COURSE OVERVIEW

Course description

In support of American civic literacy, this course examines leading traditions of American civic philosophy, including political economy, from the nation's founding to the current day. Students will study foundational texts that define key periods in the development of American civic philosophy, reflecting on important ideas and values that have shaped American public debates over time. Readings will be drawn from the writings of influential philosophers and political economists as well as from social and political leaders who made significant philosophical contributions to the American civic tradition.

Course goals

1. Students will develop a broad understanding of American civic philosophy including foundational texts that define key periods in its development.
2. Students will learn to formulate clear and persuasive arguments about American civic philosophy through class discussion and written assignments.
3. Students will undertake an in-depth exploration of a foundational text of American civic philosophy.

Descriptions of major course assignments

Class Participation

Description: Regular attendance and participation during class is part of your learning process. Participation involves active engagement with the course material, listening attentively to classmates, contributing to class discussion, including offering opinions about the readings and responding constructively to the views of others. I will ensure that all sincere and constructive input is taken seriously and that class discussion remains respectful. Personal attacks will not be tolerated.

Some questions to ask yourself before every class: (1) What were the main concepts and arguments in the readings? (2) Against whom or what is the author arguing? (3) What does the author hope to accomplish in this piece? (4) How does this reading connect to other readings so far?

Attendance will affect your participation grade. I reserve the right to take attendance at any class. If you must miss a class or exam, it is your responsibility to notify me before the day of class, or (in the case of exams) as far ahead of time as possible.

Reading Responses (10)

Description: For 10 of the readings (marked with **** on the topics/readings outline) you must submit a brief 200-250 word written response paper on Carmen intended to encourage critical and creative engagement with the reading. Each response must address how the reading informs your understanding of American civic philosophy as it concerns your own life. Your response papers must be typed and uploaded onto Carmen before class on the day for which the relevant readings are assigned. No late submissions allowed. They are graded as full credit (2 point each), partial credit (1) or no credit (0). (20 points).

Final Essay

Description: Write an essay in which you respond to a debate generated in class by one of the following texts: (1) the Declaration of Independence, (2) the Constitution of the United States, (3) parts of the Federalist Papers, (4) the Emancipation Proclamation, (5) the Gettysburg Address, (6) Letter from Birmingham Jail, and (7) excerpts from The Wealth of Nations. In the second half of the semester, you will meet individually with me to propose a topic and thesis, and discuss an outline. Your argument must show how a debate concerning one of these central texts remains relevant to a problem in contemporary society and then take a stand on that problem consistent with, or challenging, philosophical themes from writings in the course. The paper will be graded according to a rubric, provided in advance, addressing clarity of thesis and argument, engagement with texts, structure and organization, effective written expression, and creative thinking.

Exams (2)

Description: Both exams (1 midterm and 1 final exam) will include a series of multiple-choice and short answer questions about course material assigned in the course to that point in the semester. A study guide of possible questions will be distributed, we will review this study guide during class prior to the exam, and a subset of these questions will appear on the exam. The midterm exam will be conducted during a regular class meeting time. The final exam will take place at the Registrar-appointed time during final exam period. If you require extra time for your exam, please be in touch with me well in advance so that we can make alternative arrangements.

Late assignments

Late submissions will not be accepted except under special circumstances. Please refer to Carmen for due dates.

COURSE POLICIES

Academic integrity policy, including generative AI

It is the responsibility of the Committee on Academic Misconduct to investigate or establish procedures for the investigation of all reported cases of student academic misconduct. The term “academic misconduct” includes all forms of student academic misconduct wherever committed; illustrated by, but not limited to, cases of plagiarism and dishonest practices in connection with examinations. Instructors shall report all instances of alleged academic misconduct to the committee (Faculty Rule 3335-5-48.7 (B)). For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct.

The Ohio State University and the Committee on Academic Misconduct (COAM) expect that all students have read and understand the University's Code of Student Conduct, and that all students will complete all academic and scholarly assignments with fairness and honesty. Students must recognize that failure to follow the rules and guidelines established in the University's Code of Student Conduct and this syllabus may constitute Academic Misconduct.

The Ohio State University's Code of Student Conduct (Section 3335-23-04) defines academic misconduct as: Any activity that tends to compromise the academic integrity of the University, or subvert the educational process. Examples of academic misconduct include (but are not limited to) plagiarism, collusion (unauthorized collaboration), copying the work of another student, and possession of unauthorized materials during an examination. Ignorance of the University's Code of Student Conduct is never considered an excuse for academic misconduct.

Specifically, students are not to use unauthorized assistance such as generative AI tools on a course assignment unless such assistance has been authorized specifically by the course instructor. In addition, students are not to submit their work without acknowledging any word-for-word use and/or paraphrasing of writing, ideas or other work that is not your own.

If I suspect that a student has committed academic misconduct in this course, I am obligated by University Rules to report my suspicions to the Committee on Academic Misconduct. If COAM determines that you have violated the University's Code of Student Conduct (i.e., committed academic misconduct), the sanctions for the misconduct can significantly affect your undergraduate career.

If you have any questions about the above policy or what constitutes academic misconduct in this course, please contact me. For additional information, see the Code of Student Conduct <http://studentlife.osu.edu/csc/>.

Religious accommodations

Ohio State has had a longstanding practice of making reasonable academic accommodations for students' religious beliefs and practices in accordance with applicable law. In 2023, Ohio State updated its practice to align with new state legislation. Under this new provision, students must be in early communication with their instructors regarding any known accommodation requests for religious beliefs and practices, providing notice of specific dates for which they request alternative accommodations within 14 days after the first instructional day of the course. Instructors in turn shall not question the sincerity of a student's religious or spiritual belief system in reviewing such requests and shall keep requests for accommodations confidential.

With sufficient notice, instructors will provide students with reasonable alternative accommodations with regard to examinations and other academic requirements with respect to students' sincerely held religious beliefs and practices by allowing up to three absences each semester for the student to attend or participate in religious activities. Examples of religious accommodations can include, but are not limited to, rescheduling an exam, altering the time of a student's presentation, allowing make-up assignments to substitute for missed class work, or flexibility in due dates or research responsibilities. If concerns arise about a requested accommodation, instructors are to consult their tenure initiating unit head for assistance.

A student's request for time off shall be provided if the student's sincerely held religious belief or practice severely affects the student's ability to take an exam or meet an academic requirement and the student has notified their instructor, in writing during the first 14 days after the course begins, of the date of each absence. Although students are required to provide notice within the first 14 days after a course begins, instructors are strongly encouraged to work with the student to provide a reasonable accommodation if a request is made outside the notice period. A student may not be penalized for an absence approved under this policy.

If students have questions or disputes related to academic accommodations, they should contact their course instructor, and then their department or college office. For questions or to report discrimination or harassment based on religion, individuals should contact the Office of Institutional Equity. (Policy: Religious Holidays, Holy Days and Observances)

Disability services and requesting accommodations

The university strives to make all learning experiences as accessible as possible. If you anticipate or experience academic barriers based on your disability including mental health, chronic or temporary medical conditions, please let me know immediately so that we can privately discuss options. To establish reasonable accommodations, I may request that you register with Student Life Disability Services. After registration, make arrangements with me as soon as possible to discuss your accommodations so that they may be implemented in a timely fashion.

If you are ill and need to miss class, including if you are staying home and away from others while experiencing symptoms of a viral infection or fever, please let me know immediately. In cases where illness interacts with an underlying medical condition, please consult with Student Life Disability Services to request reasonable accommodations. You can connect with them at slds@osu.edu; 614-292-3307; or slds.osu.edu.
