Subject: Concurrence Request for HIST 2003 Am Civ through Hist

Dear Lee (cc: Scott Levi),

I hope that all is well with you. I recently heard you all are closing in on some new hires, congrats there!

In any case, I write now with the attached new course proposal for History 2003: American Civics through History. I've researched, taught, and worked along these lines for years, as we discussed, and I developed the course based on my areas of expertise in light of likely new state requirements. As I'm sure you know, for course development via the Office of Academic Affairs, the proposing faculty member submits a class to the relevant committees and then to units that are doing work in aligned or adjacent areas, the proposal has been working its way through that process and now I write on behalf of the History Department doing just that, seeking concurrence for this course.

If you have any questions, please let me know. If not, please email your response/concurrence to me and to History Department Chair Scott Levi. According to university rules, concurrence is assumed if no response is received within two weeks.

Thanks,
-Chris
