it means to be a citizen in each country. The paper that requires base knowledge from lower-level courses along with the more advanced knowledge of current poverty research developed in this course. Exams and readings will challenge students to consider: (1) different political approaches to addressing poverty, (2) how these are embedded in notions of justice, (3) the implications for how a society defines “citizenship,” and (4) how these varying perspectives compare to other countries and vary within regions of the U.S. Two reflective essays require that students consider both (1) the link between notions of justice and views of poverty and (2) the implications for views of citizenship.

Course materials

Required

For this course, you will need to purchase (or otherwise acquire) the two books listed below. If you have problems acquiring these books, please let me know ASAP.

1. Edin Kathryn J. and H. Luke Shaefer. 2015. $2.00 a Day: Living on Almost Nothing in America. Boston, MA: Houghton Mifflin Harcourt. ISBN-10: 054481195X

2. Banerjee, Abhijit and Esther Duflo. 2012. Poor Economics: A Radical Rethinking of the Way to Fight Global Poverty. New York, New York: Public Affairs. ISBN-10: 9781610390934

All other texts and materials will be available on Carmen. You are expected to read (or watch) all assigned materials closely and keep track of key ideas by underlining or taking notes. Do this before class. Active engagement with course materials is the key to your success.

Course assignments

Grades

Requirements: The majority of your grade (80%) will be based on five assignments, as follows: two reflective essays, one midterm exam, one group project (Living on Minimum Wage Project), and one individual project (Global Poverty Project). The remainder of your grade (20%) will be based on attendance and participation, which includes coming to classes – or participating via Zoom - and actively engaging in discussions. This is summarized in the table below:

Component	Weight
Reflective Essays	20%
Midterm Exam	20%
Living on Minimum Wage Project (group assignment)	10%
Global Poverty Project (first draft)	10%
Global Poverty Project (individual assignment)	40%
TOTAL	100%

See course schedule, below, for due dates

Reflective Essays (20%)

Students will write two 1,000 word essays. The first responds to the prompt, “Describe varying notions of justice and their implications for how we address poverty?” The second essay addresses the prompt: “Describe the range of Americans’ views regarding poverty? What are the implications of these views for Americans’ conceptualization of citizenship?”

Midterm Exam (20%)

The exam consists of multiple choice and short-answer questions. It covers material related to definitions of poverty, the distribution of poverty, the consequences of poverty, and poverty’s link to notions of justice and citizenship.

Living on Minimum Wage Project (10%)

This group project requires students to develop a budget for a minimum wage worker with a partner and child. Students reflect on the structural features of the U.S. economic system that require minimum wage work, along with the economic consequences for the individuals doing that work.

Global Poverty Project (20% first draft, 30% final paper)

In this 5,000 word essay students will compare and contrast poverty in the U.S. with another country. They will consider how poverty is defined and distributed and what this says about the dominant notions of justice in that country. Finally, they will describe the implications of poverty policy for the country's conceptualization of "citizenship." A first draft of this paper requires students to: (1) identify the comparison country, (2) produce comparison statistics, and (3) begin to link poverty statistics to notions of justice and citizenship.

Class Attendance: You are encouraged to attend class as much as possible. But attendance should not come at the expense of your health or anyone else's. If you are unable to attend in-person classes due to COVID-19 exposure or health risks, you can participate via Zoom (contact me beforehand to make arrangements). If you are ill or have a serious problem that makes it impossible for you to participate, it will be considered an excused absence. Other absences – "I slept in," "I had to help my roommate pack," "I need to study for a midterm" – will be considered unexcused. You are allowed two unexcused absences throughout the semester - no questions asked. You will lose points for three or more unexcused absences. Even if you miss class, you will be responsible for the material covered and expected to submit assignments (unless you make arrangements with me beforehand). Students who need semester-long accommodations should seek support from pertinent offices, including: Student Advocacy, Student Life Disability Services, and the Office of Institutional Equity. Please, let me know if you are facing any difficulties. I am always willing to make reasonable accommodations.

Grading scale

On the basis of your cumulative score, I will assign your final course grade using the following grading scale:

93–100: A
 90–92.9: A-
 87–89.9: B+
 83–86.9: B
 80–82.9: B-
 77–79.9: C+
 73–76.9: C
 70 –72.9: C-
 67 –69.9: D+
 60 –66.9: D

Mental health resources

As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student's ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614- 292-5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. GE Theme course submission worksheet: Citizenship for a Just & Diverse World

Overview

Courses in the GE Themes aim to provide students with opportunities to explore big picture ideas and problems within the specific practice and expertise of a discipline or department. Although many Theme courses serve within disciplinary majors or minors, by requesting inclusion in the General Education, programs are committing to the incorporation of the goals of the focal theme and the success and participation of students from outside of their program.

Each category of the GE has specific learning goals and Expected Learning Outcomes (ELOs) that connect to the big picture goals of the program. ELOs describe the knowledge or skills students should have by the end of the course. Courses in the GE Themes must meet the ELOs common for all GE Themes and those specific to the Theme, in addition to any ELOs the instructor has developed specific to that course. All courses in the GE must indicate that they are part of the GE and include the Goals and ELOs of their GE category on their syllabus.

The prompts in this form elicit information about how this course meets the expectations of the GE Themes. The form will be reviewed by a group of content experts (the Theme Advisory) and by a group of curriculum experts (the Theme Panel), with the latter having responsibility for the ELOs and Goals common to all themes (those things that make a course appropriate for the GE Themes) and the former having responsibility for the ELOs and Goals specific to the topic of this Theme.

Briefly describe how this course connects to or exemplifies the concept of this Theme (Citizenship)

In a sentence or two, explain how this class “fits’ within the focal Theme. This will help reviewers understand the intended frame of reference for the course-specific activities described below.

(enter text here)

Connect this course to the Goals and ELOs shared by all Themes

Below are the Goals and ELOs common to all Themes. In the accompanying table, for each ELO, describe the activities (discussions, readings, lectures, assignments) that provide opportunities for students to achieve those outcomes. The answer should be concise and use language accessible to colleagues outside of the submitting department or discipline. The specifics of the activities matter—listing “readings” without a reference to the topic of those readings will not allow the reviewers to understand how the ELO will be met. However, the panel evaluating the fit of the course to the Theme will review this form in conjunction with the syllabus, so if readings, lecture/discussion topics, or other specifics are provided on the syllabus, it is not necessary to reiterate them within this form. The ELOs are expected to vary in their “coverage” in terms of number of activities or emphasis within the course. Examples from successful courses are shared on the next page.

Goal 1: Successful students will analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than the foundations. In this context, “advanced” refers to courses that are e.g., synthetic, rely on research or cutting-edge findings, or deeply engage with the subject matter, among other possibilities.

Goal 2: Successful students will integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.

	Course activities and assignments to meet these ELOs
ELO 1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking.
ELO 1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or ideas within this theme.
ELO 2.1 Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences.
ELO 2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.

Example responses for proposals within “Citizenship” (from Sociology 3200, Comm 2850, French 2803):

ELO 1.1 Engage in critical and logical thinking.	This course will build skills needed to engage in critical and logical thinking about immigration and immigration related policy through: Weekly reading response papers which require the students to synthesize and critically evaluate cutting-edge scholarship on immigration; Engagement in class-based discussion and debates on immigration-related topics using evidence-based logical reasoning to evaluate policy positions; Completion of an assignment which build skills in analyzing empirical data on immigration (Assignment #1)

	Completion 3 assignments which build skills in connecting individual experiences with broader population-based patterns (Assignments #1, #2, #3) Completion of 3 quizzes in which students demonstrate comprehension of the course readings and materials.
ELO 2.1 Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences.	Students engage in advanced exploration of each module topic through a combination of lectures, readings, and discussions. Lecture Course materials come from a variety of sources to help students engage in the relationship between media and citizenship at an advanced level. Each of the 12 modules has 3-4 lectures that contain information from both peer-reviewed and popular sources. Additionally, each module has at least one guest lecture from an expert in that topic to increase students' access to people with expertise in a variety of areas. Reading The textbook for this course provides background information on each topic and corresponds to the lectures. Students also take some control over their own learning by choosing at least one peer-reviewed article and at least one newspaper article from outside the class materials to read and include in their weekly discussion posts. Discussions Students do weekly discussions and are given flexibility in their topic choices in order to allow them to take some control over their education. They are also asked to provide information from sources they've found outside the lecture materials. In this way, they are able to explore areas of particular interest to them and practice the skills they will need to gather information about current events, analyze this information, and communicate it with others. Activity Example: Civility impacts citizenship behaviors in many ways. Students are asked to choose a TED talk from a provided list (or choose another speech of their interest) and summarize and evaluate what it says about the relationship between civility and citizenship. Examples of Ted Talks on the list include Steven Petrow on the difference between being polite and being civil, Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie's talk on how a single story can perpetuate stereotypes, and Claire Wardle's talk on how diversity can enhance citizenship.
ELO 2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.	Students will conduct research on a specific event or site in Paris not already discussed in depth in class. Students will submit a 300-word abstract of their topic and a bibliography of at least five reputable academic and mainstream sources. At the end of the semester they will submit a 5-page research paper and present their findings in a 10-minute oral and visual presentation in a small-group setting in Zoom. Some examples of events and sites: The Paris Commune, an 1871 socialist uprising violently squelched by conservative forces

	Jazz-Age Montmartre, where a small community of African-Americans—including actress and singer Josephine Baker, who was just inducted into the French Pantheon—settled and worked after World War I. The Vélodrome d’hiver Roundup, 16-17 July 1942, when 13,000 Jews were rounded up by Paris police before being sent to concentration camps The Marais, a vibrant Paris neighborhood inhabited over the centuries by aristocrats, then Jews, then the LGBTQ+ community, among other groups.

Goals and ELOs unique to Citizenship for a Just & Diverse World

Below are the Goals and ELOs specific to this Theme. As above, in the accompanying Table, for each ELO, describe the activities (discussions, readings, lectures, assignments) that provide opportunities for students to achieve those outcomes. The answer should be concise and use language accessible to colleagues outside of the submitting department or discipline. The ELOs are expected to vary in their “coverage” in terms of number of activities or emphasis within the course. Examples from successful courses are shared on the next page.

GOAL 3: Successful students will explore and analyze a range of perspectives on local, national, or global citizenship, and apply the knowledge, skills, and dispositions that constitute citizenship.

GOAL 4: Successful students will examine notions of justice amidst difference and analyze and critique how these interact with historically and socially constructed ideas of citizenship and membership within societies, both within the US and/or around the world.

	Course activities and assignments to meet these ELOs
ELO 3.1 Describe and analyze a range of perspectives on what constitutes citizenship and how it differs across political, cultural, national, global, and/or historical communities.
ELO 3.2 Identify, reflect on, and apply the knowledge, skills and dispositions required for intercultural competence as a global citizen.
ELO 4.1 Examine, critique, and evaluate various expressions and implications of diversity, equity, inclusion, and explore a variety of lived experiences.
ELO 4.2 Analyze and critique the intersection of concepts of justice, difference, citizenship, and how these interact with cultural traditions, structures of power and/or advocacy for social change.

Example responses for proposals within “Citizenship” (Hist/Relig. Studies 3680, Music 3364; Soc 3200):

ELO 3.1 Describe and analyze a range of perspectives on what constitutes citizenship and how it differs across political, cultural,	Citizenship could not be more central to a topic such as immigration/migration. As such, the course content, goals, and expected learning outcomes are all, almost by definition, engaged with a range of perspectives on local, national, and global citizenship.

national, global, and/or historical communities.	Throughout the class students will be required to engage with questions about what constitutes citizenship and how it differs across contexts. The course content addresses citizenship questions at the global (see weeks #3 and #15 on refugees and open border debates), national (see weeks #5, 7-#14 on the U.S. case), and the local level (see week #6 on Columbus). Specific activities addressing different perspectives on citizenship include Assignment #1, where students produce a demographic profile of a U.S.-based immigrant group, including a profile of their citizenship statuses using U.S.-based regulatory definitions. In addition, Assignment #3, which has students connect their family origins to broader population-level immigration patterns, necessitates a discussion of citizenship. Finally, the critical reading responses have the students engage the literature on different perspectives of citizenship and reflect on what constitutes citizenship and how it varies across communities.
ELO 3.2 Identify, reflect on, and apply the knowledge, skills and dispositions required for intercultural competence as a global citizen.	This course supports the cultivation of "intercultural competence as a global citizen" through rigorous and sustained study of multiple forms of musical-political agency worldwide, from the grass-roots to the state-sponsored. Students identify varied cultural expressions of "musical citizenship" each week, through their reading and listening assignments, and reflect on them via online and in-class discussion. It is common for us to ask probing and programmatic questions about the musical-political subjects and cultures we study. What are the possibilities and constraints of this particular version of musical citizenship? What might we carry forward in our own lives and labors as musical citizens Further, students are encouraged to apply their emergent intercultural competencies as global, musical citizens in their midterm report and final project, in which weekly course topics inform student-led research and creative projects.
ELO 4.1 Examine, critique, and evaluate various expressions and implications of diversity, equity, inclusion, and explore a variety of lived experiences.	Through the historical and contemporary case studies students examine in HIST/RS 3680, they have numerous opportunities to examine, critique, and evaluate various expressions and implications of diversity, equity, and inclusion, as well as a variety of lived experiences. The cases highlight the challenges of living in religiously diverse societies, examining a range of issues and their implications. They also consider the intersections of religious difference with other categories of difference, including race and gender. For example, during the unit on US religious freedom, students consider how incarcerated Black Americans and Native Americans have experienced questions of freedom and equality in dramatically different ways than white Protestants. In a weekly reflection post, they address this question directly. In the unit on marriage and sexuality, they consider different ways that different social groups have experienced the regulation of marriage in Israel and Malaysia in ways that do not correspond simplistically to gender (e.g. different women's groups with very different perspectives on the issues). In their weekly reflection posts and other written assignments, students are invited to analyze the implications of different regulatory models for questions of diversity, equity, and inclusion. They do so not in a simplistic sense of assessing which model is

	"right" or "best" but in considering how different possible outcomes might shape the concrete lived experience of different social groups in different ways. The goal is not to determine which way of doing things is best, but to understand why different societies manage these questions in different ways and how their various expressions might lead to different outcomes in terms of diversity and inclusion. They also consider how the different social and demographic conditions of different societies shape their approaches (e.g. a historic Catholic majority in France committed to laicite confronting a growing Muslim minority, or how pluralism within Israeli Judaism led to a fragile and contested status quo arrangement). Again, these goals are met most directly through weekly reflection posts and students' final projects, including one prompt that invites students to consider Israel's status quo arrangement from the perspective of different social groups, including liberal feminists, Orthodox and Reform religious leaders, LGBTQ communities, interfaith couples, and others.
ELO 4.2 Analyze and critique the intersection of concepts of justice, difference, citizenship, and how these interact with cultural traditions, structures of power and/or advocacy for social change.	As students analyze specific case studies in HIST/RS 3680, they assess law's role in and capacity for enacting justice, managing difference, and constructing citizenship. This goal is met through lectures, course readings, discussion, and written assignments. For example, the unit on indigenous sovereignty and sacred space invites students to consider why liberal systems of law have rarely accommodated indigenous land claims and what this says about indigenous citizenship and justice. They also study examples of indigenous activism and resistance around these issues. At the conclusion of the unit, the neighborhood exploration assignment specifically asks students to take note of whether and how indigenous land claims are marked or acknowledged in the spaces they explore and what they learn from this about citizenship, difference, belonging, and power. In the unit on legal pluralism, marriage, and the law, students study the personal law systems in Israel and Malaysia. They consider the structures of power that privilege certain kinds of communities and identities and also encounter groups advocating for social change. In their final projects, students apply the insights they've gained to particular case studies. As they analyze their selected case studies, they are required to discuss how the cases reveal the different ways justice, difference, and citizenship intersect and how they are shaped by cultural traditions and structures of power in particular social contexts. They present their conclusions in an oral group presentation and in an individually written final paper. Finally, in their end of semester letter to professor, they reflect on how they issues might shape their own advocacy for social change in the future.
