Course Change Information

What change is being proposed? (If more than one, what changes are being proposed?)

Title
Scope of course content
General education category (Theme: Migration, Mobility and Immobility for the new general education program)

What is the rationale for the proposed change(s)?

Revisions account for recent developments in scholarship and align with revised general education program. Much of the content covered in previous versions of this course suited the "Migration, Mobility, and Immobility" Theme in the new Gen Ed. The proposed revision clarifies and emphasizes how course content meets ELOs associated with this theme and also makes engagement with scholarship (suitable for the "Themes" level) central to the course.

What are the programmatic implications of the proposed change(s)?
(e.g. program requirements to be added or removed, changes to be made in available resources, effect on other programs that use the course)?

This course will expand our ability to attract and serve students in the upper-level Themes courses of the new Gen Ed. No other implications known.

Is approval of the request contingent upon the approval of other course or curricular program request? No

Is this a request to withdraw the course? No

Course Description                     This course focuses on 1) war and displacement in ancient Greek and Roman literature and 2) current scholarship on migration, mobility, and immobility in the ancient world. We investigate whether and how ancient literary texts (typically produced by elite men) can be used to study broader phenomena in the experience of ancient peoples, such as displacement, exile, and captivity.
Previous Value                         Study of ancient warfare as a complex political, social, cultural, and economic process through the lens of Greek and Latin literary texts.

Land Acknowledgement

We would like to acknowledge the land that The Ohio State University occupies is the ancestral and contemporary territory of the Shawnee, Potawatomi, Delaware, Miami, Peoria, Seneca, Wyandotte, Ojibwe and Cherokee peoples. Specifically, the university resides on land ceded in the 1795 Treaty of Greeneville and the forced removal of tribes through the Indian Removal Act of 1830. As a land grant institution, we want to honor the resiliency of these tribal nations and recognize the historical contexts that has and continues to affect the Indigenous peoples of this land.

Description

War was a key driver of and constraint on mobility in the ancient Greek and Roman worlds. Major works of ancient literature focus on the impact of war on the mobility and immobility of different communities and groups, especially women (as in Homeric epic and Greek tragedy) and indigenous peoples and refugees (as in Roman epic and historical narratives). A central issue in the study of Greek and Roman antiquity today, however, is to what extent we can use literary accounts, which were typically produced by elite men, to study broader phenomena in the experience of ancient peoples, such as displacement, exile, and captivity. Throughout this course, we will explore current scholarship on the possibilities and the challenges that literary texts present for the study of the ancient past, and we will discuss the implications of these debates for the goals of our different fields and areas of study.

No knowledge of Greek or Latin is required for this course: we will read all ancient sources in English translation. We begin with an overview of historical context and trends in scholarship on war and mobility in classical antiquity. The central units in the course each focus on a key ancient text or group of texts on war and displacement: Homer’s Iliad (8th century BCE), Euripides’ tragedies (5th century BCE), Vergil’s Aeneid (1st century BCE), Josephus’ Jewish War and Tacitus’ Agricola (1st century CE). The core texts in each unit are supplemented with substantial selections from recent scholarship on war and displacement in the ancient world, which represent a range of disciplines (such as literary criticism, history, archaeology, and political theory).

Course Materials

You are required to obtain copies of the following books:

These books are available at The Ohio State University Bookstore and widely elsewhere. All other assigned texts and supplementary materials for the course will be available through the OSU Library and Carmen.
Expectations, Assignments, and Assessments

Daily Reading: This course requires a substantial amount of reading: you are expected to read the texts assigned for each day before class and to have the texts available to consult during class time. It takes practice to develop strengths and skills as a reader, and this course is an opportunity to do that. Allow yourself time to read carefully and take notes as you go. What do you find most striking, strange, compelling, or funny? What did you find confusing or unclear? What connections do you notice with previous reading assignments for the course or other courses you have taken? What more would you like to know? All readings are selected to expose you to different “approaches to understanding mobility and immobility” in ancient sources and modern scholarship, and to give you opportunities to “analyze how texts, perceptions, representations, discourses, or artifacts represent” migration, mobility, and immobility in the ancient Greek and Roman world (GEN Theme MMI: Goal 4).

Attendance and Participation: Attending class is essential for success in this course. Class time is an opportunity to learn from each other, and I look forward to learning from and with you. Please take a moment to consider whether you are usually more of a listener or more of a talker in class discussion. If you are more of a listener, make sure you are challenging yourself to share your ideas. If you are more of a talker, make sure you are allowing space to hear what others have to say.

In-Class Writing Exercises: You will complete low-stakes writing assignments during class throughout the semester (expect 1 per week): these will be marked complete (full credit) or incomplete (no credit). Some of these assignments are posted on the course schedule, but most will not be. These assignments can only be completed in class and cannot be made up, but the lowest two scores will be dropped. These informal assignments will be opportunities to make connections between material in this course and a) your knowledge about migration, mobility, and immobility from your other coursework and b) your experiences beyond the classroom (GEN Theme MMI: Goal 2).

Midterm Exams (2): Take-home essay exams focused on the assigned reading. You will be given an essay prompt and a set of passages from assigned primary sources. You will need to use both the specific primary sources provided and assigned readings from scholarly literature (of your choice) to answer the prompt.

These essays are an opportunity to demonstrate your command of and engagement with the assigned course readings. You will use ancient accounts of war in epic, tragedy, and historiography to demonstrate that you can “describe and analyze diverse experiences or portrayals of migration, mobility, or immobility” and their effects on “individuals, societies, institutions, and/or places” in the ancient Greek and Roman world; you will use scholarly literature to demonstrate that you can describe how scholars “critique conventions, theories, and/or ideologies that influence” representations of migration, mobility, and immobility in ancient literature (GEN Theme MMI: ELO 3.2 & 4.2).
Your exams will be graded on a 10-point scale:

- Basics (up to 1 point): Does the author focus on the texts selected for the assignment? Does the essay meet the word count requirement (750 words minimum)?
- Evidence (up to 3 points): Does the author cite evidence from both the selected passages and assigned scholarly literature? Does the author choose evidence that is relevant to the discussion and avoid evidence that is not relevant? Does the author account for the wider context of the evidence cited?
- Analysis (up to 4 points): Does the author provide a clear statement of the main point of the essay (i.e., a thesis)? Does the author provide an interpretation of the text(s), instead of simply summarizing them? Does the author focus on issues in the text(s) that are debatable or open to different interpretations? Does the author go beyond the most general or obvious observations and express their own point of view?
- Polish (up to 1 point): Is the writing clear and easy to understand? Does the author choose words thoughtfully and carefully (i.e., do the words chosen make sense in context)?

You do not need, and should not consult, any sources to complete this essay other than the assigned readings and your class notes, and the essay you submit must be your own work.

Final Essay: You will write an essay (10 pages) focusing on an ancient Greek or Roman text relevant to themes of this course. You will choose an ancient text or selection of texts that discusses the effects of war on mobility and immobility in Greek and Roman antiquity and develop your argument by drawing on approaches to these phenomena from modern scholarship. This final essay is an opportunity to “engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of migration, mobility, and immobility” (GEN Theme MMI: ELO 1.2). Any text we read in full during the semester is off-limits: you must choose a text or part(s) of a text that was not assigned during the semester. Your bibliography must include at least 5 scholarly sources, with no more than 2 drawn from the course syllabus. To help you prepare for this assignment, we will spend the class session prior to spring break reviewing the guidelines, discussing best practices for building your bibliography, and brainstorming possible topics. You will prepare a 1-page outline and preliminary bibliography to discuss in an individual meeting with me during the last week of classes, and we will also do an in-class peer review exercise on the last day of class.

Grading

In-Class Writing Exercises: 20%

Midterm Exams: 50% (25% each)

Final Essay: 30%
Course Policies

At endance: Attending class is essential for success in this course, but illnesses and emergencies happen. You should not attend class if you are sick. If you must be absent, please email me to let me know in advance, and plan to attend office hours to get caught up. If you know you must be absent for multiple class sessions, please contact me immediately to discuss accommodations.

Communication: All information about the course will be communicated through Canvas. You are responsible for reading all communications sent about this course. If you have a question, email me directly at fertik.1@osu.edu. I do my best to respond to all emails within 24 hours during the week, or 48 hours over the weekend.

Electronic Devices: You are welcome to use your computer or tablet for class-related purposes only. Cell phones must be set to silent and put away unless you are using them to access Carmen for an in-class assignment. Using electronic devices for purposes not related to class is distracting, not only to you but to your fellow students: be considerate of your classmates’ learning as well as your own.

Extensions and Make-Ups: Extensions or make-ups must be requested via email at least 24 hours in advance of the deadline (except in case of emergency) and are subject to approval.

Office Hours: If you need to discuss any course material or assignments, you should plan to attend my office hours. I encourage you to come to office hours to introduce yourself, chat about your academic interests, and discuss further opportunities for studying the ancient world at OSU.

University Policies

Academic Misconduct: It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/. Please contact Prof. Fertik if you have questions about what constitutes academic misconduct in this course.

Disability Services: The university strives to maintain a healthy and accessible environment to support student learning in and out of the classroom. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability (including mental health, chronic, or temporary medical conditions), please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion. If you are isolating while waiting for a COVID-19 test result, please let me know immediately. Those testing positive for COVID-19 should refer to the Safe and Healthy Buckeyes site for resources. Beyond five days of the required COVID-19 isolation period, I may rely on Student Life Disability Services to establish further reasonable accommodations. You can connect with them at slds@osu.edu; 614-292-3307; or slds.osu.edu.

Diversity: The Ohio State University affirms the importance and value of diversity in the student body. Our programs and curricula reflect our multicultural society and global economy and seek to provide opportunities for students to learn more about persons who are different from them. We are committed to maintaining a community that recognizes and values the inherent worth and dignity of every person; fosters sensitivity, understanding, and mutual respect among each member of our community; and encourages each individual to strive to reach his or her own potential. Discrimination against any individual based upon protected status, which is defined as age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status, is prohibited.

Mental Health: As a student you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce a student’s ability to participate in daily activities. The Ohio State University offers services to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. If you or someone you know are suffering from any of the aforementioned conditions, you can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via the Office of Student Life’s Counseling and Consultation Service (CCS) by visiting ccs.osu.edu or calling 614--292--5766. CCS is located on the 4th Floor of the Younkin Success Center and 10th Floor of Lincoln Tower. You can reach an on call counselor when CCS is closed at 614--292--5766 and 24 hour emergency help is also available 24/7 by dialing 988 to reach the Suicide and Crisis Lifeline.
Religious Accommodations

Ohio State has had a longstanding practice of making reasonable academic accommodations for students’ religious beliefs and practices in accordance with applicable law. In 2023, Ohio State updated its practice to align with new state legislation. Under this new provision, students must be in early communication with their instructors regarding any known accommodation requests for religious beliefs and practices, providing notice of specific dates for which they request alternative accommodations within 14 days after the first instructional day of the course. Instructors in turn shall not question the sincerity of a student’s religious or spiritual belief system in reviewing such requests and shall keep requests for accommodations confidential.

With sufficient notice, instructors will provide students with reasonable alternative accommodations with regard to examinations and other academic requirements with respect to students’ sincerely held religious beliefs and practices by allowing up to three absences each semester for the student to attend or participate in religious activities. Examples of religious accommodations can include, but are not limited to, rescheduling an exam, altering the time of a student’s presentation, allowing make-up assignments to substitute for missed class work, or flexibility in due dates or research responsibilities. If concerns arise about a requested accommodation, instructors are to consult their tenure initiating unit head for assistance.

A student’s request for time off shall be provided if the student’s sincerely held religious belief or practice severely affects the student’s ability to take an exam or meet an academic requirement and the student has notified their instructor, in writing during the first 14 days after the course begins, of the date of each absence. Although students are required to provide notice within the first 14 days after a course begins, instructors are strongly encouraged to work with the student to provide a reasonable accommodation if a request is made outside the notice period. A student may not be penalized for an absence approved under this policy.

If students have questions or disputes related to academic accommodations, they should contact their course instructor, and then their department or college office. For questions or to report discrimination or harassment based on religion, individuals should contact the Office of Institutional Equity. (Policy: Religious Holidays, Holy Days and Observances)

- In class peer review exercise: introductory paragraph and thesis statement
GE Theme course submission worksheet: Migration, Mobility, & Immobility

Overview

Courses in the GE Themes aim to provide students with opportunities to explore big picture ideas and problems within the specific practice and expertise of a discipline or department. Although many Theme courses serve within disciplinary majors or minors, by requesting inclusion in the General Education, programs are committing to the incorporation of the goals of the focal theme and the success and participation of students from outside of their program.

Each category of the GE has specific learning goals and Expected Learning Outcomes (ELOs) that connect to the big picture goals of the program. ELOs describe the knowledge or skills students should have by the end of the course. Courses in the GE Themes must meet the ELOs common for all GE Themes and those specific to the Theme, in addition to any ELOs the instructor has developed specific to that course. All courses in the GE must indicate that they are part of the GE and include the Goals and ELOs of their GE category on their syllabus.

The prompts in this form elicit information about how this course meets the expectations of the GE Themes. The form will be reviewed by a group of content experts (the Theme Advisory) and by a group of curriculum experts (the Theme Panel), with the latter having responsibility for the ELOs and Goals common to all themes (those things that make a course appropriate for the GE Themes) and the former having responsibility for the ELOs and Goals specific to the topic of this Theme.

Briefly describe how this course connects to or exemplifies the concept of this Theme (Migration, Mobility, & Immobility)

In a sentence or two, explain how this class “fits” within the focal Theme. This will help reviewers understand the intended frame of reference for the course-specific activities described below.

War was a key driver of and constraint on mobility in the ancient Greek and Roman worlds. Major works of ancient literature focus on the impact of war on the mobility and immobility of different communities and groups, especially women (as in Homeric epic and Greek tragedy) and indigenous peoples and refugees (as in Roman epic and historical narratives). A central issue in the study of Greek and Roman antiquity today, however, is to what extent we can use literary accounts, which were typically produced by elite men, to study broader phenomena in the experience of ancient peoples, such as displacement, exile, and captivity. Throughout this course, we will explore current scholarship on the possibilities and the challenges that literary texts present for the study of the ancient past, and we will discuss the implications of these debates for the goals of our different fields and areas of study. The central units in the course each focus on a key ancient text or group of texts on war and displacement: Homer’s Iliad (8th century BCE), Euripides’ tragedies (5th century BCE), Vergil’s Aeneid (1st century BCE), Josephus’ Jewish War and Tacitus’ Agricola (1st century CE). The core texts in each unit are supplemented with substantial selections from recent scholarship on war and displacement in the ancient world, which represent a range of disciplines (such as literary criticism, history, archaeology, and political theory). No knowledge of Greek or Latin is required for this course: we will read all ancient sources in English translation.
Connect this course to the Goals and ELOs shared by all Themes

Below are the Goals and ELOs common to all Themes. In the accompanying table, for each ELO, describe the activities (discussions, readings, lectures, assignments) that provide opportunities for students to achieve those outcomes. The answer should be concise and use language accessible to colleagues outside of the submitting department or discipline. The specifics of the activities matter—listing “readings” without a reference to the topic of those readings will not allow the reviewers to understand how the ELO will be met. However, the panel evaluating the fit of the course to the Theme will review this form in conjunction with the syllabus, so if readings, lecture/discussion topics, or other specifics are provided on the syllabus, it is not necessary to reiterate them within this form. The ELOs are expected to vary in their “coverage” in terms of number of activities or emphasis within the course. Examples from successful courses are shared on the next page.

Goal 1: Successful students will analyze an important topic or idea at a more advanced and in-depth level than the foundations. In this context, “advanced” refers to courses that are e.g., synthetic, rely on research or cutting-edge findings, or deeply engage with the subject matter, among other possibilities.

Goal 2: Successful students will integrate approaches to the theme by making connections to out-of-classroom experiences with academic knowledge or across disciplines and/or to work they have done in previous classes and that they anticipate doing in future.

<td>The reading and writing assignments are all designed to give students opportunities for critical and logical thinking, both when they read and write independently and during class meetings. Students will read ancient texts from a variety of genres (epic, tragedy, and historiography) and time periods (8th century BCE-1st century CE) as well as scholarship from multiple disciplines (literature, archaeology, history, and political theory). To prepare for the larger assignments (the midterm essay exams and final essay), students will complete frequent low-stakes writing assignments in class. For example, on our first day of class we will watch selections from Troy: Fall of a City (2018) and HBO Rome (2005-2007): students will discuss (in conversation and writing) how these TV programs represent the enslavement and exile of peoples in the context of ancient warfare, and what kinds of evidence we might need to tell stories about mobility and immobility in antiquity. These conversations are intended to prepare students to approach the literary texts we read in this class with an eye toward critical assessment and analysis.</td>

| ELO 1.2 Engage in an advanced, in-depth, scholarly exploration of the topic or ideas within this theme. | While foundations courses in Classics focus primarily on ancient texts, the goal of this advanced course is to engage closely with scholarship on these sources, with attention to current debates in the field. The core texts (Homer’s Iliad, Euripides’ tragedies, Vergil’s Aeneid, Josephus’ Jewish War and Tacitus’ Agricola) in each unit are supplemented with recent scholarship on war and displacement in the ancient world, which represent a range of methodological approaches to ancient texts. For example, in Unit 2, we read substantial selections of Homer’s Iliad, focusing especially on the mobility and immobility of women both during and after the Trojan War. Alongside the ancient epic, we read scholarship in intellectual history (on women’s mobility as a concern in ancient Greek ideals of gender and sexuality) and social history (on ancient Greek women’s experiences as captives of war as well as agents in battle). In Unit 3, we look at how political theory uses Greek tragedy (particularly Euripides’ Medea) to theorize migration. |

| ELO 2.1 Identify, describe, and synthesize approaches or experiences. | Students will identify, describe, and synthesize 1) approaches to mobility and immobility in scholarship and 2) experiences of war and displacement as represented in ancient Greek and Roman literature. For example, Unit 1 orients students to developments in the study of mobility and immobility in Greco-Roman antiquity: we will read a diverse selection of work from fields like literary studies (mobility of sex workers in Hellenistic drama), history (the incarceration of women in Classical Athens), and demography (war, the |
In-class discussion and writing exercises will give students the opportunity to compare and contrast what they find compelling or lacking in these different scholarly approaches. The midterm exams and final essay will require students to synthesize evidence from primary texts and to describe how the scholarship we have studied can help us to interpret and assess these texts.

ELO 2.2 Demonstrate a developing sense of self as a learner through reflection, self-assessment, and creative work, building on prior experiences to respond to new and challenging contexts.

Assignments are designed to help students to build up to a substantial final essay on an ancient Greek or Roman text relevant to the course themes but not assigned for the course. Reading assignments help students to determine what kinds of texts they might be interested in exploring further. Low-stakes, in-class writing assignments will give students the opportunity to assess and reflect on their comprehension of key themes and questions in the course (note: to encourage attendance and participation, most in class writing assignments are not listed on the course schedule). For the midterm essay take-home exams, one focused on Greek and one on Roman literature, students will use a set of selected passages from assigned primary sources, and their own choice of readings from assigned scholarly literature. We will have a scheduled class discussion on building bibliographies for the final essay. Students will meet with me individually to discuss proposals for their essays and will participate in a peer review exercise on their introductory paragraphs. These scaffolded assignments give students opportunities to reflect on their progress as learners, thinkers, readers, and writers throughout the course and in the context of their wider academic experiences.

Goals and ELOs unique to Migration, Mobility, & Immobility

Below are the Goals and ELOs specific to this Theme. As above, in the accompanying Table, for each ELO, describe the activities (discussions, readings, lectures, assignments) that provide opportunities for students to achieve those outcomes. The answer should be concise and use language accessible to colleagues outside of the submitting department or discipline. The ELOs are expected to vary in their “coverage” in terms of number of activities or emphasis within the course. Examples from successful courses are shared on the next page.

GOAL 3: Successful students will explore and analyze a range of perspectives on migration, mobility, and immobility, including causes and effects, personal or group experiences, or artistic expression.

GOAL 4: Successful students will explain a variety of scholarly or artistic approaches to understanding mobility and immobility, and analyze how texts, perceptions, representations, discourses, or artifacts represent these concerns.

<td>Students focus on the social, cultural, political, and environmental causes of the displacement of peoples in ancient Greek and Roman narratives of war. We focus in particular on the forced migrations of women in Greek epic and tragedy (Units 2-3) and of indigenous communities in Roman epic and historiography (Units 4-5), and we consider different scholarly approaches to ancient migrations and their causes. For example, in Unit 4, students read accounts of the foundation of Rome and its relationships to its neighbors in Italy in Vergil and Livy (1st century BCE), as well as scholarship from archaeology and environmental history on colonization in Italy during the Roman Republic. In an in-class writing assignment at the conclusion of Unit 4, students will compare and contrast how mobility of peoples in Italy is explained by ancient literary texts and by twenty-first century scholars.</td>

<td>ELO 3.2 Describe and analyze diverse experiences or portrayals of migration, mobility, or immobility (e.g. migration, incarceration, disability, or flight) and the complex effects of these phenomena on individuals, societies, institutions, and/or places.</td>
<td>Students will describe and analyze 1) how ancient Greek and Roman war narratives from a variety of periods and genres portray the mobility and immobility of different groups and 2) the effects of the mobility and immobility of these groups on ancient Greek and Roman societies. We also consider how artists draw on ancient war literature to respond to refugee crises today. For example, in Unit 3, students will read a selection of Euripides’ tragedies (5th century BCE) which focus on women who, after the Trojan War, are enslaved and exiled from Troy to Greece; they will also watch selections of a recent theatrical workshop in which Syrian refugees in Scotland stage selections from Euripides’ play, and read selections from the work of classicist and poet A. E. Stallings on the lives of refugees in Greece today.</td>

<td>We will discuss the central role of displacement and migration in narratives that ancient Greeks and Romans used to define and articulate their beliefs and values: especially important are literature related to the Trojan War (the Iliad, Greek tragedy, and the Aeneid) and histories of imperial conquest and expansion (Josephus’ Jewish War and Tacitus’ Agricola). For example, in Unit 5, we read the ancient Jewish historian Josephus’s narrative of Rome’s Jewish Wars, with attention to the transportation of Jewish captives and spoils of war from Judaea to Rome: this account sheds light on how different groups perceived the constraints on and opportunities for mobility that Roman power presented. We will also discuss modern Jewish pilgrimages to the Arch of Titus in Rome (a monument to Roman victory which depicts spoils from the temple in Jerusalem).</td>
<td>ELO 4.2 Describe how people (e.g. scholars, artists, scientists, etc.) perceive or represent migration, mobility, or immobility and critique conventions, theories, and/or ideologies that influence such perceptions or representations</td>
<td>Throughout this course, we will critically assess ancient literary representations of migration, mobility, and immobility with an eye to whose voices and experiences are and are not represented. We will also discuss a range of scholarly approaches to working with or accounting for these absences or silences. For our concluding discussion and in-class writing assignment, we will listen to excerpts from podcasts on violence and migration in the twenty-first century (camps for refugees in Greece and for asylum-seekers in Mexico) and discuss the ethical challenges of putting ancient and modern experiences of MMI in conversation with each other.</td>
