COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course focuses on ideas and practices about love from around 1800 to the present. We will discuss images of love in art to develop analytical skills and interpretive language that students will be using in writing the assigned papers. We will collectively interpret works of art to develop a more rigorous language for the analysis of the three main works of fiction. The first weeks of lecture present an introductory theoretical orientation, offer some deep historical background, and introduce the elements of loving, which the students will study throughout the course.

New GE: Historical and Cultural Studies

Goals - Cultural Studies:

1. Successful students will evaluate significant cultural phenomena and ideas to develop capacities for aesthetic and cultural response, judgment, interpretation, and evaluation.

Expected Learning Outcomes - Cultural Studies:

Successful students are able to:
1.1. Analyze and interpret selected major forms of human thought, culture, ideas, or expression.
1.2. Describe and analyze selected cultural phenomena and ideas across time using a diverse range of primary and secondary sources and an explicit focus on different theories and methodologies.
1.3. Use appropriate sources and methods to construct an integrated and comparative perspective of cultural periods, events, or ideas that influence human perceptions, beliefs, and behaviors.
1.4. Evaluate social and ethical implications in cultural studies.

This course satisfies these goals and ELOs in the following ways:

Students will analyze and interpret three major literary works, in addition to a selection of other examples from the visual and performing arts, to describe and analyze the changing conceptions of love over the modern period. Students will read a variety of primary and secondary sources to support the analysis of these artworks and will synthesize their learning through in-class discussions and both informal and formal writing assignments.
New GE: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts

Goals:

1. Successful students will analyze, interpret, and evaluate major forms of human thought, cultures, and expression, and demonstrate capacities for aesthetic and culturally informed understanding.
2. Successful students will experience the arts and reflect on that experience critically and creatively.

Expected Learning Outcomes:

Successful students are able to:
1.1. Analyze and interpret significant works of visual, spatial, literary, and/or performing arts and design.
1.2. Describe and explain how cultures identify, evaluate, shape, and value works of literature, art, and design.
1.3. Evaluate how artistic ideas influence and shape human beliefs and the interactions between the arts and human perceptions and behavior.
1.4. Evaluate social and ethical implications in literature, visual and performing arts, and design.
2.1. Engage in informed observation and/or active participation within the visual, spatial, literary, or performing arts and design.
2.2. Critically reflect on and share their own experience of observing or engaging in the visual, spatial, literary, or performing arts and design.

This course satisfies these goals and ELOs in the following ways:

Students will analyze and interpret three major literary works, in addition to a selection of other examples from the visual and performing arts, to describe and analyze the changing conceptions of love over the modern period. Students will learn a variety of foundational methods and critical frameworks for the interpretation and analysis of artistic works. Students will practice informed observation and sustained engagement with these artworks through in class discussions, informal in-class writing assignments, and more formal written assignments. In lectures, students will learn about the historical and cultural circumstances surrounding these art works, which they will use in their evaluation of social, ethical and socio-historical questions around the artworks in question.

Legacy GE: Historical Studies

Goals

Students recognize how past events are studied and how they influence today's society and the human condition.

Expected Learning Outcomes

1. Students construct an integrated perspective on history and the factors that shape human activity.
2. Students describe and analyze the origins and nature of contemporary issues.
3. Students speak and write critically about primary and secondary historical sources by examining diverse interpretations of past events and ideas in their historical contexts.

This course satisfies these goals and ELOs in the following ways:

Students will study the changing conception of love during the $19^{\text {th }}$ and $20^{\text {th }}$ centuries through the analysis and interpretation of three major literary works, in addition to a selection of other examples from the visual and performing arts. Students will read a variety of primary and secondary sources to support the analysis of these artworks and will synthesize their learning through in-class discussions and both informal and formal writing assignments.

REQUIRED TEXTS

Charlotte Brontë, Jane Eyre, Penguin. ISBN 9780141441146
D. H. Lawrence, Women in Love, Penguin ISBN 9780141441542

Carol Shields, The Republic of Love.
Diana Hacker, A Pocket Style Manual
Stephen Kern, The Culture of Love: Victorians to Moderns.
In addition to the texts listed above, supplementary primary and secondary readings will be posted on Carmen.

COURSE FORMAT:

Lectures will be supplemented by PowerPoint presentations on aspects of love in art, as well as examples of visual artworks during the period studied. Items in the syllabus (sections of novels or book chapters) in bold type should be read by the day of the class, and students should be prepared to discuss them. Chapters not in bold type are optional, but I will lecture on them.

ASSIGNMENTS

In-Class Writing Assignment (3) - Throughout the semester, students will have the opportunity to practice their skills of observation, analysis, engagement, and reflection in short, informal, in-class writing assignments. For each assignment, you will be asked to carefully engage with the work at hand (this might take the form of reading, looking, and/or listening) and record your initial impressions and observations of the work. You will also be asked to reflect upon your own experience of engaging with the work. While your formal papers will be focused on a careful analysis of the socio-historical conditions of the artwork studied, your in-class reflections will allow space for a more personalized and subjective engagement with the art we are studying. While I will not grade these assignments with the same rigor as I will grade your formal papers, I still expect to see foundational basics of writing, such as complete sentences, punctuation, and staying on topic. This is also an opportunity for students to practice writing in a less formal style and tone while still producing legible and lucid prose.

Formal Papers (3) - Students will write three papers of 4 pages (1200 words) each on assigned topics based on the readings, lectures, and class discussions. These papers will be based on fictional sources, an exercise that may be unfamiliar to history students. In the paper, students will analyze the artwork(s) in question AND connect their analysis to the historical context and culture that produced the work.

I emphasize writing and conduct a week-long writing workshop before the first paper is due, which indicates the sorts of mechanical techniques I expect students to learn. These techniques include most importantly correct use of pronouns and punctuation, the avoidance of over-statements, and staying on topic, among others. I will be a strict critic on these papers, especially the first one, as I expect students to improve on each subsequent paper as they generally do.

GRADING AND ATTENDANCE: Students' final grade is based on the following percentages: first paper (25\%), second paper (25\%), third paper (25\%), in-class writing assignments (15\%), class participation (10\%), with weight shifted toward the latter papers when students improve. If a student is tardy, it counts as an absence, although if a student reports to me after class the reason for the tardiness, I will delete the absence. If students have an emergency or illness, they need to email me before class begins to receive an excused absence for that day, unless they are physically unable to get to their computer.

Out of consideration for the other students and myself, please do not come to class sick. I do not require doctor's notes, funeral notices, or any written evidence of the reason for your absence, just your word that you are sick or unable to get to class.

I do not make up class lectures. In each of the assigned interpretive essays there is considerable flexibility about your assignment and an overlap of material, so one or two absences during a unit should not substantially reduce a student's opportunity to do quite well on the paper. Moreover, I go over most everything students will need to include in these papers in considerable detail and with a good measure of repetition. When I teach this course online, I will record the lectures for students who are unable to get to class on a particular day. Students for whom English is a second language should attach a short note to that effect on their first paper, and I will take that circumstance into consideration in commenting on the paper and in giving a grade.

ACADEMIC MISCONDUCT

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term "academic misconduct" includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-487).

To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion.

If you are isolating while waiting for a COVID-19 test result, please let me know immediately. Those testing positive for COVID-19 should refer to the Safe and Healthy Buckeyes site for resources. ## RELIGIOUS ACCOMMODATIONS

It is Ohio State's policy to reasonably accommodate the sincerely held religious beliefs and practices of all students. The policy permits a student to be absent for up to three days each academic semester for reasons of faith or religious or spiritual belief.

Students planning to use religious beliefs or practices accommodations for course requirements must inform the instructor in writing no later than 14 days after the course begins. The instructor is then responsible for scheduling an alternative time and date for the course requirement, which may be before or after the original time and date of the course requirement. These alternative accommodations will remain confidential. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that all course assignments are completed.

Overview

Courses that are accepted into the General Education (GE) Foundations provide introductory or foundational coverage of the subject of that category. Additionally, each course must meet a set of Expected Learning Outcomes (ELO). Courses may be accepted into more than one Foundation, but ELOs for each Foundation must be met. It may be helpful to consult your Director of Undergraduate Studies or appropriate support staff person as you develop and submit your course.

This form contains sections outlining the ELOs of each Foundation category. You can navigate between them using the Bookmarks function in Acrobat. Please enter text in the boxes to describe how your class meets the ELOs of the Foundation(s) to which it applies. Because this document will be used in the course review and approval process, you should use language that is clear and concise and that colleagues outside of your discipline will be able to follow. Please be as specific as possible, listing concrete activities, specific theories, names of scholars, titles of textbooks etc. Your answers will be evaluated in conjunction with the syllabus submitted for the course.

Accessibility

If you have a disability and have trouble accessing this document or need to receive the document in another format, please reach out to Meg Daly at daly.66@osu.edu or call 614-247-8412.

Goal 1: Successful students will analyze, interpret, and evaluate major forms of human thought, cultures, and expression; and demonstrate capacities for aesthetic and culturally informed understanding.

Expected Learning Outcome 1.1: Successful students are able to analyze and interpret significant works of design or visual, spatial, literary or performing arts. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

The crux of this course is the close analysis and interpretation of significant cultural works produced during this time that relate to the course topic of love. Students will practice analyzing and interpreting these works through both class discussion as well as in the assigned papers.

We will practice close, analytical reading of three major novels of the period:
Charlotte Bronte, Jane Eyre, DH Lawrence, Women in Love and Carol Shields, The Republic of Love.
While this course is focused primarily on analyzing written works, we will also practice introductory analyses of other forms of art as well, such as:

Jan 16 - Richard Wagner, Tristan and Isolde
Feb 20 - Late 19th Century visual arts
March 3-5 - Women in Love Film
$\qquad$

Expected Learning Outcome 1.2: Successful students are able to describe and explain how cultures identify, evaluate, shape, and value works of literature, visual and performing art, and design. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

The course is divided into three units that correspond with the major texts studied during the course. Each unit will have several courses devoted to exploring the historical context surrounding each of these major texts. The three formal papers for the class will be graded based on the students' ability to both conduct an analysis of the work, as well as connect that analysis to the historical and cultural circumstances of its production and initial interpretation.
Assignment Examples:
Formal Papers (3)
Lecture/Discussion Examples:
Jan 14-Enlightenment Love
Jan 16-Romantic Love
Feb 11-World War I
Feb 13-Victorian Sexuality
March 17- Psychoanalytic Theory of Love
March 24-Carl Jung on Love
March 26-Love in Jean-Paul Sartre's Existential Philosophy
April 2- Existentialism applied to women and Love
April 9-Feminism on Sex, Gender, and Love

Expected Learning Outcome 1.3: Successful students are able to evaluate how artistic ideas influence and shape human beliefs and the interactions between the arts and human perceptions and behavior. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

Much of the course is spent analyzing and interpreting the connection between artistic expressions of love and the lived experience of love and loving. Throughout the course, students will analyze how literary and visual representations of love relate to changing norms and practices around courtship and relationships.

Formal Papers (3)
Lecture/Discussion Examples:
Jan 23 - Disclosure, Jealousy
Feb 20 - Desire, Sex, Kissing, Proposal
Feb 27 - Wedding, Marriage
April 9 - Sex, Gender and Love

Expected Learning Outcome 1.4: Successful students are able to evaluate social and ethical implications in literature, visual and performing arts, and design. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

We will read and discuss numerous theoretical frameworks for understanding the social and ethical implications in the artworks studied. For example, our investigation of feminism at various junctures in the course will open up conversations around the changing views of women in relationship to love and relationships, and will touch upon issues like sexual and romantic autonomy, freedom and equality/inequality.

Assignment Examples:
Formal Papers (3)
Examples:
Feb 18, First Wave Feminism
April 2: Existentialism applied to women and love
April 9: Feminism on sex, gender, and love

Goal 2: Successful students will experience the arts and reflect on that experience critically and creatively.

Expected Learning Outcome 2.1: Successful students are able to engage in informed observation and/or active participation within the visual, spatial, literary, or performing arts and design. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

Class discussions will focus on informed, close observation of the works of art we will be studying throughout the course. In addition, in-class writing assignments will ask the student to record their initial thoughts and observations about an artwork discussed in class that day. These writings will encourage sustained engagement and careful attention to the work at hand, which will then further support our discussions by allowing students the time and opportunity to first get their thoughts on paper before discussing with the class.

Expected Learning Outcome 2.2: Successful students are able to critically reflect on and share their own experience of observing or engaging in the visual, spatial, literary, or performing arts and design. Please link this ELO to the course goals and topics and indicate specific activities/assignments through which it will be met. (50-700 words)

Students will have ample opportunity to share their own experiences of observing and engaging in the arts, particularly in our class discussions. The in-class written assignments will explicitly ask students to reflect upon their experiences of engaging in the artworks we are studying. These two-part written assignments will therefore balance descriptive and analytical work with the reflective work of a holistic, sustained engagement with a work of art.
